"Well, I got $40 for a case and I borrowed $30."

HE VOICE OF NORTH CAROLINA'S WOMEN: Voters of North Carolina! This day the fate of North Carolina is in your hand. You are to say whether intoxicating liquor is to be put out of North Carolina, or whether it is to remain, to continue and increase its work of destruction, misery and death. And this day, the women of North Carolina, mothers and wives, daughters and sisters, send up a prayer to God for pro-hibition. This day we appeal to you, our natural protector, champion and friend, and ask you to free us from the curse that comes by intoxicating liquor. With all the earnestness and emotion of woman's heart, we ask, we implore you to rise in your manhood, to do your duty to yourself, your home, your State, to us, and to God; to choose the right, to vote for prohibition!

Prohibition will make homes that are now sad and desolate, happy and prosperous. It will save the young and struggling from temptation. It will reoffer from eastern parties of $2,500,000 for his wonderful silver mine. Kentucky is feeling one of the effects claim hundreds of drunkards. It will of failing to punish desperadoes. Her save thousands of dollars to the State by the reduction of crime. It will ele-wate and protect society. It will do good to all, and evil to none. It will honor God, and bring His blessing on our State. Then, we beg, we implore you to vote for prohibition! strongest inducements fail to attract immigration from the old world. Apalachicola, Fla., has a population of over 2,000 souls, forty or fifty vessels engaged in the sponge and fishing trades, and five large mills with a capacity of over 250,000 feet of lumber per day. Only two mills have been running until very recently, but about 20,000,000 feet of lumber and timber have been shipped in the past year, and the sponge, oyster and fish trade has amounted to over $500,000. Husband! In sickness, in poverty, or in prosperity, your wife is alike your faithful friend and comforter. This day she turns her pleading eyes to you, and begs for prohibition. When Conkling first began to use and reward him the 'gray mare was still the stronger herse.' Tom remembers this, and in his congratulatory telegram to the new Senator very neatly worked his wife's name in the dispatch, and got the reporters to print it, too."

Mr. Cicero W. Harris, writing to the Goldsboro Messenger from Washington, mentions the discovery or publication in the "Archaelogia Americana" of four left. And nobly do you repay it. Toil and sacrifice are counted as naught for our sake. It is your joy and pride to minister to our comfort and our pleasure. This day we ask of you a boon that will fill our Learts with grateful joy. It is not money, nor toil, nor sacrifice, it is prohibition.

Voter! From the rugged mountains of the west, from the wave washed slopes of the east, from the north and from the south of North Carolina, there comes a sound, swelling and surging, and deepening. It is the heart-cry, the soul-cry of North Carolina's women. And the burden of that earnest, passionate cry is, sionate cry is,

mentions the discovery or publication in the "Archaelogia Americana" of four letters written to Sir Philip Sydney, and Sir Francis Washington, by Ralph Lane, the Governor of Sir Walter Raleigh's colony at Roanoke, the first English settlement in America. The letters are dated in August and September, 1865, and are mainly devoted to complaints of Admiral Richard Greenville but they incidentally tell of the massacre of the first colony at Roanoke, who it seems were set upon by order of King Powhatan of Virginia—though they were "out of his territory." Gov. Lane says seven of the first colony were preserved alive to work the copper mines owned by the Indians on the upper Roanoke. Sunset on the 4th of August, and prohibition defeated, and that cry will sink into a great sob of agony, a quivering mean, a hopeless wall. And the dark drapery of despair must fold about the sickened hearts of North Carolina's women. Voter! which shall it be? The eye of God is upon you!

The Hebrews were really divided into three general classes—the orthodox, the reformed and the ultra-reformed. All the leading congregations of this citybelonged to the reformed, but Rev. Dr. Kohler was an ultra-reformer. There are ultra-reformers in this city, and it is only among that class that this change will take place. On this subject each person has a right to follow his own convictions, and the best Jews will continue to observe Saturday.

The Fortnightly Review, always high authority in French affairs, sums up what France has lately done in finance. The expiring Parliament has remitted over $55,000,000 annually of taxes, has redeemed $200,000,000—to be expended redeemed $200,000,000—to be expended in ten years—to public works, which is $8,000,000 mere than was spent per annum by the "Empire" under Louis Napoleon, and closes up its accounts with a surplus of $10,000,000. Since it has got its war mittens on it has also appropriated $4,000,000 for the Tunis war. This besides giving Algeria $400,000 for the relief of the famine stricken people. the way often the way often
