THE SYNDICATE ONCE MORE. Rumor of the Sale of the Virginia Midland to the Richmond & Danville Syndicate.

We publish in another part of this paper this morning, an article clipped from the Richmond Dispatch giving curency to the rumorthat the Richmond & Danville syndicate has purchased a controlling interest in the Virginia Midland Railroad, which for some time has been regarded as the most import-ant appendage of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad south of the Potomac.

In addition to the Dispatch article, the following dispatch from the Charleston News and Courier, on the same subject will be read with interest: RICHMOND, Sept. 1.—Intelligence has been received here that the sale of the Virginia Midland was to-day effected in New York, the purchasers being the Richmond & Danville Railroad. Nego-

private telegram was received from New York stating that the sale had just been made. Gen. T. M. Logan, vice president of the Richmond and Danville Railroad, and the leading mem-bers of the syndicate are now in New York. Col. T. M. R. Talcott, the general manager of the Richmond and Danville Railroad here, makes the following statement of the matter: The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad

John S. Barbour, the president of the pistol were empty when found and two road. Mr. Barbour's associates are par- of Farrington's. ties who are largely interested in the Richmond and Danville Syndicate, and it is believed that by reason of this common ownership in the two proper-ties more harmonious relations be-tween them will hereafter exist, and that the interests of both will be prosouth of the Potomac by selling its stock in the Richmond and Danville to a party of gentlemen interested in the welfare of Richmond, and now comes the Baltimore and Ohio giving up its interest south of the Potomac. It is understood that the road is an independent property, and for the present no material changes will be made.
Commenting editorially on the news contained in this dispatch the News and Courier says: "The acquisition of the Virginia Midland Railroad by the Richmond & Danville Syndicate will work some change in Railroad affairs in South Carolina. It is not asserted positively that the road has been bought, but it is believed that the Danville people will get it.

Southern connections of its own. First, the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad bought the Virginia Midland Railroad, which runs from Alexandria to Lynch-burg. It was then determined to ex-tend that line via Spartanburg, S. C., to meet the Augusta & Knoxville Rail-road, and so obtain an independent line to Augusta. A new line to Atlan-ta was also talked of.

If the Danville Syndicate buy or lease the Virginia Midland Railroad, the Midland extension will probably be abandoned. There would apparently tions, but the Richmond & Danville Syndicate, with its roads in Virginia, the Carolinas and Georgia, and its Pacific Railroad, is becoming so gi-gantic a concern that it is hard to tell what it will and what it will not do."

Our wide-awake contemporary might have gone further and stated that this sale perfected wil cause the abandonment of the scheme to build the connecting link between Danville and Spartanburg, or any of the points suggested along the proposed line, as well as unsettle the plan of building the road between Greenwood and Spartanburg in South Carolina. Besides this it will work irreparable injury to the Kennesaw route between Atlanta Ga., and Washington and the Northern cities, and thus their through travel over the roads controlled by the Syndicate via Charlotte, because through tickets can not be sold on that route beyond Lynchburg, except upon the terms of the new controllers of the Virginia Midland. Verily do we live in the age of surprises, and especially in the era of syndi-

"MOTHER HAS RECOVERED"

FARRINGTON'S DEFENSE.

THE TESTIMONY ALL TAKEN, and the Arguments of Counsel to be Eye-Witnesses of the Shooting.

The Farrington trial was resumed in the Superior Court yesterday, and during the day the crowded court room testified to the deep and general interest felt in it throughout the city and county. The case for the State was resumed.

POLICEMAN JOSEPH ORR.

was called to the stand. He substantially affirmed the statement of the conversation between the accused and Michael Healy and himself as related by Healy. Farrington had said to them that he intended "to whip that man."
They suggested if he did the man might shoot him, and Farrington said he would kill him if he did.

W. L. HAND

Testified substantially that on the day of the shooting, Farringtou had come into the drug store of L. R. Wriston, where he (the witness) was employed. About half an hour after Farrington left, witness saw a whip on the floor of the office in which office it was proved Farrington had been while in the store. He had seen the whip lying round the store for some weeks afterward.

JAMES JOINER.

A clerk in the same store, also saw the whip after those who followed Farrington into the room had left. A discussion now occurred on the admission of a question as to what had become of the whip, or whether any one had called for it. The question tion was ruled out.

