Has the refusal of President Garfield to appoint John Russell Young minister to China anything to do with the onslaughts that paper is now making on the aforesaid Garfield?

There must be lots of bad whiskey down in Georgia to account for the number of fatal encounters and murderous assaults the papers of that State chronicle. Conkling charges Garfield with ex-

probably true, for Garfield could never

T. C. Evans, in his sprightly paper, says it is the shan't feature of the prohibition law that Gov. Reid and others object to. The shant's are a very essential part of the programme in the good government of this world. There were ten of them thundered on Sinai, and then till now they have the foundation of the laws of government in all God-believing countries. No, no. Take the shants out and the whole fabric of order falls to pieces and chaos reigns.

Even Russia moves. The determination of the government to take an interest in the welfare of the 3,700,000 peasants who rent lands and aid them in becoming landholders is one step in the right direction which in time will be followed by others. These peasants who have purchased lands will be reremitted. All proprietors who have not yet arranged to sell holdings to peasants will be compelled to do so by

The Louisville Courier-Journal, of the 11th inst., is a mammoth sheet, the biggest thing in the way of a newspaper we have ever tackled. It is about the size of an ordinary bed quilt. The Courier boasts that there is no other office in the world that can print a sheet of that size at one impression. Kentucky is noted for big things-big men, big cattle, big-footed girls, big pumpkins, etc., big Bourbon, and now comes of interest to North Carolina farmers, the big Courier-Journal trying to from the South Carolina Spartan: spread itself over all creation, and to cap the climax it will only be a few years until the"dark and bloody ground" will be making "three gallons of whiskey from a bushel of corn."

THE INSANITY DODGE.

In murder trials these days the plea of insanity has become so common as to be regarded almost a matter of course. If a man, harboring in his breast the resentments of years, meets the object of his dislike on the streets and shoots him down, it is suddenly discovered that he was insane; if filled with bad whiskey he goes home at night and beats his wife to death, he is found to be insane; if he hunts up a and savagely murders her, he is insane; ing on top of the ground becomes green and very unpalatable. They are totally unfit for table use. When they are exto his relief, and the more coolly planned and diabolically executed the better, the greater the atrocity, the more powerful element it becomes in the defence:
In point of economy, at least, for justice
does not meet consideration, it would be does not meet consideration, it would be a potato can be placed on our markets that cannot be excelled by those of applies to murders, and send them redhanded to some friendly asylum, to be treated and turned loose in a little while to indulge their insane freaks on other victims.

There is a judge in California, however, who does not believe in the insane dodge, and recently sentenced two men who were tried for murder and put in the usual plea. This judge instructed the jury that the insanity must be established at the time the murder was committed, not by inference but by unquestionable proof, not by the opinion of experts but by facts which left no doubt in the minds of the

A GROUNDLESS ALARM.

Some of the Democratic State papers, such of them as are opposed to the prohibition movement, entertain the fear that it will be dragged into politics, become a party issue and act disastrously upon the Democratic party. We think this is a groundless fear. Some of the most active and ardent prohibitionists in the State are Republicans, prominent in their party and trusted, as are also some of the Republican editors. It is true the Legislature which passed the act was a Democratic body, but it was not passed as a party measure, for it was supported by men of both par-

There is no danger of any party issue now, nor will there be in the future, for if the people endorse it that will be the end of it as far as any public discussion goes, and if they reject it, it will be heard of no more on the hustings for some time to come. It is more than likely that some of the Republican politicians will endeaver to make capital by false representations, but the mass of the people have too much sense to be deceived by such false representations, for they will understand the motives which inspire them.

It will go on in the pulpit, in the press, in the organized societies, in the domestic circle, till the people are educated up to it in this State as they have been in others, where at one time it met with as stubborn opposition as it is now met with here. Time and experience are educators that convince when the strongest arguments fail. It was so in Maine when the issue was sprung thirty years ago. It is so in other States where the issue has been sprung at a later date. Great reforms cannot be accomplished in a day, nor in a week, nor in a month, nor in a year. Habits of a life time cannot be changed in a moment. Customs recognized for ages cannot be abolished at once, and we are not among those who, though sult in an instantaneous millenium.

A BAD START AT REFORM.

When Secretary of War, Lincoln undertook to break into the arrangement by which certain favored military officers were permitted to live in Washington, lounge around idly, and draw pay regularly, he "bit off more than he could chaw," as his father sometimes said when speaking of people who were attempting more than they could do. The first man he struck was a lieutenant, who, for seventeen years, has been hanging around Washington, and drawing his pay regularly though never with his regiment. He was popular in fashionable society, to which he gave all his time and talents. Mr. Lincoln ordered him to his regiment which created such a stir among the fashionables that they came down on him in a body, and he had to surrender and let lieved of a considerable portion of their | the lieutenant stay where he was. With annual payments on account of land, such a poor start, we suppose he will while all accumulated arrears will be give it up as a bad job and let the loungers kill time and draw pay as heretofore.

