THE PRESIDENT'S CONDITION. Yesterday, the sixth week had passed since President Garfield was wounded Since then daily, at regular intervals we have had "official" and unofficial bulletins describing his condition and progress. The reader must have remarked that the uniform tone of these bulletins has been hopeful, and when backsets occur, they are referred to as not to be unexpected, and as exciting no serious apprehensions. The doctors shrink from admitting that there has been or is any real cause for alarm, and have evidently so worded their communications to the public as to suppress fears and keep up confidence. They have evidently not made a true, plain statement of the case, or they themselves have been deceived and have been ignorant of their patient's true condition. It would be perhaps more just to suppose them ignorant than deceitful. It will be remarked, too, that while there are four of them in attendance daily, when anything unusual occurs they telegraph for Drs. Hamilton and Agnew, the latter of whom has performed the surgical operations up to this time. One or the other of these distinguished physicians has been in attendance since the President's relapse of two weeks ago, and the name of either one of them is appended to the bulletins sent out.

Notwithstanding the fact that six weeks have intervened, the President still lies as helpless as an infant, his food being simply liquids, with an occasional taste of some solid food, an occurrence so worthy of notice that it is specially mentioned in the bulletins. It is conceded that the effort has not been made to remove the ball because in his prestrate condition he was not strong enough to bear the operation, and yet he must, instead of gaining, be losing strength every day. The amount of food he takes is so insignificant that his strength must be wasting day after day. The surgeons admit this when they tell us that the daily high fever is in consequence of weakness, a fever which keeps up, and even at this late day ranges from 98 to 108, which would seem to be anything but a satisfactory condition. We would like to believe otherwise, but from all the lights before us, we cannot see anything very encouraging in his progress, as the bulletins call it. He may recover, and we earnestly trust he will, but there is enough of uncertainty in his case to excite the gravest apprehensions.

ONE DAY'S RECORD.

Northern papers of the Radical persuasion are fond of telling their readers what a wicked place the South is, representing it as a section of lawlessness, bowie knives and bad whiskey. But they would have to look with all the eyes they have and could berrow for a place in the South that could hold a light to this one day's record of crime in Troy, N., Y., as published by one of its own papers: "The Stephentown homicide," "Sneak thieves and burglars at work," "Carrie Langley drinks four ounces of laudanum,' "A desperate old man sets his dog at a neighbor and attempts to shoot him," "A nest of thieves broken up-one of them shot while escaping," "Criminal suit against a church," "It may be murassayed in Boston was found worth der-beaten by her husband," "Juvenile thieves committing depredations," "Getting ready for a murder trial," 'Resisting arrest and abusing an officer," "Robbed at the International Hotel," "Not drowned but drunk," "Robbed of his watch," An early spree on a stolen keg of lager," "One drunken man assaults two others who are asleep," "Throwing a teapot at his wife," "A piece of cloth stolen," "The Myers child -the girl secreted," "Minor police

AN IMPORTANT DISCOVERY FOR

The Atlanta Constitution, of Tuesday, contained a most interesting account of the borng of an artesian well by Mr. John P. Fort, of Micon, and his success in finding an unlimited supply of the coolest and purest water the inhabitants of that section of the State ever slaked their thrist with.

One of the great drawbacks to Southwest Georgia was the impurity of water, which caused sickness, and made the preservation of health almost an impossibility. The consequence was that one of the naturally most fertile regions was shunned, but comparatively few people being willing to encounter disease and death by malaria and the unhealthy water they were compelled to drink. A strata of bluish pipe clay underlaid the top soil, and through this the water of the wells percolated and became impregnated with decayed vegetable matter and decomposed remains of marine deposits which abound beneath the upper crust in all that section, and was at for neither man nor beast to drink.

Mr. Fort, reasoning from his knowledge of the geological formation, concluded that by boring through these upper stratas of clay till he came to the bed rock formations dipping from the mountains, he would strike the under less than yesterday. At the evening currents of pure water following these rock courses, and the result has justified his reasoning. Notwithstanding the discouraging experience of others who had attempted the same thing in a small way and gave up in despair, and also professors of geology who were supposed to be perfectly posted in such matters, he began to bore on a farm known as Hickory Level, and at a depth of 530 feet he secured a supply of from six to eight gallons per minute of water as pure and sparkling as any that ever flowed from the earth, bursting up ten feet high from the mouth of the

His success, of course, demonstrates the fact that a plentiful supply of water may be thus secured, and the probabilities now are that that section of Georgia will abound in artesian wells, and one of the great obstacles to living there will be overcome, and consequently the lands heretofore in little demand will be sought for and be much enhanced in value.

