Within the Veil.

Raleigh Farmer and Mechanic. Our gifted tewnsman, Theo, H. Hill, his friends will be pleased to learn, is preparing to issue a revised edition of his poems. He has written a new peem entitled "Within the Veil," which will be highly regarded by religious people. It pictures the beautiful streets of the Celestial City, the Crystal River, and the Trees of Life-which "to heal the Nations," spread-

"Aloft their leafy palms And every breeze that bloweth by Is odorous with balms." The concluding verse gives the Motif of the

The Paying of Judges' Salaries in Contested Cases-Other Current Matters in the Legislature.

Special Correspondence of The Observer. RALEIGH, February 8.—The House and rationed off Mr. Lewis Hilliard, of Halifax, and Mr. Thomas J. Wilson, of Forsyth, at ninety dollars a term for the courts these gentlemen held in 1874, while serving as judges in the places of Judge Moore and Judge Cloud. It is remembered that the Legislature of 1872 ordered an election of such judges on the idea that Moore's and Cloud's terms of office, set by the con-Cloud's terms of office, set by the convention of 1868, had expired. But the incumbents held differently, though they were forced to give up, to await a decision of the matter by the Supreme Court. Judges Moore and Hilliard went in and discharged the duties of the offices six months. the offices six months, drawing not a dollar of salary during the time. Then the Supreme Court decided that the old judges held two years longer, and the new ones stepped down and out, and the old ones back to their places, getting their back rations of six months' salary for the whole time they were out. In the Legislature of 1875 a resolution was introduced to pay these gentlemen for their services; but after forty days before a committee, and forty days more hanging fire in the House, on the motion of the present Mr. Bryson, of the House, the resolution was tabled on the call of tayes and noes, by dollar of salary during the time. Then son, of the House, the resolution was tabled on the call of tayes and noes, by a majority of about twenty-five. Mr. Day's bill was to pay Judge Hilliard $1,250, and in supporting the bill he mentioned that Thomas J. Wilson, of Forsyth, was justly entitled to the same amount. Mr. Glenn, of Stokes, promptly offered an amendment to that effect and it was accepted. The bill was reported unfavorably by the committee and drew fire from several of the members. Mr. Day pressed it. Mr. Tate opposed it. He was of the Legis—and that we have seventy-five per Tate opposed it. He was of the Legislature of 1875 that had sat down on it, and he gave his reasons tersely and

Mr. Grainger made quite a speech against it. To pay them would be an act of grace and not of justice. Mr. Hilliard had put in no claim. In fact it had seemed a tacit agreement be-tween the two to fill the office and not risk the salary on the decision of the

on a substitute by Mr. Carter, of Buncombe, reducing the sum to ninety dollars each term for the courts they had held. Mr. Carter thought it but just to pay them something for their services.
Mr. Day accepted the amendment.
Mr. Webster thought they should have it all, if anything, but was for giving them nothing.

Mr. Sparrow was heartily for the substitute. If it was just they should be paid. Strange it hadn't been done before. Surprised the committee had reported unfavorably.

Mr. Glenn, of Stokes, pressed it. Saw no difference between voting pay to contestants in elections, and this. Mr. Webster had voted for paying Hol-man in the Winstead case—how could and so had voted against paying Brower but the House had ordered it, and when it came to Holman, he thought. if a Republican had been paid, a Democrat should, and that was the whole of it. Mr. Day reminded Mr. W. if he thought it was wrong he should have stuck it out. Mr. Speaker Cook gave the chair to Mr. Green and took the floor for the substitute, and earnestly urged its adoption. On the call of the ayes and noes it passed third reading-ayes 39, noes 33.

THE SENATE vesterday refused to increase the Adjutant-General's pay from $800 to $600 per annum. Mr. Parish introduced a resolution that passed the Senate reducing the Supreme Court reports from 56 to 82 per volume. Their actual cost is $1.00, and the reduction puts them in reach of many people outside of the profession who relish reading them. Senator Scott, of Rockingham, will draw a bill for working the roads as the tone of society may chance to predominate in a neighborhood. It was no political issue and will be made none. Such a thing as legislating morality and religion for a State may do for Maine, but is hardly ripe for North Carolina. There may be a general law passed leaving it to the counties to vote for or not as they choose, but hardly more. A general bird law will soon be completed; it will forbid shipment out of the State. Maryland now has a law forbidding the killing of birds for five years, in order to stock the State. The question of the removal

Mr. Tate introduced a bill in the House to-day to amend the constitution so as to provide for two additional judges on the Supreme Court. The House to-day refused to reconsider the Senate bill paying inquest jurors mile-age and per mem, so it stands a law. On motion of Mr. Webster to-day, the House reconsidered the Senate bill Mr. Dortch's) to punish stealing dead bodies. Mr. Sparrow, and Mr. Glenn, of Stokes, opposed it as an importation of Northern laws into North Carolina. The bill was tabled, 44 to 29. Your editor, Col. Jones, dined at the Yarboro yesterday, and passed on an evening train to Goldsboro, as a delegate to the Pythias convention there. He was lookng well and met with many friends' There was rather a test on prohibition in the House to-day on a bill by Mr. Gwynn to amend a section of the laws of 1874-75, so as to require 30 days notice before a prehibitory law can be repealed. It was amended by Mr. Grainger to repeal the whole section, and so passed by a large vote. Mr. Day declared he was for putting his heel flat down on the snake's head. Mr. Bledsoe, of Wake, opposed the repeal.

How Hancock Conducts Hemself.

Grant's golden gift of speechlessness served him in good stead, and I discover that, notwithstanding his indiscrestions during the canvass, Hancock has a good deal of that same power. I saw a good deal of that same power. I saw him the other evening for the first time since the election, and watched him closely for some sign of disappoint-ment or bitterness, but there were none visible. He looked "superbly," and, while he was very dignified, had a cheeriness of manner which was delightful. If one may pass a casual judgment, he has much more freedom and peace of mind than Garfield, and incidentally I thought he had an un-commonly keen eye for pretty girls.
