About 5 o' clock that same evening several went to the grave and took the body up. On opening the coffin they found fresh moisture on the glass of the coffin lid, and her hands were again broken from the strip of cloth that bound them, and they were both lying by her side, and, instead of her limbs being in the least rigid, they and her fingers were flexible. Notwithstanding all this they could not convince themselver but that she was dead, and she was reburied. The matter was generally discussed in the neighborhood, and by the following Sunday the excitement had grown so intense that it was decided to re-exhume her the following day. The next day, Monday, after she had slept beneath the sod for four days and nights, she was again, resurrected and taken to her home where she has been slowly but gradually improving. Her friends entertain the strongest hopes of her recovery, which, if she does, will be a remarkable occurrence long to be remembered by the people of Spicarte. The way in by the people of Snicarte. To Accommodate the Public. To accommodate the Public.

The proprietors of that immensely popular remedy, Kinney-Wort, in recognition of the claims of the public which has so liberally patrenized them, have prepared a liquid preparation of that remedy for the special accommodation of those who, from any reason, dislike to prepare it for themselves. It is very concentrated, and, as the dose is small, it is more easily taken by many. It has the same effectual action in all diseases of the kidneys, liver or bowels.—Home and Farm.