POLICEMAN HEALY Made a correction in his testimony as to the conversation with Farrington; Farrington had said he was going "to whip that man." WILLIAM MCDONALD, Baggage-master on the Air-Line Railroad, knew Harper as a train hand on the same road. Harper had come in on Tuesday morning of the day of the shooting at 3.15 or thereabouts, and was to leave at 12 o'clock that night.

It was the habit of train hands to go to the depot sometime during the day to draw supplies. L. R. WRISTON. Had seen an ordinary cowhide on his counter shelf on the day of the shooting, or the next day. He had seen Farrington come in accompanied by his

State rested.

THE CASE FOR THE DEFENSE. Mr. W. H. Bailey for the defense stated that they proposed to prove that the threats made by Farrington against Harper had been abandoned; that he was absent from his work on the day of the shooting on account of indisposition; that his presence at the depot was an accidental visit as he went home, to his friend Wm. Horah, the cigar stand keeper; that he approached Harper with nothing in his attitude to indicate a hostile purpose; that he intended a friendly expostulation of injuries his family had received from Harper; that Harper had received these advances with an oath and a shot; that tiations for this sale have been pending for two weeks and were conducted with great secrecy. To-day at 1 o'clock a private telegram was received from would show the marks of bloody fingers on the scabbard of Farrington's pistol which were made, they would attempt to show, by the accused as he re-moved it from the scabbard, after being shot and putting his hand to the wound. They would also attempt to show that Harper had fired the second shot a lit-tle before or simultaneously with Far-rington's first shot and that he had fired ence or twice again before Far-Company, which owns a controlling interest in the Virginia Midland stock to a syndicate at the head of which is Mr. is show that four chambers of Harper's pistol were empty when found and two

D. M. MILLER,

Of Davie county, had been in Charlotte on the 22d of February. He was coming from the Air-Line depot when he heard a pistol shot behind him. He saw two men in front of the depot about 30 or 40 yards away facing each moted. About three years ago the Pennsylvania Company gave up its interest other. The one facing up street (Farrington) fired as he turned. The ether rington) fired as he turned. The ether (Harper) fell and Farrington stepped off the pavement, and started across the street. His head was held to one side. He had gone a few steps when the fallen man fired. Farrington stopped and attempted to turn the cham-ber of his revolver and Harper again fired. Then Farrington fired again at the fallen man who had struggled to his elbow with difficulty to shot. Witthe fallen man who had struggled to his elbow with difficulty to shot. Witness could distinguish between sounds of pistols, Harper's being light and the other heavy. He thought the two shots from Harper's pistol corresponded with from Harper's pistol corresponded with the one he heard before he turned. The first two shots followed in quick succes-

Farrington raised his hand and both pistols were fired almost at the Testified that his attention was attract both pistols were fired almost at the same time. He thought, but was not willing to swear that the lighter pistol went off first. He saw two distinct flashes. Harper fired once again as Farrington crossed the street and Far-rington replied. He heard five shots but saw only four.

The cigar stand keeper, testified that the and Farrington were friends and that Farrington had talked with him at the stand 20 or 30 minutes. He didn't seem excited and witness did not notice that Farrington were friends and animated speeches against the attempt to elicit such evidence. He thought Harper fired at the same time. Farrington left crime, but the Judge overruled the the pavement bleeding and with his question. It was understood that Mr. hand to his chin as Harper fell. Harper fired again, Farrington replied and question under any circumstances, whether such conversation had occur-

A discussion here ensued as to the admission of a remark made to Horah when the accused delivered his pistol to Policeman Stevens who came up as Farrington reached the side of the street on which the witness was. The remark was admitted as a part of the res gestæ. He had said to Horah, Snider's boarding house when he ar-"Will, you saw him shoot me first." Horah also stated that he could distinguish the sounds of the pistols and thought the first shot he heard and didn't see was from the light pistol. He didn't recollect whether in his examination before the coroner he had said he thought that Harper and Far-rington both fired at the second report.

DR, O'DONOGHUE

Testified that Farrington's wound was quite severe, and that he had observed that Farrington's face seemed was quite severe, and that he had observed that Farrington's face seemed powder-burnt when he was brought to him for treatment just after the shooting.

got within sight, Farrington was in the street. He saw Harper fire. Farring-ton replied and Harper fired again.

On cross-examination he said he had made Te-Day-Varying Accounts of the expression "double shot" in describnever in previous examinations used ing the second report.

