New York had a highway robbery sensation last Friday, when three men in a wagon followed another wagon in which was a bookkeeper carrying a large amount of money to deposit in a bank, boarded it on one of the principal streets, put a revolver to the head of the bookkeeper, seized a package containing $9,600 in paper money and got away safely.

The New York Herald speaking of Mr. Garfield's progress says: "From that first moment he has not, so far as known to the public, been an instant on his feet, and his assumption of the erect posture will be looked for with curiosity and interest." The Universal Life Insurance Company, of New York, has collapsed. Its balance sheet shows a deficiency of $884,000. This was one of the "perfectly reliable" and "absolutely safe" companies. ANTI-PROPIRITION MISREPRE-SENTATION.

In discussing the prohibition question its opponents rely upon appeals to prejudice and the most arrant misrepresentation of its aims and objects.

Thus they throw dust into the eyes of the arrange of the control of the credulous, and lead them blindly to their destruction. It would be impossible to take up these misrepresentations in detail, in the space we have at our command, and notice all of them. but some of them we will notice fairly and briefly. We find an editorial in the Blue Ridge Blade which represents the anti-prohibition side of the question, and contains much if not all the socalled arguments employed in the cause which it advocates. The editor says:

"We maintain that you have no right, Divine or human, to regulate the appetites of men or dictate to them what they shall do with their own property. when they do not interfere with the rights of others, and that the cause of temperance can only be promoted by moral suasion, and not by coercion.

Let us see about this. Are there not laws to prevent druggists from selling poisons which are their property, not that they do, but may injure some one? Are there not laws in many States to prevent men from abusing their animals? Are there not game laws which prohibit the shooting of game, within certain [months? Are there not laws against carrying concealed weapons? Are there not laws against profane swearing on the streets or in public places. If the druggist can be prohibited from selling certain drugs or minerals because they are dangerous; the owner of a horse from using his horse as he pleases; the preventing of a profane man from indulging his propensity for profanity, the sportsman from going out at his pleasure and shooting game, from which it is feared she will not re- can't the people, in their sovereign capacity, say that the owner of liquor which does so much harm to the people shall not sell it? It might as well be argued that it is wrong to tax liquor tablishing a new telegraph system to because thus you indirectly interfere with the right of the people to drink it because taxation increases the price of Moral suasion.-Has not moral suapointed by the New York Board of sion been tried since intoxicating stimment houses and look after the children | seller in a community will make more and see that they have proper medical drunkards than all the moral suasionists of the universe could save. Moral suasion sounds nicely, but it is a weak subterfuge in the mouth of the advocate of free whiskey; and has proved an impotent antagonist of mighty rum. Moral suasion may influence some drinkers who have not contracted the habit, but it is powerless over him who has or over those who engage in the

and class legislation," says he.

The prohibition law is no sumptuary law. The law against carrying conce iled weapons is as much a sumptuaiv law as it is. Neither is there any class legislation in it. The class exists only in the imagination of those who appeal to class without any warrant or justifi-

"Such laws are not in conformity with the teachings of the Bible, and are in opposition to the first principles of free government."

We would be obliged to our friend of the Blade if he would point us out just where the prohibition act is in opposition to the teachings of the Bible. This would have more convincing force than the mere general assertion which hasn't is in opposition to the "first principles of free government." Is not society based on the surrender of certain natural rights, such surrender not being in opposition to free government but in furtherance of it? A man has a natural right to go naked, but he puts on clothes in civilized society in obedience to the commands of that society. A man has a natural right to do a hundred things which right he surrenders that society may exist and governments for his protection and the protection of other men be formed. In all civilized, and in uncivilized countries men must surrender judividual rights to the pub-

"If you pass a law specifying what man shall or shall not drink, one can be passed defining what he shall or shall not eat."

True. If it be found that eating any particular thing be productive of mischief as drinking liquor is that thing could be regulated or governed by law. There are in many places laws against the sale of spoiled food, tainted meats adulterated groceries, milk, &c., because they are injurious to health and productive of deadly disease. Here even what you shall eat is indirectly prescribed by law. But the writer in this panied by terriffic thunder and lightovershoots the mark as he does in other ming which added to the terrors of the instances, for the law does not say what you shall or shall not drink, it only says that intoxicating liquors shall not be made and sold and shall not be bought as a beverage. It does not say what you shall drink, it simply says you shall Murder and Robbery in Louisiana. not drink a certain thing, because that certain thing is full of danger to you

