much larger area than was represented. Since then this monster has continued to grow until its accumulated weight of branch and fruit has brought total destruction to one of the two large oak trees which supported it and almost demolished the domicile of its owner. From Mr. Flinn's driver, who visited our office yesterday, we learn that the vine and its fruit have completely crushed the tree, tearing it out by its roots. The size of the vine and the weight of grapes growing upon it may be estimated, when we say that the oak tree thus prostrated, which is perfectly sound, is fully two and a half feet in mates that on that portion of the vine taken. which destroyed the tree there were fully five tons of grapes.

"It is more than encouraging. We have increased our spindles up to about 120,000, with the mills now building. We have water power enough to turn a million spindles, and there is no reason why spindles, and there is no reason why we should not have them."

"The record being made by the factories will justify new investments?"

"Yes, and induce them. There is no legitimate business that I know of in which capital can be so safely and profitably as in cotton factories in the South. The Augusta factory has averaged 20 per cent. per annum net profit on its capital since the war. It made last year 18 to 20 per cent. In the last last year 18 to 20 per cent. In the last six months we have made $100,000 clear. This is on a capital of $600,000, and is about 17 per cent. for six months, and 35 per cent. a year. This is unusually good, but we will do as well the present six months. The Enterprise paid 10 per cent. dividend last year, and for the last six months is earning 18 or 20 per cent. The other mills, I presume, are doing about as well. The Langley you know has just paid 8 per Langley, you know, has just paid 8 per cent. semi-annual dividend, and passed about 10 per cent. to its surplus. Its surplus fund is now about $275,000 on

The real and essantial advantage of mills in the South over mills in New England will be best shown when the times are hard and the trade is depressed. The Land Bill in its Final Shape.

The Irish land bill has at length been passed by both Lords and Commons, and a great step has been taken toward remedying the evils from which Ireland has so long suffered. However, like the wholesale and daily massacres of negro laborers in the State has almost ceased in the Northern Republican journals. The logic of agricultural products is against their yarns.

The great Centennial building at Philadelphia, sold to Col. Bullitt for $67,000, covers an area of over twentymost compromise measures, it is wholany improvements which he himself may have made. The other two F's, i. e., the guarantees of fair rent and fixity of tenure, are deduced from the right of free sale. In the passage of the bill through Parliament it has un-dergone notable alterations, some of them being of considerable importance. One is that the commission of three may utilize the services of the county courts; another that no member of says: "Although the story seems in Parliament shall at the same time be a some places a trifle unconnected, and member of the commission charged with carrying the provisions of the bill into effect; a third secures to owners their game rights; a fourth secures the landlord pay for the improvements he has made in case a holding is sold; the fifth declares that deductions shall be made from the receipts of a sale for deterioration of the landlord's property. When the bill reached the Lords it suffered numerous amendments, all of which were set aside on its return to that laxity in this matter goes with race, and cites the fact that the New England stock on the Western Reserve in Ohio exhibit the same laxity as their Eastern kin do, while the counties inhabited mainly by descendants of Southerners and Welshmen exhibit no such tendency.

Not a few thought our description of the big vine a stretch of the scription of the big vine a stretch of the scription of the big vine a stretch of the been assurred by Mr. Flinn himself that we failed to do the vine justice; that its branches were longer and covered a much larger area than was represented. branches were longer and covered a mons, assented to three of the Lords' much larger area than was represented. amendments-one authorizing an ap-

I purchased five bottles of your Hop Bitters of Bishop & Co. last fall for my daughter, and am well pleased with the bitters. They did her more good than all the medicine she has taken for six years.
