FAIR PLAY.

The disposition that some anti-Stalwart papers show to make political capital by charging the Stalwarts with complicity in the assassination of Mr. Garfield is not to be commended, as there is not the slightest evidence for the foundation of such a charge. It is gendered between the rival factions of the Republican party may have had more than likely that the animus ensomething to do with leading the disappointed and demented assassin to dent and his family. The Garfields are the determination to commit the act. but it would be just as logical and just as fair to hold a church responsible for the insanity of men who lose their reason from religious excitement and perpetrate horrible deeds, as to hold a political party responsible for the desperate acts of a political zealot, unless such acts be endorsed by it. It was that same unjust, unreasoning spirit which charged the Southern people with complicity in the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, because a Booth, driven to madness at the overthrow of a people with whom he sympathized, cried for vengeance and sent the death-dealing bullet into the head of the nation's executive in the presence of a thousand horrified people.

We do not believe that the leaders of the Stalwarts would have shed many tears had the assassin's bullet done the work for which it was sent, but that they would have conspired for that purpose, or connived at or encouraged it in any way is more than any candid man in the country believes, however much he may detest these men politically. They are capable of much trickery and much villainy, but have not gotten quite so low in the scale of moral degragation as to stoop to assassination to accomplish their purposes,

ALBANY, July 9 .- The joint conven tion met at noon and proceeded to vote on filling the short term vacancy, with the following result:

When Senator Astor was called he saidhe desired to explain the reason he and others refused to enter the conference yesterday. They had determined not to enter any snap conference such as that of yesterday. He also said if the two men nominated were elected it would throw House of Representatives into the hands of the Democrats. He voted for Roscoe Conkling. Senator McCarthy, when his name was called, said fortunately or unfortunately he was chairman of the Senate caucus committee which refused to enter into the joint caucus. He then agued that a majority had a right to call a caucus as had been done. He also spoke of the duty of the Legislature to fill vacancies in the United States Senate, and in reply to Mr. Astor referred to his vote for Crowley. He voted for Elbridge E. Lapham.
Senator Winslow called attention to

CONKLING SPEAKS AT LAST.

A Letter of Condelence to the Attorney-General-The Law on Murder. WASHINGTON, July 7.-The following correspondence has passed between Senator Conkling and Attorney General MacVeagh:

FIFTH AVENUE HOTEL, N. Y., July 5.

My dear sir: In the abhorrence with which all decent men alike shudder at the attempt to murder the President, I have given thought to the matter to which your attention may or may not have turned. Our criminal code treats premeditated homicide in all cases alike, irrespective of the victim. Murder being visited by the greatest pen-alty, perhaps no distinction between ulants are administered. I will not, one case and another could be founded like the telegram you cite in regard to on the public relations held by the per-the attempted assassination of the son slain, but in the case of an attempt when his life was assailed and he fell a President, say I am thankful the assasting to murder the broad distinction can be sin was not a Southern man, but I made between assaulting the life of an individual and the attempt to take a life of special value to the people. The shocking occurrence of Saturday, I think, demands that definition of punishment of the assaults aimed at high executive officers, whether successful or not, should be made thoroughly vig-orous. The man who attempts the life of the President, if morally responsible, commits an offence which the nation ought to guard against and punish by the exercise of all the powers civilized nations may employ. I suggest this as deserving of consideration.

My profound sympathies are with the President and with all of you every hour. The conflict of the reports keeps hope and fear striving with each other with nothing stable except the faith and trust that the worst is over. I wish you would express to the President my deepest sympathy in this hour should hush all discords and enlist all prayers for his safe deliverance. Please also give to Mrs. Garfield my most respectful condolence. Trusting that all will be well.

ROSCOE CONKLING. To this letter the Attorney-General yesterday responded as follows: Hon. Roscoe Conklnng, N. Y.: Thanks for your letter of the 5th, which has just reached me. Its suggestions will be carefully considered and its kind messages of sympathy will be conveyed to the President and Mrs. Garfield at the earliest opportunity.

An Automatic Track Tester. The Pensylvania Railroad has in use an automatic tnack tester which discovers faults in the tract not ordinarily appreciable to the eye, and makes a record of them which indicates their precise locality, and all this while the mafifteen to twenty-five miles an hour. It has the external appearance of a baggage car, but inside is fitted up with self-registering apparatus, electric clocks, &c. A bad joint between the rails registers itself by the jolt it causes to the deli-cately hung car. Errors of level in the track are recorded by pencils on ruled paper, and so nicely arranged that varlations of an eighth of an inch are made manifest. If the gauge is too narrow or the rails have spread, the fact is noted by another apparatus. An ingenious time and distance register enables the observer to locate the imperfections recorded. A machine of this kind kept constantly going over a railroad would be scarcely less careful than the

of danger to travel.

Joseph A. Bonham, Esq., the well known lawyer, 117 South Seventh street, Phiadelphia, thus relates his experience: "About two weeks ago I was seized with what the doctors called muscular rheumatism in my right leg. The leg below the knee was swollen until I could hardly stand upon it. I had seen St. Jacobs Oil advertised, and I sent to the drug store near my house, on the corner of Nineteenth and Master streets, for a bottle of it. I rubbed my leg with it that night and in a of high character and standing.

A. H. COLQUITT, Gov. of Georgia. Draper in voting also argued that if Messrs. Miller and Lapham were electshort time the pain seemed to go away. Next morning the swelling had shifted from under the ankle to the upper part of the knee. I applied the oil again and the swelling in a short time went away, leaving a very slight pain. I didn't use any more oil, as I thought the attack was all over. About a week later it appeared again in the same place. The leg swelled so badly that, after coming down town and walking several squares, I gave completely out. I went home, intending to try some French medicine, but I forgot to get it, and having a part of this bottle of St. Jacobs Oil in the house yet, I tried it again, bathing the limb thoroughly. When I got up in the morning the pain and the swelling were both almost gone, and after one more application I was as well as ever. and from that time to this I haven't been treu-bled." The happy owner of the Spencer Pharmacy, of Spencer, Mass., Mr. O. Weatherbee, writes: My customers speak very highly of the great German remedy, St. Jacobs Oil, it having always given satisfaction. One of them, Mr. Henry Belcher, has been greatly benefited by its use in a case of seyere rheumatism, and he refers to in terms of highest praise.
