"Water for Me." The following is from the pen of James A. Bevel and is original in the Texas State Times. It bespeaks the experience of that kind which teaches terrible lessons; for there is evidently heart in it.

Water, bright water for me, And wine for that trembling debauchee. I join your festive scene to-night, I grasp your honest glass to you, I feel in other lands, I bless the fate that led my steps

I've quaffed from goblets rich and bright The dawning drugs of earth, And shared with gay and thoughtless men A carnival of mirth. But oh! within the ruddy cup I poison mine, I take back the wine—I'll touch it not, Nor be what I have been.

Amid our home the grave yard stands In sadness and in gloom; And on the head-stone ye may read The drunkard's early doom; They were the victims of childhood's hours, And o'er my spirits cast, A shadow dark and desolate, In memory of the past.

Then ask me not to pledge in wine The friends I meet to-night, For 'neath its evanescent beams I found an endless night. I will not drink while reason sways, But stand erect and free— While water flows from fountains pure, No treacherous wine for me. Austin, January 17, 1864.

INTERPRETANCE. An Old Theme in a New Dress. A correspondent of the Washington Gazette thus handles this subject: There are few subjects worthy of discussion in social and religious circles that have been treated with so much exhortation and elaborate detail as the vice of intemperance. Public lecturers have slept on it, dreaming of the realization of handsome returns, and there is scarcely remaining untouched a single phase of this hydra-headed monster that has not been torn 'as a passion into tatters' on the rostrum and pulpit. From observation we have arrived at some conclusions respecting the disease and its partial remedy.

Therefore, we may appeal to the action of our generous apostles of temperance to agitate anew the necessary reforms. We have, in common with all thinking people, observed that the poor huddle of cheap swampsy sections in all of our cities. Either close to the water's edge, or in newly-made ground covering stagnant ponds, following the course of "the rich man for the mountain, and the poor man for the sea," according to the stages of wealth and education. The immigrants of yesterday usually recede inland from those of to-day.

These swampsy bogs are usually the fifth reservoirs of such towns and cities, surcharged in consequence, with a sickening malaria, through which the entire system of man becomes impregnated often without his knowing it. The dwellings are built to rent by avaricious landlords, are imperfectly constructed, often wanting in the most necessary and common conveniences. At the same time the soil is a loathsome sponge emitting silently and noiselessly the most offensive and death-dealing gases and odors. Here, then, is the breeding ground for the vendors of the cheapest intoxicating liquors and his sabbie highness, the undertaker. In such a location the medical formula of quinine and whiskey is said to be remarkably uniform as the panacea for all ailments, including but nutritious. Cheap stores, cheap meats, and stale vegetables abound with scarcely a change of diet from one year's end to the other. The seasonal fruits, vegetables and milk are seldom used. All this poverty of food must surely beget paucity of blood, with a taste for alcoholic spirits, to arouse its torpidity, and revive a downcast and malarious disorder.

In a majority of cases, totally unaccounted for by the patient himself, intelligence itself is baffled in detecting the presence of enervating poisonous vapors. Again, physicians, as well as men of intelligence, know what a great inducement to the commission of such internal disorders the skin is, yet the neglect of cleaning this will often change the very temperament of the negligent, so that it has become well established that those who drink most spirits bathes in the most filthy and good bath, whether hot or cold, tends to sobriety. Again, idleness being the devil's workshop, industry must rob him of his tools.

We, therefore, admonish all who are struggling against this vice to seek employment, no matter what the salary or wages—employment first, last, and every time; avoiding old companions as well as old resorts, for theologians lay it down as a rule, that in order to reform one must avoid the occasion of his besetting sin.

Private Funds in Government Custody Not Subject to Levy. WASHINGTON, April 25.—The commissioner of internal revenue has just decided in a case which arose in the fifth collection district of North Carolina that money in the custody of the government and belonging to a citizen is not subject to levy and attachment under proceedings instituted in a State court by creditors. The principle decided is of importance. The circumstances are as follows: A party accused of violating the revenue laws in a number of cases, made a proposition to compromise for a certain sum, which he deposited with the department pending the negotiations. The department, after due consideration, declined to accept the offer made, and the collector of internal revenue of the district was instructed to return the money to the party depositing it. In the meantime a mandate was issued from a State court of North Carolina, at the instance of certain creditors of the party aforesaid, forbidding the collector to deliver up the money. The commissioner thereupon directed the collector to return the money to the department here, from whence it was delivered to the representative of the person to whom it belonged. The view taken was that the government was bound in good faith to return money deposited under such circumstances.

A Naughty Slender. It is remarkable what little bites a woman takes when eating in the presence of her sweethearts. What a little mouth she has then! She nibbles with her little white teeth like some dainty squirrel eating a hickory nut. But wait until washday comes. Watch her when she goes to hang up clothes and gets in a hurry. By the time that she gets the big ends of fifteen clothes pins laid in that mouth, you will begin to think that it is a pretty good sized, hearty mouth after all.

GIVEN UP BY DOCTORS. "It is possible that Mr. Goddard is an old man, and cured by so simple a remedy." "I assure you I have tried the ordinary means, and with nothing but Hop Bitters, and only once, say that my doctors gave him up and said he was dead." "Well, that is remarkable! I will give this day and some for my poor George—I know how you feel."

