A MOVEMENT TO ABOLISH THE INTERNAL REVENUE TAXES.

The movement in favor of abolishing the system of internal revenue taxes has given rise to considerable discussion among financiers in the North and is regarded with no little interest.

The agitation of the question has thus far been mainly in the North, one of its ablest advocates being the Philadelphia American, an independent Republican paper, which has contained several able editorials in furtherance of it. The views of the American have been warmly responded to by a number of leading minds, who are now giving the question a thorough investigation and are eliciting facts and figures to support the position which they take. The following which we clip from the Bal-timore Sun explains the status in a brief and intelligent manner:

A letter has been addressed to the Hon. Justin S. Morrill, of the United States Senate, by Barker Brothers & Co., of Philadelphia, which, partly perhaps in the interest of the protective tariff and partly perhaps in behalf of the national banks, urges the aboli-tion of internal taxes, particularly those known as "war taxes," levied in 1862. The letter is interesting from the clearness with which it presents the finan-cial prosperity of the country, and the igures with which it deals have an importance apart from the motive influencing the presentation of them by Barker Brothers & Co. Twenty years ago the entire revenue of the United States was $41,500,000 a year; new, af-States was $41,500,000 a year; new, after expending for the general purposes of the government at the rate of $260,000,000 annually, we are collecting a surplus of about $12,000,000 per month, while the treasury contains in coin and bullion an accumulation of $265,000,000.

The idea advocated is that since the guarding mantioned above is some surplus mentioned above is some essary. Since August, 1865, the public debt has been reduced by more than $950,000,000, so that at present (less cash in the treasury) it is but $1,816,339,567 of which $353,839,635 are greenbacks and fractional currency. The funded obligations of the government, therefore, to $1,566,229,600, which will be paid off in less than eleven years if the estimated annual surplus of $145,000,000 continues. As the system of national banks, is based on the existence of a banks is based on the existence of a bonded debt, it will be seen that they will be forced in ten years to wind up their affairs if Secretary Windom's present policy of applying surplus revenue to the reduction of the debt is persevered in. They are naturally unsource is to reduce the revenues of the stitution merely provides that "the The Norfelk Landmark asks: "Can government. There are two principal sources of income—the customs revenue, which for the year ending June 30, 1881, amounted to $198,159,676, and the internal revenue, which for the year ending June 30, 1880, amounted to $124,009,373, and for the year ending June 30, 1881, is estimated at $130,000,-000. It being necessary then, in the in-

The friends of a protective tariff iu diciously pronounce in favor of retaining the customs revenue undiminished, and join hands with the friends of the banks in compiling statistics and arguments for the abolition of "the hated war taxey." Premising that the paying and refunding operations of Mr. Windom have effected a reduction in the interest charge of $27,442,635; that the stoppage of the leaks in the Postof-fice Department have effected a saving annually if $3,630,757; that the surplus three young men attacked an old man revenue for the year ending June

8129213,515 appear that with the taxes abolished there would still remain a surplus. The arguments resolve themselves into three: That "the impoverished Southern States" paid last year $30,245,995, and should be relieved from a tax at once a burden to them financially and a source of exasperation to them politically, since the war tax was imposed to effect their subjugation; that to reduce our civil service by four thousand men Air-Line, President E. W. Cole and P. Cole and and our surplus revenue by $130,000,000 will facilitate reform; finally, that the course recommended will preserve the national bank system. The most striking and not the least gratifying feature of the political literature emanating

Ship Wrecked and Part of the Crew

Drowned. SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 28.—The name f the ship reported last night was not Halensberg, but Alice Buck, from New York. A dispatch from a Spanish town, 25 miles from here, says she struck on Hovians rocks, two miles below, at ten minutes past 12 o'clock yesterday morning, and is a total wreck. Ten out of 24 men on board were drowned. The ship had been leaking for two days and the captain signalled for a tug, evidently intending to put into San Francisco for repairs. On Monday he spoke the steamer Oceanic and got his course to San Francisco, but by some miscalculation steered northeast and shortly after midnight struck with an awful crash on the rocks, not over fifteen hundred feet from a high bluff. The two mates and part of the crew were instantly panic stricken and jumped from the ship into the sea and were not seen again. The captain and the rest of the crew with life preservers on left the ship which was fast breaking up. Some reached the shore assisted by the people on the bluffs and the rest were picked up by the steamer Salinas. Capt. Hermingsen was picked up after being in the water 9 hours, supported by two life preserv

The proceedings were opened with prayer and after the appointment of a number of secretaries the roll was called and credentials were presented.

On motion W. A. Hensel, of Lancaster, was unanimously chosen temporary chairman. He was greeted with most hearty applause, and acknowledged the honor in the following speech: Making pathetic reference to the death of the President he declared that time had vindicated the capacity of the Democracy to maintain true principles of government. His speech was re-peatedly applauded.

A proposition fixing the order of business was presented by Mr. McGowan, of Philadelphia, and called forth an extended discussion.

The convention then appointed the usual committees on organization and adjourned until 3 p.m. whose family has always illustrated the best traits of the South. The Hern-dons are closely related by marriage to agreed to make the temporary chairman permanent. The also decided to have a vice-president and secretary from each senatorial district. The temporary secretaries are also to be permanent.

The report of the committee on per manent organization was presented and adopted. It provided that Mr. Hensel, temporary chairman, should be made permanent chairman. Mr. Hensel was again applauded.

The report of the committee on reso short time after his nomination. Upon course the whole crowd of officeholders at the capital had been realous in their attentions, so that he was hardly given a moment's time to rest and gain that strength which he must have lost in attendance upon the long and exciting convention in Chicago. One day he called upon us, as was his custom, unannounced. He said he was wearied and worn out, and remained all the afternoon. I remember his using these words: 'General, I am convinced now that I made a mistake in accepting this nomination for the presidency. I have already reached the highest place my ambition sought. I am a Senator from one of the leading States in the Union. With an ordinary respect for the opinions of my people I feel satisfied I can remain in Congress so long as I desire, and can add to whatever of reputation I now enjoy. But if I am elected President it is only for four years. My administration may not prove a success. But if it should, what then? I can conceive of nothing so humiliat-ing as being an ex-President."
