Death of an Old Lady. Miss Betsey Cannady, one of the old-est inhabitants of Mecklenburg, died at her home a few miles from the city yesterday. She was said to be about 97 years old, although she was so reti-cent on the subject of her age that very few people really knew how old she was, and it is only by collateral circumstances that it is learned. She was a native of the county, and had many reminiscences of its early history which she was wont to relate with that pleasure which old people take in re-calling the things of their youth. Among other historical recollections she used to say that she remembered when a school girl that a Mrs. Cook, who kept a tavern in a frame house where stands the building in which Mr J. Harty now has his china store, once called her and a companion into the house and powdered their faecs, re-marking as she did so that they could marking as she did so that they could now say they had been powdered from the extension under any circumstances, General Washington's powder box. Up the river bed as far as you can see, the dry shining bottom is overgrown with grasses, and the mud along the banks grasses, and the mud along the banks is dry and popped open. In places where the river is deep, the water stands in pools green and stagnant. The river, in fact, is scarcely larger than a good-sized spring branch.

THE EVILS THAT ATTEND SUCCESS.

Success generally creates envy—envy begets hatred—hatred gives place to malice—malice prompts mischief, and so the baneful list goes on, followed by crime and wrong doing. The Louisiana State Lettery, established by the highest authority, meets with no exception to this rule. Its success, induced by integrity and honesty in its management, with liberality and charity, have caused to spring up in New York opponents who try to circulate all kinds of fairs reports as to its permanence and ability to redeem its promises. Let every one who has a lingering doubt write to M. A. Dauphin, New Orleans, La., to establish the truth that all that is promised will be performed.

FOUR COMPLAINTS

OF THE STATE COMMISSIONERS

Of the Western North Carolina Rail-road Company—How the Extension of Time is Claimed and Was Ob-A reporter of THE OBSERVER yestererday called on Governor Vance, hoping to learn something of the action of the commissioners of the Western North Carolina road at their meeting in Raleigh, Wednesday. The scribe found the Governor even more communicative on the affairs of that much-discussed corporation than his most sanguine expectations had led him to hope for.

The reporter began by asking what action, if any, the commissioners had taken.

"All that I can tell you for publica-tion," he answered, "is that we officially notified Governor Jarvis, who is himself one of the commissioners, you know, that the assignees of the road were not coming up to the contract.
We had refrained from doing this before, but this time we were all agreed."
"In what particulars do you accuse them of failing?"

"The official notification brings four separate charges: "1st. In the language of the contract they had not 'prosecuted the work with diligence and energy."

"2nd. They had failed to keep a force on the Ducktown branch sufficient to complete the road to Pigeon river by the ist of July, the time in which they were required to complete it by the "3rd. They failed to reach Pigeon river and Paint Rock by the 1st of July.

"4th. They are daily discriminating against North Carolina towns and citure of the street parade of John Rob-"What is the effect of this notice?" "It has no intrinsic force. The bill provides simply that the commissioners watch the progress of the work and report thereon to the Governor. It provides further that they shall make this notice before declaring a failure in complying with the contract, and even after such declaration the bill provides ninety days of grace to the contractors or their assignees before the Governor shall take steps on behalf of the State to have the contract legally annulled. You know, of course, that the commissioners in the capacity of commissioners have no power to act; they only report officially to the Gover-

"I notice that in your statement of the commissioners' charges, you speak of the 1st of last July as the time on which their failure violates the limit allowed by the contract. I know that that was the original time within which the completion to Pigeon river and Paint Rock was required, but the present controllers of the road claim, I un-Sept. 1st, into the store room formely derstand, an extension of the time to the 15th of November. The commis- subordinate lodge Reporter be instruct- agent of the associated railways of Virsioners have the right to make such extension; have they not done so?"

"True enough. They do claim that the commissioners made such extension. You have observed that we ignored such claim. Such claim is in the first place founded on a fraud, and in the second place the present controllers have not even complied with the condi-tions annexed to the consent to the ex-tension of time under which they claim. No lawyer who knows the circumstances will ever honestly give a favor-able opinion as to the legal or present operation of the instrument by which the extension they claim was granted. I will give you the history of the whole

Governor Vance took a fresh chew of tobacco while the reporter sharpened his pencil and looked anxiously at the diminishing thickness of his note book.

"In the latter part of last April," he resumed, "as I was passing through Greensboro on my way to Washington, Col. Andrews came to me and asked my consent to an extension of the time from the 1st of July. I declined to give my consent without consultation with the commissioners. I went on to Washington and in a few days received a letter from Gov. Jarvis desiring me to attend a meeting of the commissioners in Raleigh. I did so. The request of the present controllers for an extension tion that the terms of such extension should require the assignees to keep continually on the two lines a sufficient number of hands to complete the work within the extended time. There may possibly have been one or two other unimportant conditions demanded, I do not recollect; but the present con-trollers did not comply with these conditions and the extension was not granted. I returned, however, to Washington with the understanding between the two other commissioners and myself that they, a majority of the commissioners, were to sign the grant of extension and to consider that I consented on the compliance by the present controllers with the demanded conditions. At the expiration of two weeks there had been no re-renewed application for the extension complying with the conditions. I con-cluded that the present controllers were procrastinating to gain time, and wrote letters to Raleigh to Gov. Jarvis and and begging them not to act without me. Both letters reached Raleigh on The President had stopped at Mrs. Cook's on his Southern tour some years before, and had then probably left this souvenir.
