MADISON'S "MONTPELIER."

What the Historic Place That Will be Sold on Thursday Looks Like. From the Washington Post.

"Montpelier," well known as the home of President Madison and one of the historic places of Virginia, is advertised to be sold at public sale on July 28. The homes of the several Presidents of the United States contributed by Virginia have all been regarded with considerable national interest, but except Mount Vernon, the home of Washington, comparatively little is known of them by the public. Montpelier is beautifully situated, in Orange county, about eighty miles south of Washington, on the line of the Virginia Midland Railroad and in what is known as the Piedmont section of Virginia—a section noted for fertility of soil and picturesqueness of scenery. Although near the base of the Southwest Mountains it is sufficiently elevated to furnish a commanding view of the fine rolling country by which it is surrounded, as well as the Blue Ridge Mountains, which rise in the distance. The estate comprises over 1,000 acres of land. Immediately about the homestead are eighty W. H. BAILEY.

Canadian Preacher who Comes Forward to Champion Brother Jasper's Views.

Baltimore News. The Rev. C. A. Johnson, a colored preacher of Hamilton, Canada, editor of a paper called The British Dion, lecured last night in a New York colored church. His subject was: "Does the Sun Move? or the Science of the Heavenly Bodies and the Revolutionary Powers of the Earth and Sun." He said that he was not of the opinion that the earth revolves. He could not see why the divisions of day and night could not be "produced by other causes than the revolutionary powers of the earth." He also doubted very much about this earth being round He thought the ancients knew as much about it as we, and they said the earth was flat. In support of the belief that the earth is not round, he quoted from "St. John, the Revelator," who speaks of a number of angels "standing at the four corners of the earth holding the winds that it might not blow upon the earth." How could the earth be round if it had corners? He would not say how many corners the earth had, but he said: "I know no better way than to take the Word of God as we find it." The lecturer was disposed to believe that the planets are inhabited like the earth. As to the views of the Rev. Mr. Jasper, of Richmond, that the sun moves, the lecturer said: "Very many people thought that Mr. Jasper was content to believe just as Mr. Jasper believes. I think that he was quite right when he made the assertion that he did. One proof that he was right is the motion of the spots on the sun. Let any one observe these spots and they without thanking the clergy- sun's motion and that of the moon. Joshua commanded the sun and moon to stand still in the heavens. Would Joshua have done that if they were already still? Again, when King Hesekiah had no confidence in the Lord, is it not recorded in Scripture that the Lord moved the sun back ten degrees? Then we see that the sun rises and sets. The Scriptures speak of 'from the rising of the sun to the going down of the same.' That means actual motion. Study up this subject, my brethren, and you will find it very hard to get over the plain teachings of the Scriptures."

Nigger ys. Ants.

Macon Telegraph and Messenger, July 23, A little darkey, whose bare feet have for several months been sufferers from the attacks of the small black ants which infest nearly all yards, struck upon a plan to exterminate them recently, which was original and partially successful. He got possession of several small vials with large mouths, and filling them half full of Kerosene oil. buried them, with the mouths even with the ground. The result was remarkable. The ants, already disturbed, darted about in the most excited manner, and every one that struck the vials went in and perished almost instantly. The smooth surface of the glass lips rendered slippery by the oil afforded them no hold whatever. A Telegraph reporter timed them for sixty seconds, A new telegraph company has been and counted thirty-seven falls in that formed by well-known capitalists in space of time. It was difficult to understand how it was that so many of the insects found the bottles until it became necessary to empty them, which was in about four hours. But about the larger bottle. The degree of intelligence displayed by the ants was wonderful. They no longer rushed to the fatal opening and plunged in with their burdens. Experience had taught them better sense. Around the glass mouth of the bottle had been built a wall of sand, and at the top of this wall the workers deposited their grains, suffering them to fall into the opening below. An investigation of the bottle showed but few ants within, though it was nearly full of sand. The experiments and results were viewed by a reporter, and occurred just as described. Let any one suffering from the little pests try it.

An Umbreila as a Lightning-Rod. Richmond (Va.) State. Among the many pranks of the light ning during the storm of yesterday af-ternoon it is reported that a citizen, whose name it is unnecessary to mention, was standing on the Allegheny Railroad track, on the Basin, with his umbrella raised, when that tremendous flash came, was suddenly made aware of the fact that the rain was pitilessly pelting him. Looking upwards he found that the point of his umbrella had a blue streak upon it, one of the steel ribs was melted and the whole top of his rain protector burned. Persons at some distance who chanced to be looking in that direction distinctly saw the flash and were sure the gentle-man was killed, until they saw him quietly lower his wreck and scoot for the nearest shelter. Dark Clothes and Disease, It may not, perhaps, he known that a man wearing dark clothes is more liable to infection from contagious disease tress, whose age is measured by centuries. At the base of the hill there is a valley watered by a parennial stream, which is capable of being converted at an inconsiderable expense into a mountain lake, which would materially enhance the beauty of the landscape. The present garden was located by Mr. Madison and occupies a terraced hill-side about 200 wards in the rear of the same at the infection from contagious disease than he who wears light-colored garments, because particles which emanate from diseased or decaying bodies are much more readily absorbed by dark than light fabrics. Reer Statistics. Statistics laid before the Congress of Brewers which recently met at Versailles show that there are in Europe about 40,000 breweries, which produce annually nearly 2,250,000,000 gallons of malt liquor. Great Britain alone produces a third of the entire quantity, or to be exact, 785,017,002 gallons. Prussia comes next with 318,579,998 gallons; Bavaria, 260,757,002 gallons; Austria, 245,975,158 gallons, and France, 155,980,000 gallons. It will thus be seen that the Teutonic nations are eminently the beer producers, as they are also the principal beer drinkers; where wine is to be had nearly as cheaply as beer, the malt liquor is not preferred. The proportion in which beer is consumed varies very much. Bavaria heads the list with fifty-four gallons per head per annum, or rather over one gallon a week. Belgium is next with thirty gallons, and England is about the same, namely, twenty-nine gallons, or roundly speaking, something over half a gal-lon per head. In Germany, excluding Bavaria, the average consumption is nineteen gallons, and from this a great drop follows, to nine gallons in Scotland, and eight and a half in Ireland, where whiskey is preferred. Austria consumes only six gallons of beer per head, and France only four.
