THE FUNDING BILL.

Against the National Banks.

The Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun telegraphs, under date of 25th: Within the last 24 hours a strong feeling has been developed in Congress against the national banks. The verge of disaster reached in New York and the resistance to funding is charged to an attempt by the banks to coerce the government. Friends and defenders of the banks have been in a measure overawed by the tremendous prejudice that has been generated, and the chances are now that the more the banking interest resists the measure, the more likely is it to clinch the mat-

As a specimen of the feeling aroused, Senator Plumb, one of the three Re-publicans who voted for the Senate bill, said to-day: "I am a national bank president, so I can speak without prejudice. I tell you the crisis has come when we shall see whether the banks run the government or the government the banks. I think the government the banks. I think the government has a right to fix the rate of interest it will pay, and it is no business of any set of men. It makes no difference to the people if Wall street gamblers do lose money or railroad stocks stop rising. It would make a difference if the hoes in Western cornit is with the producers that the prosperity of the producers that the prosperity of the country rests. Let the bottom fall out of it, it it will. It is an artificial movement to coerce the government."

Senator Bayard said to-day that he thought the distress would be relieved as soon as the bill was passed and had become a law. There was undoubtedly great hardship being experienced now, and he did not know what would be the result. He had done what he could the result. He had done what he could to remove the objectionable elements T. L. SEIGLE & CO., from the bill because he was a conservative man, and thought it unwise to give a shock to the money market. The relations existing as to currency were so delicate he thought it unsafe to ex-periment. He was opposed to the Car-lisle section and thought it a damaging measure. He did not like to make any predictions as to the near future.

The Treasury officials are very much incensed at the turn affairs have taken. The Secretary ordered the purchase of ten millions of bonds to relieve the distress, and it is known that he is determined to do all he can to protect the public, so that the banks may expect supported it, and President Robinson that as fast as they lock up meney he ruled favorably, delivering a very astronomy and the supported it. will pour it out in every possible w.y.

Mr. Gilfillan is of the opinion that the action of the banks is hasty and unwarranted and that the circulation will

A press dispatch from hence says:
"There seems to be a growing impression with many members of the House who voted for the funding bill that the by Congress, Secretary Sherman will exercise discretionary power, with which he is vested, to relieve, as far as possible, the threatened stringency in

The Herald's correspondent writes as follows on the 26th: The funding bill has but a slim chance of becoming a law. The House has become almost as panicky as Wall street yesterday, and whenever the bill is called up it may be smothered beneath a mass of amendthe money market." whenever the bill is called up it may be smothered beneath a mass of amendments—good, bad and indifferent. In the present mind of the House these amendments will create discussion. Some of them will probably be adopted, such as one which has been drawn discontinuous of the Transport recting the Secretary of the Treasury to issue greenbacks to the same amount as national bank circulation withdrawn. Any amendments or changes in the bill will send it back to the Senate, and the time is now so short that the delay would probably be fatal to the bill, and might even cause some appropriation bills to fail. It is said also that the Republicans in the House have very generally determined to oppose the bill, and that they may conclude to filibuster against it. It is the opinion of some cautious and conservative men here that the opposition of the national banks to the bill and the means some of them have taken to show and enforce it, are likely to have far reaching consequences not of a nature to benefit the country. Some have far reaching consequences not of a nature to benefit the country. Some congressmen who were originally opposed to the clause in the bill, forcing the banks to redeem their bonds with their own bills, are now strongly in favor of it. They say that the events of the past week have shown a hitherto unsuspected power of combination in the national banks, and have disclosed that a number of banks may at any time by combining cause a sudden contraction of the currency which would derange not merely speculation, but the legitimate business of the country. They say that to prevent this danger is one of the first and most important duties of Congress, and that the Carlisle clause, interpreted as the banks have understood it, is the shortest way that now offers to protect the business of the country in this day of gigantic combinations against attacks on the general stability of trade and industry. al stability of trade and industry.

The New County and the Prohibition Questions.

RALEIGH, N. C., Feb. 26—The bill for the new county of Durham, like a cat with nine lives can't be killed. Yesterday after it failed on the third reading, the new county of Vance came up and Mr. Dortch expressed himself decidedly for it because it would make Granville Democratic. This riled the Republicans, those of them who had voted against Durham, and it was evident their hair was up to put Durham their hair was up to put Durham through if they could get another lick at it, and though after it had failed a move was made to reconsider and that motion laid on the table by Mr. Dortch, which is considered in the house as always graveyarding a bill without the hopes of redemption. Yet to-day, President Robinson ruled that there was no fixed rule in the Senate, and at the instance of the Republicans, Mr. King of Lenoir, making the move, the bill was reconsidered and the new county of Durham was brought to life and passed its second reading by a vote of 14 to 23.

On the passage of the bill in the Senting of the senting by a vote of 14 to 24. ate, to-day, compromising the old debt of Fayettville at 50 cents in the dollar, Mrs. Buxton, of Fayetteville, was one of the ladies in the gallery, and at its passage she exclaimed, "I protest against it!" Mr. Staples was in the chair. There was some sensation but order was soon restored. The Durham ladies sent President Robinson a very beautiful boquet yesterday. There was some very fine parliamentary hair splitting in getting the county of Durham again on the boards. It was never known before in the Sen-ate after a motion to reconsider had been clinched on the table. But Mr. Staples, after a night's studying, and consulting with two distinguished parliamentarians, requested Mr. King who had voted in the affirmative, to put the motion which was substantially as fol-warranted and that the circulation will be taken out again. Comptroller Knox is much chagrined, and is about the only one about the department who does not openly condemn the banks for the impediments they appear to be putting in the way of the success of the operations of the government. The feeling generally in the department is that while the bill was not what it ought to be, any attempt to resist it to the embarrassment of the public is to be deprecated and denounced. Persons who have lately been in conversabe deprecated and denounced. Persons who have lately been in conversation with the President profess to believe that he will permit the funding bill to die without his signature.

Lightning Never Strikes Twice in the Same

The above old adage is contradicted by the experience of the employees of the well-known wholesale worsted house of I. Herrman, No. 334 Canal street, New York, where within a brief year two gentlemen. Mr. Lichtenstein, the cashler, received $10,000, and in the January drawing. Mr. David Leovi, a leading salesman, received $15,000—both by the expenditure of a single dollar in the purchase of half a ticket in the monthly drawing of the Louisians State Lottery from M. A. Dauphin, No. 319 Broadway, New York city, or as well of the same person at New Orleans, La. The next drawing occurs on March 8th.

From C. D. McCurry, Newton county, Georgia: I take great pleasure in recommending to the public Dr. Cheney's Expectorant and Croup Preventive. My little son had been a great sufferer from Spasmodic Croup during the night. Dr. Cheney, about two years ago, prescribed for him his Croup Preventive, which has most miraculously cured him. I find it equally benficial in all cases of Coughs. I consider it a blessing in my family, every one should keep it in their houses. For sale every one should keep it in their houses.
