I had been suffering continually from headache all spring and summer, grown thin and pale, had no appetite, and was also disfigured with poison over my face. Though head-ache had been my most intimate foe, after one week I escaped so entirely as to forget my head, except in the relationship to my mouth, my appetite grew so insatiate. Bathing in this water boiled down, cured me of my poison oak malady in three or four

Eureka certainly is a magical city. Utterly unknown two years ago, it now contains 15,000 inhabitants and about the same number of visitors. They have street cars, thirty-one hoels, many finely kept. One, in course of construction, is to cost forty thousand dollars. The builder was offered eleven thousand for the site alone. It blasted out of a mountain side of solid rock.

The principal hotel has about thirty feet of steps to ascend before reaching the front door, and the rear rests on the ground. So all the houses are located on the hill sides, with props in front. Eureka water cures every disease except consumption. Several well authenticated cases of cancer have been cured there. The blind receive their sight. One woman, who had been blind six months with erysipelas, suddenly received her sight at the spring and shouted like one at a camp meeting.

I met people from every part of the United States. A young gill from Nebraska, who stayed at the same hotel I was at, having been most repulsive to look at with scrofula of the face, after two months was cured and became two months was cured and became really pretty. A woman afflicted with tumor of the stomach (said to be one of the most difficult of diseases to cure) was recovering. She boiled the water down until it was of the consistency and appearance of oil, drank it warm, and said it had the most soothing affect imaginable. They have at Eureka what they call an "Experience Meeting." Every one who is cured attends the meeting and gives in their experience. The doctors attend these meetings, examine their port of it. The bulletin, he said, which who is cured attends the meeting and have reliable witnesses, take gretted not being able to attend one of these meetings, but was too unwell. However, ladies from my hotel were present, good Prestratarians too, whom I knew would not tell lies, and they told me they saw and heard a man who had entirely recovered of the worst form of cancer. He had it removed twice before going to Eureka, and it returned and had eaten away part of his turned and had eaten away part of his ferehead, most of his nose, and part of his jaw and mouth. In this meeting the doctor who attended him related his case, not knowing he was present. Some persons grew wild with excitement and asked him to show his man, ment and asked him to show his man, as they did not believe him. The cancer man came forward scarred all over, but perfectly healed, and said, "Here I am; all he says is true; I can't talk much as I have lost part of my gum and many teeth." The excitement was intense. This man was there eight

"She was a magnificent creature. Her eyes were as blue and glowing as the sky when the sun is in his glory, and her checks were as rosy as the sky when the sun smiles and sets behind a cloudiess horizon. This magnificent girlhad never been in love." Such is the glowing description of Miss Lucy Swivell, as furnished by the Little Reck (Ark.) Gazette. That journal further informs its readers that Miss Swivell has been teaching school on the river below the city; that she boarded at the house of Henry Muckle, a widower and the leading citizen of the neighborhood, and that both George and John Muckle, sons of the old man, were rivals for her hand. Last week both of the young men, who graduated together at a Northern college in June, proposed marriage to Miss Swivell. She fold each to appear before her at noon of Monday. They obeyed. She said that she loved John and adored George, so they must enter into some contest for the prize. Would they walk twenty miles in ten hours? The lover who could ground should be covered in the specified ground should be covered in the specified time. The lane at the house was a haff-mile long. The young men started. The Attorney General states that under the authority commerce among the several States, Congress has the right to regulate navigation, and to that end has power to make improvements in the beds of navigable rivers of the United States, to direct the water from one channel to another, and to plant or remove obstructions at its will, and that the title of an individual proprietor to any part of the bed of a vavigable fiver is subject to the right of Congress thus to regulate, control and divert the flow of the water therein in the interest of Great excitement prevails through-out this section to-day over the discov-ery of the whereabouts of one Charles Buckles, who mysteriously disappeared from Osage township, this county, last winter, and was supposed to have been murdered. When it became known last December that Buckles had re-turned to the county after an absence In a private letter to a friend in Charlotte, a lady, formerly resident here, writes from Fayetteville, Ark, of the celebrated Eureka Springs: "I must give you an account of my Eureka Springs trip. I had been one of the "doubting Thomases" before going the, but seeing is believing: one week Buckles was supposed to have brought money with him, that no one saw him except Forrest and members of the Rambo family, that he disappeared that night without calling upon his father or any of his relatives, leaving behind his satchel and overcoat, which were found at Rambo's house, there were strong suspicions that he had been foully dealt with. Henry Forrest was arrested and placed upon trial for the offense. Public feeling ran so high in that part of the country, which, by the way, is near where the notorious Bender murders were committed, that a vigilance committee was organized and threats of lynching indulged in.

BY THE SKIN OF HIS TEETH. A Man Tried for Murder While His Alleged Victim was Alive.

Even Forrest's counsel, C. H. Kimball, of this city, was threatened with violence if he dared defend so guilty a marderer. Rambo was also arrested, charged with heing accessory to the charged with being accessory to the murder, but no evidence being found against him he was discharged. He was afterwards taken from his home at midnight by a pretended officer and, when about to be delivered over to a mob, barely succeeded, knife in hand, in making his escape, thanks to the good horse upon which he sat. Such a state of terrorism was kept up that the Forrests and Rambos were compelled. through fear of their lives, to leave the neighborhood. The trial of Forrest came off at the last June term of court in this county, and, though ably de-fended, he narrowly escaped convic-tion, the jury disagreeing. Now it transpires that Buckles is alive and well and, although knowing of the prosecutions here and the mystery surrounding his disappearance, has chosen to keep himself concealed for purposes best known to himself.

Reviewing the Result of the Autopsy-Dr. Bliss's Statement. WASHINGTON, September 24.-Dr. Bliss, in an interview to-night concerning a published statement that the bullet was not discovered until after the contents of the stomach had been emptied into a bowl or pan, and that fail-ing to find the ball in the body, the sur-geons examined the contents of the pan and found it there, said he had not yet was issued by the surgeons stated the notes of these remarkable cures, which are published, and these pamphlets are sent all over the United States. He stated that the bullet was found attached to the pancreas, and that it was encysted. There was no doubt of its location. He also stated that there were no matter the state of that there were no metastatic abscesses discovered, and no signs of pyamia. Not a single pus cavity, the doctor said, was found in the lungs, and he insisted that the diagnosis of the pulmonary trouble which he prepared a few days before the President's death was correct, and was confirmed by the facts ascertained in the autopsy. There was, he said, as shown by the post-mortem examination, hypostatic congestion of both lungs, the left only slightly, and the right up to the sixth rib. There had also been some inflammation of the lungs, caused by irritation of the the lungs, caused by irritation of the mucous membrane of the mouth from the glandular discharge. This descended and attacked first the pharynx, the bronchial tubes, and finally reached the lungs. The parotitis, the doctor said, was not of metastatic origin and con

A Waterloo.

Mr. Conkling sustained a Waterloo on Saturday in the election of dele-State convention. Conventions were held in the second and third districts of Westchester county, in Greene, Rock-land, the third district of Renselaer, second of Ulster, second of Orange, first of Saratoga, the first of Stenben. and in Chemung county. Of the forty-one delegates chosen, thirty-four are strongly anti-Conkling, only three are prondunced stalwarts, and the the preferences of four are unknown. Among the delegates are such prominent anti-Conklingites as Collector W. H. Robert-son and Gen. N. M. Curtis. Two of Conkling's most staunch support-ers, Assemblymen Carpenter and Baker, were defeated as delegates.
