A St. Louis physician has discovered that the gum exuded from the linden or bass tree produces a most deadly poison, known as "lindoline." A cat inoculated with a needle dipped in "lindoline" died in eighteen seconds. The doctor thinks that a pin scratch touched with it would kill a man in less than two minutes. It is an antidote for morphine poisoning, but must be very largely diluted. The linden is a beautiful tree, having panicles of light yellow flowers, and is common in Europe. The bass wood of america is the same, and from it most of our wooden toothpicks are made.

Growth of Coal Traffic.

The increase in coal traffic over the railroads of this country in the last few years has been very remarkable, exceeding that of any class of business. This remark is equally applicable to both local and through business. The Vandalia, the Chicago and Eastern Illinois, the Indianapolis and St. Louis roads have increased their equipments for coal transportation hundreds of cars the last two years, and are still cars the last two years, and are still short of cars. The same is true in regard to roads which carry the hard coals east and west. President Sloan, of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western road, last week remarked that notwithstanding that their company "If ever I ketch you here agin" she had thousands of coal cars now in ser- called out shaking a fist as big as a ham, thousand more they could be used to she went in. Five years ago one-tenth of the present number of cars would carry all the coal and coke forwarded to Western markets; now the great study of masters of transportotion was how they can fill orders for Providence township, consisting of cars to ship coal to Western cities.