Then come a series of objections to the bill itself asserting that it will not house and his store. Two negroes nave been arrested on suspicion. The body was not discovered until Sunday mornaccomplish the object for which it is | ing, when it was found that the murintended, that if people want liquor they will send to other States for it, that it discriminates against the poor in favor of the rich, all of which we have heard over and over again from every anti-probitionist who discusses the subject in print or on the stump. If it be a law which is to operate sists. against our own distillers in favor of liquor dealers in other States why is it Trade street, Charlotte, N. C. that these dealers have been exerting "barrel," ug or bottle?" Very few. They would do without it rather than objection that prohibition has caused an increase of crime in the State of Maine, which objection has been proved false over and over again by the best of authority from official sources in that

There are doubtless defects in the bill, but with time, observation and experience these defects can be remidied and it is more the part of wisdom among those who pretend to be friends of temperence to support it and then correct its defects, than to stubbornly oppose and try to defeat it because in some particulars it may be defective.

SNAKE BITES. The snake is looming up as an important factor in the discussion of the prohibition question. He is a right-bower of the anti-prohibitionist. Without him we do not know how the average stumper for the ardent could get along. We don't mean the snake in the boots, but the regular, thoroughbred, "pizen sarpint," the bitist of the deadly fang, which goes for mortality with venomous intent and buryeth his nippers in flesh human. When all this happens, and the aforesaid snake goes for you with those fatal fangs then what are you going to do for whiskey, that great Big Fire in Syracuse-Loss $300,000. specific against snake bites, if the prohibition law goes into effect? Great

We are led into these reflections on snakes by the fact that they figure so principal losers are as follows: Rosen run to all the paying points in the with the freedom of that traffic, and extensively now on the anti-prohibition Bros., shoe dealers, loss $30,000, insurstump, every speaker having a stock of them to suit the occasion. Jim Harris dealers, loss $35,000, insurance $20,000; them to suit the occasion. Jim Harris in his speeches Monday called special $50,000, insurance $40,000; Giles Everattention to the snake and put it thus: son, private books, loss $10,000, no inin his speeches Monday called special and your neighbor sold you a pint of whiskey to take for that snake-bite, he tuck, saloon, loss $4,000, insurance could be arrested, fined and imprisoned $3,000; Chas. H. Powers, druggist, loss under the prohibition act for selling you that liquor and saving your life." He presented this as an entirely new point, but he knew better. He knew that under the United States revenue law that man could be arrested now for selling liquor without a United States license. He knew also that under State law that man could be arrested now for selling liquor without a State li-"We are opposed to sumptuary laws | cense, and he knew that under county regulations that man could be arrested now for selling that liquor without a county license. In other words that he would be just as liable to arrest and punishment now as he would be after the passage of the prohibition act. Why then all this tomfoolery, sophistry and bald-faced misrepresentation to deceive the colored people, who know no better and have confidence enough in their speakers to believe them? It is bad enough in colored men to be leading their people astray for a consideration, but they should not deceive and humbug them in this way.

P. S.-We'd like to know how many snakes there are in North Carolina this year, anyhow. They must have increased rapidly since the prohibition a single line of scripture as a base to act became a matter of discussion, and rest upon. We fail to see also where it they go around trying to bite folks too but it is singular that they are all antiprohibitionists that are afraid of being bitten.

If the following reported extract from some remarks, made by Warren Miller, as furnished the New York Tribune by its Albany correspondent, be true, the country will have no cause to regret that he takes the place of "me too" Platt in the Senate:

"Certain men have remained at the head of the Republican party in this State solely by keeping alive the Southern question. Year after year the speeches they have made and the political pamphlets they have had printed have rung the same tune of distrust in in the South. Last fall they adopted the same policy. I received pamphlet after pamphlet charging all sorts of things in the South. But the people would not read them. The Southern question was as dead as Julius Cæsar."

The little town of New Ulm, located about sixty miles from St. Paul, Minnesota, was visited by a fearful cyclone last Friday, which swept about a hundred houses away and left several hundred people homeless. It was accompanied by terriffic thunder and light-ning which added to the terrors of the scene while the wind tore houses asunder and filled the air with hoards, singles, &c. Thirteen persons are befleved to be killed and many seriously wounded.

BURNETT'S COCCAINE.

A LADY'S HAIR SAVED BY ITS USE. Burnett's Cocosine will keep the hair in a strong and healthy condition by stimulating the roots of the hair and restoring the natural action upon which its growth depends. Twenty years ago a single bottle saved a lady's hair in a desperate ease where every other treatment had falled; and since that early success thousands of cases of baldness, dandruff, loss of hair, and irritation of the scalp, have yielded to this remedy. The superiority of Burnett's Flavoring Extracts consists in their perfect purity and great strength. BECAUSE it adds to personal beauty by restor-ing color and lustre to faded or gray hair, and is beneficial to the scalp, is why Parker's Pair Bal-sam is such a popular dressing.
