Bill Herndon is a pauper at Springfield, Ill. He was once worth considerable property. His mind was the most argumentative of any of the old lawyers in the State and his memory was extraordinary. For several years before Lincoln was nominated for the Presidency Herndon was in some respects the most active member of the firm, preparing the greatest number of cases for trial and making elaborate arguments in their behalf. It is said that he worked hard with Lincoln in preparhe worked hard with Lincoln in preparing the memorable speeches delivered by the man who afterward became President during the debates between Lincoln and Douglas in 1858, and in constructing the Cooper Institute address delivered by Lincoln a short time before the war Hernden with all his before the war. Herndon, with all his attainments, was a man who now and then went on a spree, and it was no uncommon thing for him to leave an important law suit and spend several days in drinking and carousing. This habit became worse after Lincoln's death, and, like poor Dick Yates, Herndrand was the beauty at the start till his old. It appears that Mrs. Middleton, wife of Mr. John Middleton, crossed over the mill pond on a small ferry boat on Monday afternoon to visit a neighbor, as she had been in the habit of doing since her residence in the neighborhood, and that her husband went over later in the evening to escort her home. They got to the ferry boat about 8 o'clock to start home, the husband pulling the boat over by a rope that was stretched across the pond. When they had gone half way over, the rope unfortunately struck Mrs. Middleton, throwing her into the water. She immediately sank and before rising to the surface her husband jumped into the water to rescue her, but instead of saving his wife he was carried to the bottom, and both were drowned."