He has another theory in connection with this subject, and that is that the swampy regions may be to a great extent drained and reclaimed, thus getting rid of the malaria propagators by boring and tapping the substratas of pipe clay which form the bottom of these water basins, permitting the water to escape into the sand and pebble formations beneath and run off. He feels as confident of the correctness of his views on this subject as he was in the belief that he could find the living streams of water which he did find.

The people down there are joyful over the result of his labors, for it has redeemed one of the most desirable portions of Georgia heretofore of little value for the reasons mentioned.

Now the question is if artesian wells are a success in South Carolina and Georgia may they not also be in this section of North Carolina which is closer to the mountains and of a geological formation not altogether dissimilar. An artesian well in the centre of our public square might not only supply Charlotte with an abundance of the purest water, but would also be a thing of beauty to look upon, bursting cool and sparkling from the earth.

Mill Struck by Lightning and and Burned.

St. Louis, August 13.—The Atlantic Flouring Mills, corner Main and Plumb streets, were struck by lightning last night. An explosion instantly followed and fire issued from every part. In half an hour the mill and its entire contents were destroyed. A number of men at work on different floors were blown through doorways and windows, receiving serious and perhaps fatal in-juries. The fire spread to the city oil works and toward the house containing rosin and turpentine. About seventy men were employed in the mill, all of whom, it is said, are accounted for, but several are badly burned. Loss on the mill, $140,000; insurance $120,000. The oil works were damaged to the extent of $45,000; loss on rosin and warehouse Fearful Smash Up and a Miracu lous Escape of Passengers.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., August 18 .- A terrible accident occurred on the Grand Trunk Railway at 3.30 o'clock this morning, which resulted in the instant death of the engineer and the serious wounding of the fireman, baggagemaster, two express messengers and various injuries to a number of passengers.

The train was the 10 p. m. express from Montreal to Toronto and consisted of six Pullman sleepers, four first and second class cars, a postal express and baggage car. The cars were well filled with returning excursionists from Montreal who were nearly all asleep. The train arrived at Prescott's Junction on time and the Ottawa sleeper was there attached to it. After leavon the train was going fast. struction was encountered and the locomotive jumped the track carrying the tender, baggage, mail, express smoking and two sleeping cars with it. They ran on the ties fully a thousand yards, when the engine went down an embankment, the tender passing by together with the express car and landing on the other side of the track. The baggage car went still further on and the body was thrown off alongside a fence. In fact, every car except the sleepers was thrown upside down. The express car was smashed into kindling wood, while nothing remains f the tender but a few pieces of iron It is truly wonderful how the passen gers escaped instant death. When the passengers recovered from their fright, search was made for those who occupied the forward cars. The engineer,

John A. Howarth, of Montreal, was found with his arm around the whistle of the locomotive, having blown it twice before he was killed; the fireman, Wm. Taylor, of Montreal, was discovered in a field alive but insensible. Robert Scarlett, of Montreal, baggagemaster, was also insensible but soon recovered. His shoulder was dislocated and his arm sprained. How the two express messengers, Arthur King, of Toronto, and Wm. MacKenzie, of Hamilton, escaped with their lives is a mystery. Their car was crushed to splinters, and MacKenzie, though inured himself, rescued his partner. Both were injured internally. The second class passengers were badly shaken up. They escaped through the windows of the upset cars. A French woman threw her two children through window, first breaking it with her hands, cutting herself severely. S. P. Hair, of Colton, Mich., was injured in the back and internally. Others sustained sprains and bruises. How there occurred so few casualties is inexpli-

In financial circles the position is more in accord with the usual summer dullness, but all kinds of securities are held with confidence and offered sparingly. In the line of provisions and bread-stuffs, business while fair for the season, is of moderate proportions. THIS institution commends itself to the public as a notably pleasant and safe home and high class school for girls and young women.

It has during the past few years been greatly improved. Its SCHOLASTIC ARRANGEMENTS have been remodeled and its standards advanced. It now offers all the advantages of similar institutions of the highest grade. A large number of instructors is employed, and pains taking instruction is guaranteed. It offers a liberal English, or English and classical course for graduation, and under its new administration, has already graduated (with diploms) four very promising classes.

The DOMESTIC ARRANGEMENTS of the Academy have latterly been re-adapted to secure to its resident pupils the largest measure of comfort and convenience. Eight resident teachers are continually in charge, and give special attention to the cultivation of correct manners and habits in growing girls. Exceptional facilities are effered for the study of MUSIC. The results of practical work in its Music Department, during the past few years, would warrant the Academy, in the opinion of competent critics, in inviting comparison with any other similar institution in the South. A two to three years graduating course (with diploma) has quite recently been introduced.

Special attention is directed to the advantages now also obtainable in the DEPARTMENT OF DRAWING AND PAINTING, which has been receial ability and superior training. A high standard of excellence will be maintained and the best methods observed. A variety of branches of study is offered and careful tuition is guaranteed.