L. L. SMITH. At the time of the shooting was agent at the Air-Line depot. From inside the depot he heard two shots, one after the other, and two others, succeeding the one the other not so rapidly. He went to Harper at once and found him dead. There were four empty shells in Harper's pistol. He died as the witness reached him and the pistol was lying a few inches from the open hand of the deceased. Smith testified to having seen a dent of a pistol ball in the wall of the freight depot, which had not been seen before the firing.

WM. COITE, COLORED. Was a drayman at the time of the shooting, and was at the freight depot across from the passenger depot. The order of shots, according to this witness was, Harper first, Farrington second, Harper third, as he fell, and Farrington fourth, from the middle of the street. He said Farrington did not step up on the pavement at all. He claimed to have seen the print of a ball on a post under the "flatform" of the freight depot and to have picked up a ball a few feet away.

Was at work by a window in the office of the Mecklenburg Iron Works, nearly opposite the passenger depot. He heard a shot, turned his head, and saw the two men facing each other. He saw the flash of a pistol and Harper fell. He ran to the door of the office and saw Harper struggle to his elbow and fire at Farrington about the middle of the street. Farrington turned and fired almost immediately and he (the witness) could see a slight dust rise from where Harper lay and his body relax and spread out as though Farrington's second shot had hit. Harper attempted to raise his head and did fire twice again and seemed to struggle to fire still another shot but unsuccessfully, and his pistol dropped from his hand.

FRED KUESTER gunsmith testified to having sold Farrington a 38 calibre improved Smith & Wesson on the 20th of March, 1880. Several witnesses testified to the good character of G. K. Stevens, Jonas Rudisill, D. M. Miller and T. C. Rob-

THE PRISONER'S STATEMENT.

The defence now introduced the prisoner, under the provisions of the recent statute allowing defendants in capital cases to be put upon the witness stand. He was asked why he was at Horah's cigar stand.

"I went," he said, "as I was in the character of Jonas Rudisill, and the habit of doing when I wasn't on duty, to see my friends among the mechanics. I went that way going home." "Why did you cross over to meet Harper? "Because he had seduced my sister under promise of marriage and I was mad," replied the prisoner with animation and some vindictiveness. "Did you go with a hostile pur-"No; I went over in a friendly man-ner to ask him to keep his promise. I didn't have my hand on my pistol. My left hand was in my overcoat pocket. I stepped up on the pavement and 'Mr. Harper, I want to talk to you.'

"His hands were both in the pockets of a blue sack coat he wore and the tails were somewhat spread out. I heard him cock his pistol in his pocket and he threw it up in my face saying,

'Not a G-d d-n word out of you!' "I threw up my left hand and said, 'Don't fire; I want to speak to you as "He said, 'I'll kill you,' and fired.

I levelled my pistol at him. He looked to me, blinded as I was, a blurred object. He fired again as I did so and I fired also. He was a little in the lead of me. When he fell I thought the encounter was over and stepped off the pavement. He fired again as I walked away. I tried to turn the chamber of my pistol, which caught, and while I did so Harper fired again. I heard this ball whistle. I then fired my second shot and continued across the street, where I met Mr. Stevens, gave him my pistol and surrendered myself to him.

The prisoner further stated that 16 pieces of bone and a quarter of the ball had worked out of his chin from the effects of the wound, and that it would be necessary to open the chin again to remove a piece of bone which still troubled him.

He lived, he said, near Harper's boarding house and had had frequent opporand had promised his mother between 10 and 11 o'clock Monday night that he would do nothing while Harper was under a bond under which he had been placed Saturday night previous to the Tuesday of the shooting.

The State introduced Mr. Polk Osborne, an attorney. They asked him if he had had a conversation with Farrington on the morning of Tuesday the 22d of February. The counsel for the defence objected alleged that what occurred in that conversation was privileged, on the ground of the sacredness of professional confi-

Mr. Howe Bailey, postmaster and clerk at the Warm Springs hotel, reach-ed the city from the Springs yesterday. He reports that the cars on the Paint Rock branch of the Western North Carolina road are now running to a point five miles below Alexander's, and that the track is being rapidly laid down the river. One of the bridges to be thrown across the French Brord above the springs is already partly up. Mr. Bailey says that the reported sale of the springs to Cols. Bethel and Clisby is incorrect.
