ROSCOE RETURNS THANKS.

Conkling got up from the dust into which Blaine sent him sprawling, shook himself and sent a dispatch to his faithful band of Spartans-New York Spartans-for their heroic devotion and superlative stickativeness to their magnificent chief, Roscoe, of Utica. He shall never forget it. No never. That noble band of Spartans didn't fall like the illustrious three hundred after whom they are called, for they went over to the enemy and surrendered, deserted their chief in the supreme hour of trial and saw his head lopped off on Jim Blaine's guillotine. Had they been Spartans, thoroughbred. and not merely New York time-serving Spartans, they would not have deserted the Utica chief as shamelessly as they did after the fight they had made, under pretence of harmony, and gone to handshaking with the haughty, uncompromising foe. When Conkling addresses them as Spartans we can't help entertaining the suspicion that he is indulging in a bit of sarcasm.

They were satisfied, no doubt, that to elect him. was impossible but they have known that for weeks, and if they were actuated by principle in the desperate fight they waged for him up to the last day the question may be asked how it was that such a sudden change came over the spirit of the dream of this "noble Spartan band" as to make them so suddenly desert and go over in a body to the enemy. Were they not as much bound on principle to stand by their cause and their leader on the day they deserted as they were on any praheir in John Green, a ship carpenter, in vious day? They kept up the fight week after week, kept up the deadlock, at a cost to the State of about $1,500 a day, as a matter of principle, and then all at once abandoning principle and their leader turned an unexpected summersault and lit right in the camp of the enemy and went to handshaking, and then proceeded to arrange for the funeral of Roscoe. They may be "Spartans," a "noble band," etc., but if so it didn't take much to make a Spartan in Albany. Having stuck to Conkling as long as they did, they ought to have stuck to him to the last, defeated an election when they could not elect him, and sent the whole matter to the people for final settletent. That would look as if they were really contending for what they beif they had some of the "Spartan" in them. But they didn't do it. They showed the white feather after all their war paint and war dance and brandishing of war clubs and scalping knives, and made a disgraceful surrender, notwithstanding the grandiloquent dispatch of their vanquished chief, which was written to cover his humiliation, and not as an expression of his honest sentiments. His private opinion of his Spartans would no doubt read very differently.

PROHIBITION IN FORCE.

It is a fact that prohibition is now in force over about one fourth of North Carolina. There is scarcely an institution of learning of any description, where the sale of liquor is not forbidden within a given radius of miles. There are many factories, many mines, and many churches where it is similarly prohibited. There are several counties, many townships, and a large number of towns and cities where it is prohibited. Now who ever heard it charged that the prohibition enactments as applied in these instances was any invasion of popular rights or liberty? Who ever heard of any protest or opposition to such enactments?

Quietly, without contest or excitement the laws have been passed, prohibiting the sale of liquor over a large extent of territory, and now when it is will be as unseemly as they are unneproposed to apply the same law to the remaining portion of the State it is discovered that it is a fearful outrage and a terrible invasion of our liberties. If it was right to prohibit it in one-fourth of the State is it not right to prohibit it in all? If the act as applied to onefourth of the State was no invasion of popular liberty, how can they make it appear so in'the remainder of this State. They are no new thing, and when antiprohibitionists get up now and decry what they denominate these modern innovations they show that they are not fully conscious of what they are Now, in this connection, we would like to ask the candid anti-prohibitionist one-fourth of the State, it will not be a fourths? That the people in the onefourth are satisfied with it is evidenced by the fact that no effort has been made to have the laws repealed, and such a thing is never thought of. Absolute prohibition also prevails over the entireState on certain days, on Sundays and on election days. If it is good on those days, and no anti-prohibitionist will assert that it ing days? The same reason that caused the enactment for these special days applies as forcibly to all the days of the

SKILL IN THE WORKSHOP.

POLITICAL MANTRESTO

The Republican Party Arraigned for Betrayal of Public Trusts, and for an Unholy Contest Over the Spoils

