OBSERVATIONS.

The wife of a Springfield editor has just presented him with girl triplets. His article on the drought, which he had just begun, must remain a fragment.—Courier-Journal. We don't know anything about that particular daughter, but we saw somebody's daughter going down the street the other night, and she was hanging on the arm of a young man who eats cloves.

Ben Wood, some years ago, won, it is said, $125,000 at a single sitting at faro. He borrowed $2,500 from Judge Mc-Cann to begin on, and he went away with every pocket stuffed with checks and bills. The cigar seller in the gambling rooms told a correspondent of the Missouri Republican that Wood that night smoked $70 worth of cigars. He took cigars costing about one dollar each, and lighting one end, began in his nervous way to eat the other, and in about two minutes he would take a fresh one.

Dr. Hammond Again.

and that it would lead almost directly to his decease. Continuing, Dr. Hammond is quoted as saying;

"The case does, and has throughout its various developments, point to all the symptoms of pyemia. The low respiration, the increased but fluttering pluse, the growing temperature, the inshility of the patient's stomach to sugpluse, the growing temperature, the inability of the patient's stomach to sustain food, the gradual wasting away of the body, the pinched appearance of the features, and especially of the nose, the comatose state in which his waking hours are passed, and the general disintegration of the system, are conclusive indications that the patient is fatally poisoned and cannot live. The attending physicians have neglected this view of the case entirely. They have been treating him in the anticipation of the development of peritonitis, and have, according to this hypothesis, been reducing him in flesh by pothesis, been reducing him in flesh by a most ascetic diet, where they should have given him more nutritious food to build his system up to the highest standard. This dieting business has induced this collapse, for it approaches that more than a relapse. I think this relapse is the final one, although I hope I am mistaken, and that, instead of resupersting his condition will continue. cuperating, his condition will continue to be grievous unto death. He is suffering from dyspepture no more than I am he is dying from pyæmia, and nothing under heaven can save him. The fact that the surgeons did not immediately ascertain the President's exact condition has done more than anything to kill him. It is neglect, human neglect, that will kill President Garfield."

From Pittsburg to Lynchburg.

Mr. P. P. Dandridge, engineer in Mr. P. P. Dandridge, engineer in charge, has made a report on the proposed railway from Pittsburg, Pa., to Lynchburg, Va. The report is entirely favorable to the proposed route via Cheat river, Cow Pasture and Lexington, Va., where it would strike a branch of the Richmond & Alleghany Railroad, now being built to Lexington. This route is 84 miles shorter than the White Sulphur route, and 26 miles White Sulphur route, and 26 miles shorter than the Williamson route, is far the most natural, practical and direct, and, it is claimed, would bring the vast undeveloped ore fields of Virginia in proximity to the coal fields of West Virginia and Pennsylvania.
