It seems that it was in contemplation at one time, by Grant, to place Conk-ling on the Supreme bench as Chief Justice. A difficulty, however present-ed itself which is explained thus by the St Louis Globe-Democrat, a Conkling organ: "He was about to be appointed with his own consent, some years ago by General Grant, but it was found that he was disqualified by a clause of the constitution which provides that no Senator or member shall, during the term for which he shall have been elected, be appointed to any office which that have been created or the emolucreased during his term of office. WHAT IT WILL EFFECT.

When the sun set yesterday the fate of the prohibition question was decided by the people at the polls, whether for or against, the figures have not yet re- show, that it has gone against prohibiyealed. But however it may have been decided, the agitation of it and the discussions before the people have not be merely guess work if attempted. been fruitless. Good will come of it and much good too. If the measure has carried, of course it means practically an end to the whiskey traffic. That there will be some of it carried on in a clandestine way may be expected, but it will be insignificant compared with what it has been. It will be the duty of the officers of the law to see that it is carried out in good faith, and they will be expected to perform their duty. But should the decision be against the law the agitation of it will still not have been without its good effects. People who have heretofore given but little thought or attention to the subject have been induced to reflect upon it and have been impressed with the great evils that grew out of the indiscriminate traffic in liquor. It has been the universal theme of debate throughout the State and all that could be said for or against it has been said. Even the opponents of prohibition have, while opposing the act, proclaimed themselves friends of temperance and in favor of judicious license laws and wholesome restrictions. They have even condemned the indiscriminate total abolition that it ought to be regulated by well-defined and rigid laws. That much has been gained anyway, and that is a great gain.

Those who advocated prohibition will hold them to these concessions and in the event of failure to carry prohibition will demand of the law-making powers such restrictions as experience and judgment may dictate. They have a right to demand this and they will do it. In their struggle against rum the people were honest and in earnest; their opposition arose out of no mere emotional sentiment, but out of a deep conviction of right, and out of a sincere desire to abate an evil which they regarded as one of the greatest of all the evils that afflict our people. Not in any spirit of hostility to those engaged in Sunday visitors to Coney Island, N. the traffic did they act. The war was Y, average 125,000. It takes 200,000 not against the men who made and dealt in it but against the thing, indulgence in which brought so much of sorrow and of ruin to the sons and daughters of this and other States. They have resolved that this thing shall not rule and ruin as it has been ruling and ruining in the past, that it shall be forever wiped out, and if that cannot be that it shall be placed within bounds where it shall be powerless to destroy as it has destroyed heretofore, powerless to dictate as it has dictated heretofore. It may or may not enter into the politics of the future. That depends much upon the course pursued by those hibition in the past campaign. If they earnest when they announced themselves in favor of judicious restriction laws, and advocate the adoption of such laws, there may be no occasion for the question becoming an issue in the future, but if they forget their declarawere so thoroughly intoxicated as to be | tions, or prove untrue to them then the issue will be fairly and squarely made, and friends of the cause will demand the election of men whose record on that question they can endorse, and who will reflect their sentiments when calls the attention of her busines men elected. DYNAMITE AS A MOULDER OF

engaged in the effort to influence public opinion on both sides of the Atlantic against the agitators of the Irish movement by charging them with importing infernal machines into England for the purpose of destroying life and property, by means of which the Nihilists of Russia have become so celebrated of late, and identifying them with the Nihilists. Whether the Irish leaders in this country or in Great Britain had anything to do with these infernal machines or not, or whether they purpose to adopt the dynamite plan of warfare, of course we have no means of knowing. They may or may not be guilty of the charges alleged against them.

It should be remembered, however, that the commonest weapons used against people struggling against es-The Detroit Free Press points out that a first class passenger can go from that a first class passenger can go from tablished power are false charges and without its share. THE ELECTION VETEBBAY.

Up to the hour of going to press the reports of the election throughout the State are mearge, but still sufficient to tion by a large majority—just how large it will be is difficult to say, and would The points heard from are along the lines of railroads, where the organization on both sides was most complete, the canvass most active and consequently the vote cast largest. All these points, so far as heard from, give anti-prohibition majorities indicating, if there be no reduction of the figures by returns from interior and remote counties, a majority ranging from 25,000 to 40,000, but it is not only possible but probable that those counties lying at a distance from railroad lines will give a light vote with small majorities either way. We think that it will be found that the colored vote, under the manipulation of the chairman of the Republican Executive Committee went pretty solidly against prohibition, while there was a large falling off in the white vote. To the almost solid colored vote may be attributed the defeat of the measure. It is useless now to discuss the causes of defeat. It is a defeat, and emphatic enough for all practical purposes. Those who sustained the measure have the satisfaction of knowing that the State is no worse off than she was before, and that if she is no better off it was not their fault.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, 12.30 p. m.-Doctor Bliss authorizes the statement that the President is having an excelent day. The 12.30 examination has been made with the following result: pulse 96; temperature and respiration normal. The patient continues to take increasing quantities of nourishment and is daily gaining his strength. All reports of unfavorable changes should be discredited unless they have official authentication. The President's condition at this hour is better than at any time since his injury.