> The Asheville News-the Republican organ of the mountain country-comes out vigorously for prohibition, and closes a pointed editorial in the following sensible lines: Let this question be agitated in a spirit of kindness, not making war upon men or a class of men, but upon principle and questions of right, and good order in society.

We would make a few suggestions to our neighbors in North Carolina in regard to Irish potatoes, if we could only get a hearing from them. Here in South Carolina we can raise a very abundant spring crop, but they do not keep well until winter. A second planting is too uncertain to depend on. The flavor of the North Carolina potato is equal to any we have ever tasted. The Peerless is, perhaps, one of the very best varieties, but any kind that is smooth, solid, brittle and white will do. After getting a good variety and raising a good crop of large potatoes they should be assorted; large ones separa-ted from the small. REPUBLICANS IN THE SENATE.

Hope They May Get Out of the Tangle. WASHINGTON, May 13 .- The Repubican Senators held a caucus this morning for the purpose of individually reporting to each other what progress, if any, has been made in the effort of members of the caucus to harmonize party differences in regard to contested nominations. No definite plan appears to have been agreed upon, but several Senators say they were encouraged by the conference this morning to hope that a satisfactory adjustment may yet be effected.

During the conference attention was called to the fact which has quite generally been lost sight of that the action taken by the caucus last week in regard to contested cases extended no further plan to prove that they should not be brought before the Senate until clearing the docket of contested business, and various Senators to-day announced that from and after the time when this clearance shall be effected, which is apparently very near at hand, they will not enter into any agreement or any understanding in regard to any contested nomination, but will hold themselves free to move for prompt action upon all such cases in accordance with their individual judgments and restricted only by the rules of the Senate. In view of these announcements it is considered that an attempt will be made to obtain such action on the sub-That was tried in the recent election ject and unless controversy in regard in this city and failed. The London Times on the French-

Tunis Treaty. LONDON, May 13.—The Times says the constitution of the Ministerial State, relative to Tunis, made in the French chambers yesterday, will be received throughout Europe with unmixed amazement. Every political section n England agrees that the reasons for the expedition advanced by M. Barthelemy St. Hiliare, the French minister of Foreign Affairs, are merely pretexts, and that the real reasons which the latter part of his circular reveal are unworthy of any State that professes to be guided in its international relations by the ordinary rules of morality. It would be idle to pretend that the action of France will not somewhat weaken the sympathy and friendship entertained for her by England. In all he difficult negotiations which marked the concluding stages of the Eastern uestion, England received no help from France. The Greek question was dangerously compromised by her withdrawal at the critical stage. The new ariff is justly regarded with great disfavor. We sincerely hope that diplo-Its good effects, however, will become matic and commercial friction of this kind will lead to no permanent unfriendliness between the two countries, but there is no denying that France is not a feeling of jealousy, commercial or political, that produces this result, but one of concern that a nation which seemed to have entered upon a better path should allow itself to be turned by fancied commercial interests into a course not in accordance with the best traditions of public law.

> Treaty Between France and Tunio. PARIS, May 13 .- In the Senate to-day Premier Ferry announced that the Franco-Tunican treaty was signed yesterday. It assures to France the right to occupy positions which the French military deem necessary for the maintenance of the order and security of the frontier and coast. France guarantees the Bey security of person, State and dynasty and the maintenance of actually existing treaties between regency and European powers, the Bey not to conclude any new international convention without previous understanding with France. French diplomatic agents abroad will be charged with the provisions of Tunisian interests. The inancial system of Tunis will be reguated by France in concert with the Bey to secure the better working of the administration of the regency a subsequent convention will determine the amount and mode of collection of war indemnity to be levied upon rebellious tribes, and guaranteed by Tunis. The Bey undertakes to prohibit the importation of arms and ammunition on the text will shortly be submitted. He stable in Salisbury last week and have Weather and Rivers.

Washington, May 13.—Clear or fair weather continues in the Southern States and the Ohio valley and middle States, and local rains have prevailed in New England, Lake region and the northeast. The temperature has risen slightly during the past 24 hours in the Southern States and in the St. Lawrence valley, and fallen slightly in the remaining districts, but continues above mean for the month except in the upper lake regions of Texas and Florida, where it is slightly below mean. The highest temperature reported yesterday afternoon were as follows: Ninety-four degrees at Pittsburg and Lynchburg; 93 degrees at New York, Baltimore and Washington; 91 degrees at Norfolk, and 90 degrees at Sandy Hook, Philadelphia and Toledo. The indications are that slightly cooler and partly cloudy weather will prevail during Saturday in districts on the Atlantic Coast, with northeast to south east winds and local rains and the temperature will rise slowly in the upper lake region and northwest winds with areas of rain and east to south winds The Mississippi will continue to fall above Leclaire and St. Louis, Cairo and Memphis, and to rise slowly at Leclaire Davenport and Keokuk.
