The crater floor was an uneven plain of volcanic ash and scoria, with many little fumaroles or blow holes, through which hot sulphur vapors came wheezing out, while every few minutes there was beneath our feet a smart trembling and a low, dull rolling roar. The smoke of vapor began to thicken as we went along and we soon found the cause. We were stopped short by a great lake of steaming water, quite filling this end of the crater, and being, as we could see when the clouds lifted, nearly half a mile from either side. The water was too hot to comfortably bear the hand in it, and was further insupportable to either touch or taste

The water of the lake was of a milky opaque cast, but we could feel with our oars that it was in most places not over ten feet deep. When he had undressed and his wife thought he was going to bed he turned to her and said, "Come and kiss me once before I say goodbye," She well knew the meaning of those few words, for she had often heard her unhappy husband say he would end his own life.