UNOFFICIAL BULLETIN.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, 4.30 P. M .- Dr Bliss reports that this is the very best lay the President has had since his injury. He has had no fever, ate quite a hearty breakfast of beef-steak, potatoes and toast at 11 a. m., and has been comfortable all day. The weather is very warm again but the refrigerating machines in the basement furnish an abundant supply of dry air at a tem-perature of 52, and the atmosphere of the President's room is kept at about 75 degrees, which is found to suit the patient best.

Virginia Democratic Convention, RICHMOND, VA., Aug. 4.—The Conservative Democratic State convention was called to order at 12 m.

Prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Hoge of the Presbyterian church. J. N. Stubbs, of Gloucester, was elected temporary chairman and J. Bell Bigger as temporary secretary. Both were unanimously elected. Mr. Stubbs on taking the chair made a short, stirring speech acknowledging the compliment and claiming a glorious victory for the party in the coming election. A resolution was adopted providing that each district delegation propose the names of three members for each of the following committees: on credentials, on permanent organization and on resolutions and platforms.

Also three members from each disrict to constitute a State committee. After a half hour recess several delegates reported and the above mention ed committees were formed. Another recess was then taken to 3 o'clock p. m. The body reconvened at 3.13 when the the committee on permanent organiza-tion reported as follows: President, Hon. Thos. S. Bocock; vice-president, Thos. Croxton, of Essex; L. R. Watts, Portsmouth; Gen. Peyton S. Wise, Rich-mond, B. S. Powell, Brunswick, Gen. Jubal A. Early, Lynchburg, Hon. Jno. T. Harris Rockingham, P. P. Barbour, Orange, Wm. Ellis, Montgomery, and C. G. Holland, Danville. The report was adopted. Chas, R. Jones.

Salisbury official: Prohibition, 150; anti-prohibition, 483. Meagre reports from the county indicate a three-fourth honor you have confered upon me in selecting me to preside over the deliberations of this convention-a convention which whether you look to number and character of the members of which it is composed, or the ends it was sent here to accomplish, must be long remembered as one of the most import ant party conventions ever assembled in the State—and gentlemen permit me to congratulate you upon the brightening auspices under which you have assembled; a divine providence in its mercy has already given us assurance that the husbandmen will secure a fair share of the fruits of the earth as the reward for his year's labor; day after day minerals are discovered in different parts of the State, which by their bright and laughing beauty make glad the hearts of men. Under such circumstances what manner of men ought we to be?-pure in thought, wise in council, firm in action. Every resolve we should make in reference to our line of action on public questions should be characterized by justice, moderation and firmness, and all our intercourse with each other should be marked by courtesy, kindness and brotherly love. Above all we must renember that righteousness exalts a na tion but sin is a reproach to any people. Actuated by such convictions and governed by such policy, what may not such a conviction accomplish in such a State? I give it to you as a great lesson of my life, which is now neither short nor uneventful, that in the long race results are not to be accomplished by corrupt means. Not by tricks not by corrupt means. Not by tricks, not by artifices, not by unnatural usages not by corrupt coalitions—noble ends must be attained by noble means, and if we prove ourselves wise and prudent if we prove ourselves wise and prudent now, and energetic and brave in the coming canvass, I will say, without claiming the spirit or wearing the garb of a prophet, that on the ides of November we will achieve a victory which in its thoroughness and completeness will only be surpassed by the magnificence and brilliancy of its results; results which beginning at the election and continuing on through long years, will mark the history of our State with bright lines of glory, which neither bright lines of glory, which neither time nor circumstances will change which neither adversity nor presperity will ever eradicate, but which will stand as a monument to our prudence and as a monument to our prudence and to the grandness and importance of our cause.

The committee on credentials submitted a partial report, which was laid on the table.

The committee on resolutions and platform announced that they were not yet ready to report.

A resolution to adjourn to this evening was then adopted.