ABOUT THE RAILROADS. A New Georgia Road. SAVANNAH, April 25.—The Waycross and Jacksonville Railroad was completed at 10 o'clock, Saturday, and the first train passed over safely. The formal opening will take place on the first proximo. This line will shorten time between Savannah and Jacksonville to six hours.

Austin to Burnett. GALVESTON, April 25.—A special for Burnett says a movement is on foot for the construction of a railroad from Austin to Burnett, to be known as the Austin and Burnett Railroad.

Louisville and Charleston. Knoxville Tribune. In a few days work will be commenced on the Knoxville and Ohio Railroad, between Careyville and the State line. The distance is 27 miles, but nearly one-third of that is already graded. There can hardly be a reasonable doubt that the road will not be completed by the 1st of July, 1882, to the State line, according to agreement with the Louisville and Nashville, where it will meet the extension of the Kentucky Central, which will also be completed before that time.

Not less important to Knoxville is the Southern connection with the Western North Carolina Railroad. The Tennessee end is already within four and a half miles of the North Carolina State line, and this short distance will be bridged inside of six months. The distance between Asheville, North Carolina, and the Tennessee State line, is about forty miles. More than one-third of the road for this distance is already graded, and iron is at hand ready for the track. There are now seven hundred convicts working on this road and five hundred more laborers are to be placed upon it immediately. The road will be completed by the beginning of the winter. Knoxville dealers may prepare to furnish Charleston, S. C., and other cities on the Southern slope and seaboard, with coal next winter.

Abandoning Southern Crops. A lawyer who gave his money liberally to elect the Republican nominees in the late Presidential election has just said to Gath: "I have not much faith in building up Republican ascendancy in the South by dividing the labor and fishes. I think that the Republican party in the North will begin to understand that there cannot be productiveness and development in the Southern States as long as the blacks are stirred up by white demagogues just at crop-gathering time. I have had juvenile experience in the Southern States since the war, and have planted cotton there. So spontaneous is the soil under the sun that weeds grow faster than the cotton, unless your labor at that particular period will fight the weeds out and let the cotton live. And these political demagogues, without the least interest in the prosperity of the people, would come along with a band of music just as you are fighting your weeds with all your hands, and would give a political howl, and would stop the work, make everybody drunk, and probably spoil your investment. To plant cotton you put, perhaps, $50,000 into your planks, and then borrow $50,000 more, stuff to eat from your merchant. Just about the time you begin to see your money in sight, they spring politics on the negro. That is the cause of the indignation in the Southern States, and the Northern people cannot be made to see it.

"The brain of the white man has made the South. The negro labor has been necessary, but so has the labor of the mule. That directing mind and energy residing in the weeds and the cotton live. And these political demagogues, without the least interest in the prosperity of the people, would come along with a band of music just as you are fighting your weeds with all your hands, and would give a political howl, and would stop the work, make everybody drunk, and probably spoil your investment. To plant cotton you put, perhaps, $50,000 into your planks, and then borrow $50,000 more, stuff to eat from your merchant. Just about the time you begin to see your money in sight, they spring politics on the negro. That is the cause of the indignation in the Southern States, and the Northern people cannot be made to see it.

Know How It Was Himself. Galveston News. When Jay Gould was in Galveston and, accompanied by a number of leading citizens, was inspecting the cotton stacks, a small boy was seized by one of the Galveston gentlemen just as the gamin was picking the great railroad magnate's pocket. "What did the little fellow do?" asked Gould. "He stole your pocket-handkerchief, Mr. Gould, and I am going to turn him over to a policeman." "Don't do that," replied Mr. Gould, smiling good-naturedly; "let him go. We should not discourage young beginners. I had to start out in a modest way myself when I went into the railroad business," and reaching down into his pocket Mr. Gould took up a quarter and gave it to the boy, to encourage him to aim higher.

How They Do It in Ohio. The school-book war in the Ohio Legislature is over. The bill was defeated in the Senate proposing to constitute five State officers a committee to receive proposals for furnishing a series of readers for all public schools in Ohio, and to forbid the use of any other readers than those approved by the commission, who were to fix the price at which the books should be sold. It is alleged that ten thousand dollars was one firm's share of the cost of defeating the measure. The final debate in the Senate was a very bitter one, full of personalities.

Parents Alarmed. A New York letter says the recent Strongsville black-mailing case has so alarmed parents in regard to the possible abduction of their children from school, that quite large boys and girls are now escorted to and fro by servants, and many teachers have been requested never to dismiss any child before the close of school hours except at the personal request of some member of the family.

AN UNRIVALLED HAIR DRESSING. Producing a Rich and Cleanly Appearance as if Nature Alone Had Imparted It. BURNETT'S OCCOOLINE is the best and cheapest Hair Dressing. It cures itching, itching, itching, and restores a natural, healthy growth of hair. It is the only hair dressing that does not contain any poisonous or irritating ingredients. The superiority of BURNETT'S FLAVORING EXTRACTS consists in their perfect purity and great strength. They are warranted free from the poisonous oils and acids which enter into the composition of many of the fictitious hair dressings.
