up as many healthy, vigorous young women as they can. Of course. "A Cincinnati lawyer has astonished even his professional brethren by charging a fee of $20,000 for collecting $53,000." Not at all. The wonder is he didn't take it all.

As one of the results of the Senate dead-lock Judge Settle had to postpone criminal business in the United States District Court, at Pensacola, Fla., for want of a district attorney.

Boston Corbett, the slayer of Wilkes Booth is said to be living, extremely poor and in an almost destitute condition, near Philadelphia. His mind seems to be unhinged, and he lives in constant dread of assassination.

Georgia wants more room for her insane. According to the Atlanta Constitution "there is a demand for the accommodation of 500 lunatics who are now crowded almost to death in the asylum and in the county jails of the State."

Some of the girls of a high school at Augusta, Ga., have passed resolutions agreeing to wear Eagle and Phenix ginghams at their commencement." Good for the Augusta girls. In his speech before the Republican caucus of Senators, at Washington last Monday, Conkling gave a history of his relations with Mr. Garfield, and charged that Garfield had "lied to him wilfully and deliberately and forfeited the respect due from one gentleman to another." This thing is getting interesting.

The United States Government has presented two gold medals to the chiefs of Indian tribes on Vancouver Island who succored the crew of a wrecked American vessel last summer. What earthly use have these chiefs for gold medals. If the government had presented them with two boxes of soap it would have much more appropriate and sensible.

The Galveston (Texas) News has the temerity to suggest that the Governor offer a reward of $10,000 to the woman who can cook a dinner that would not give an ostrich chronic indigestion, and the Wilmington Star has the rashness to add: "If he would extend the competition throughout the South the sum would probably remain in the State Treasury." We take it for granted the editors of News and the Star are baldheaded gentlemen.

SILK CULTURE.

We see by some of the exchanges south of us that the culture of silk is beginning to attract some attention, as it is also in this State. Experiments in a small way have succeeded in some localities, demonstrating the fact that the silk worm will thrive in this latitude, Years ago we saw some very fine samples of silk produced and spun in Rockingham county, and it has ever since been a matter of surprise to us that the culture of it has not received more attention among Southern planters than it has.

We have been told that many years ago there was a silk craze throughout North Carolina, and thousands of mulberry trees were planted. But it soon died out and the trees were permitted to die out toe, or were out down. The reason for this probably was that the subject was but little understood then: but now full information is easily gained as to the proper way of managing the business throughout all its branches. We would like to see the experiment tried with system, for if successful it would prove an industry of no small importance to the South.

THE WORTH'S SPINION. The Sheriff of New Hanover county having asked Treasurer Worth whether the State and county retail liquor tax are both applicable to the school fund, the Star of Tuesday publishes the following reply:

Gen R. H. Manning, Sheriff, &c., Wilmington, N. C.:

DEAR SIR:—I am of the opinion that both State and county retailers' liquor tax are applicable to the School fund.

Very respectfully,

J. M. WORTH,

NEW ENGLAND AND THE FAC-

The alleged corresion of the laboring classes in the South is a favorite theme with Republican leaders, especially from the New England section; and in the late discussions in the Senate, it became a prominent feature in some of the speeches. The Louisville Courier-Journal has gathered from a recent report of Mr. Carroll D. Wright, of the Massachusetts Bureau of Labor tories of New England:

According to Mr. Wright's report, in the mills of Maine men are paid $750 a week, and women get only $550, while the little children receive from $2 25 to $5 40 in the woolen mills, which pay the largest wages. One paper mill in Maine pays men $10 50 a week and women $5 50, working seventy-two hours a week. In New Hampshire the wages are much lower than those paid in Maine, and the operatives are required to work sixty-six hours in the week. In Rhode Island the wages are a little higher, with sixty-six hours during the week. In Connecticut operatives work ninety hours a week-fifteen hours a day for six days-and the wages are $9 for men. $5 80 for women, $5 10 for male children and $4 10 for female children. The highest spinner's wages are $6. In Massachusetts from sixty-three to sixty-six hours of labor a week are exacted, and spinners only get $108 a day; the highest class of la-bor in the mills not exceeding $10 to $12 for the men. It must be borne in mind, too, that the hands in these factories, at least such of them as are run by water-power, are idle during the winter months, and have to support themselves on the savings from these scanty earnings, and the consequence is destitution almost to the point of starvation in many instances. Practically speaking they are slaves to their wealthy, exacting employers, and are infinitely worse off than any laborers to be found South of the Potomac.

EXIT STANLEY MATTHEWS.

That was gratifying intelligence from Washington that the Senate committee had reported adversely on the nomination of Stanley Matthews, whom Hayes rewarded for the dirty part he took in the counting in game, by nominating him for a position on the Supreme Bench. The nomination hung fire until Mr. Hayes retired to Ohio, when Mr. Conkling hopes to use some Mr. Garfield, to the surprise of many, institute he went forth to battle for the Democratic Senators in his fight with sent his name to the Senate, where it cause of State rights, self-government has been waiting with other nomina-

The report of the committee settles Mr. Matthews's case and relieves this country from the disgrace of seeing him seated as one of the Supreme Court Judges. Exit, Stanley, to Ohio. Requiescat in the shades of Buckeye the battle fields of the Confederacy oblivion.

"Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown" was never more forcibly illustrated than in the case of the Czar of Russia who lives in daily, hourly dread of , assassination, and whose every movement is guarded by bodies of armed men, lest the fate of his father be also his fate. He wears a diadem, wields a sceptre, and courtiers gather around him, but he looks into the eye of nearly every human being that approaches him with suspicion. He walks under guard, sits down to his less pillow under guard, and all for the poor priviledge of being called Czar and wearing a royal crown.

NEW ORLEANS, May 11.-At the conclusion of the ceremonies attending the dedication of the tomb of the Association of the Army of Northern Virginia and the unveiling of the statue of Stonewall Jackson yesterday evening at Metairie cemetery, Jefferson Davis, after complimenting Gen. Lee's address and congratulating the association on the completion of their tomb and monument, referring to Gen. Jackson, said: "From academic shades of a military and constitutional liberty. Nobody expected that this quiet professor would have an opportunity to show the great qualities he possessed and become the great hero of our war. To-day he stands in the opinion of Europeans, so far as I know, the mightiest chieftain of the Confederate cause. This silent professor constantly rose like a meteor over only like a meteor in its bright-ness for his light was steady as the orb of day. It shone to the very close, increasing in brilliancy and in the trust which people reposed upon it. Such was Jackson. He lived for his country, never doubting the justice of his cause, believing it was righteous and trusting in it. He died, as I live to-day, feeling that the Confederacy ought to have succeeded, because it was founded on truth and justice. He gave his life for the whole country; the country gave its heart to Jackson. You, the men upon whom he leaned in the hour of danger, in honoring him also honor yourselves."