ALBANY, N. Y., July 23.—The Democratic members of the Legislature, through their joint caucus committee, have issued an address to the Democratic citizens of the State of New York, and to the citizens of the State without distinction to party, in which they say at great expense to the State and great cords and quarrels in the Republican majority have separated us from our homes and business from the beginning of the year to nearly the closing days of the 2nd month of summer, or for nearly 200 days. The chief cause of this uncalled for detention was the quarrel with the President of the United States on one side and the Vice-President and two Senators from the State of New York on the other. The source of this discord was a question of official patronage or spoils of office. A collector of the Port of New York was forced to resign in the midst of his term of service from a place where he was serving with general acceptance to the public and appointed to a place abroad uncalled for by his friends or by the public, in which he has no experience. This change, against which the merchants of New York protested in large num-bers, was made in total disregard of civil service reform and was not called for by any principle of public duty nor the interest of public service. The purpose of the act was to reward those who had been successful in securing a particular inomination and to punish those who had resisted a leading member and members of the National Republican Convention claiming a right of third term of Executive service for previous president. Referring to the resignation of the two Senators, they say: The man who inspired this resignation was the senior Senator of the State who had been three times elected to the United States Senate by one party of the State, whose longer service he now refused, and simply owing to the elsewhere. The useless resignation known by the vulgar but expressive lieved to be right. That would look as names of stalwarts and half-breeds, have governed the Senate, the Assembly, the Republican party and the State through the whole system. The people who chose the Legislature of 1881 never contemplated the possible result of the resignation of two Senators in Congress. The State had honored each of them with an election and expected from them faithful and complete service. The appeals made to the people by the Democratic minority were met by the insulting declaration that a possible choice of Democratic Senators in Congress would be a public calamity to the State and this after just electing ThomasC Platt as the successor of Francis Kernan, and after following the succession with the choice of a man named Warner Miller, a member of the present and previous house of Representaives, who was only conspicuous as the direct and the present beneficiary of one of the worst monopolies in the country, and where he has supported that monopoly by his voice and influence, and with the threat that other public interests should suffer if his splints in wood pulp in the manufacture of paper were not protected. One cause of the long session of the Legislature has been the selection of a candidate by the Republican caucus who are members of the present Congress. Most distinguished and capable men of the dominant party not in public place, apart from Mr. Conkling, including men like Messrs. Fish, Wheeler and Rogers and others, who have served the State with ability, have had to give place to two men elected to Congress. and their nomination made the excuse for passing a law to fill vacancies made by their election and no other reason. These special elections thus provoked

The men elected can't take their seats before December, whereas the general election takes place early in November and all the votes will be counted before Congress can meet. This action is without precedent and without necessity and moreover uncalled for and an enormous expense to the people of the districts and of the State, besides the expenditure for federal marshals and inspectors, and a great inconvenience to the people by special registry of voters and by the assembling of the people at unusual times and places. The whole senatorial discussion at Albany resolves itself into three most discreditable conclusions:

First-The mistrust of the people of State on the part of the Republican majority in the Legislature. Second-A quarrel over the spoils of office in the two or three Republican factions, with a practical contempt for every principle of what is known and recognized as civil service reform.

Third-by the abuse of power from ong use and misuse, the least capable persons have been drawn from a public branch of the Congress of the United

Another and most disgraceful transaction belonging to this Republican Legislature is the evidence of bribery and corruption, established upon the evidence of members of the dominant party. A leading Republican Senator of one faction is charged by a member is not, why is it not good for the remain- of the Assembly (of the same party and same district) of the other faction with offering and paying him $2,000 for his senatorial vote, and the money was placed in the possession of a special committee and is now in the hands of | & the State comptroller.

Beyond this fact is the circumstance of large sums of large sums of money being used by prominent Republicans pending the contest and, as many beieve, intended to control the result of the elections. The statement of New York witnesses that millions of people have been deeply wronged and disgrac-ed both by the Republican Senators' action in Washington, and by the action of the Republican party at Albany. In the first place the Chief Magistrate of the Government for failing to put in practice the principles of executive right and authority in the choice of public offices nearly lost his life. This sad and terrible crime came not alone through the personal madness of a single man, but from that personal fanaticism which was and is the fruit of greed for public office, and of false and dangerous political syldence. Now, if ever is the time to teach all men that public offices are the property of the public offices are the property of the people, and that places of official trust can only be rightfully distributed to men of neble purpose, of wise experience, and of unqualified fitness for the work to be performed. The Democratic party of the State desires to inculcate and enforce the doctrines with which and enforce the doctrines with which the Democratic party came into existence, when Mr. Jefferson declared the only qualification for office rested upon a wise, safe and patriotic platform, of personal capability, of personal honor and fidelity to the constitution.

The President is now asleep and his pulse remains at about 100. It is the opinion of the attending surgeons that the chill and subsequent fever this morning were ty at some point along the track of the bullet, but this cannot be positively asserted until after the evening examination. Dr. Bliss says that he has in his practice had cases where formation of pus cavity in the wound was followed by much severer chill and higher fever than the President has had today, and that it is not necessarily an alarming feature in a case of this kind. At 1:30 p. m. the President's symptoms were more favorable. At that hour the attending surgeons telegraphed to Drs. Hamilton and Agnew to come to Washington at once for consultation. At 2:20 p. m. THE undersigned respectfully inform the public that they have engaged in the brick business, and are now making a superior quality of handmade brick. They have in connection with their yard an improved Compress Machine, by which they make Pressed Brick equal to the Richmond brick. Any one desiring to build will find it to their interest to give us a call before purchasing elsewhere.
