THE SPIRIT OF SPECULATION.

The spirit of speculation, of wild venture, called, not inappropriately, gambling by some, has grown amazingly within the past two decades until even from the cotton that clothes to the grain that feeds, everything is controlled in price by combinations of men who command the markets and fix the buying and selling price.

In the Western markets, for instance, the large speculators refuse to buy until the farmer, compelled by necessity, is willing to take fer his produce what is offered him, and then, having gotten possession of the stock on the market, they refuse to sell until the necessities of the purchaser compel him to pay Ex-Senator Conkling is confined to the price demanded, no matter how extortionate it may be; thus they control the market at both ends. The only hope of the farmer who sells or the consumer who buys, is when rival speculators who buys, is when rival speculators if he preferred it the gold coin would come into contact and endeavor to be paid him, but that as $17,000 in gold drive each other out of the market. President Arthur has cut off most of This causes competition, where outsiders may have some show. But rarely the farmer derives any benefit from such combinations. There are now millions of bushels of grain locked up in ed through Europe the past summer the store-houses of Chicago and other Western cities, waiting till the necessities of the consumer compel him to pay what the speculators demand. Practically speaking, they can by combinafour hours and a half. They call him | tions control the entire provision traffic of the country and fix the price of every pound of flour, meal or meat that is eat_ en, and that is what they have frequently done within the past few years. It is no uncommon thing for a meat dealer for instance, with large capital to back him, to go into the market and buy up all the meat in sight, store it away, fix his his own figures upon it and realize fabulous sums in the way of profit, every dollar of which comes out of the pockets of helpless consumers, who must pay sailed in the same steamer to York- him his price or go meatless. So in corn, town, but it is not stated that they oc- oats, wheat, and all the other food articles that go on the market. So they thing that enters into the daily consumption of the people. It has been carried of late to such unreasonable excess as to attract the attention of the courts in some of the States, where jurors have been directed to such laws as to teach duelists how to hit an object may be in existence against speculation of that kind, while preachers have made it the subject of their pulpit discourses and the press has exposed speculating in mines, bonds, stocks, ect. it didn't make so much difference, for then people went in voluntarily and took their chances. They didn't get hurt if they didn't go in, and they could stay out if they wanted to; but when they go to gobbling up the necessaries of life and done here. fixing an extortionate price upon them it is quite another matter and something in which all, rich and poor, are interested, especially the poor, who are

> There are laws in many States to protect the people from this kind of extortion, but they have been suffered to become a dead letter, and have been almost forgotten until some judge, indignant at the cold-blooded, grasping spirit of the speculators, delves into the legal tomes and brings them to light. Whether such laws can be enforced is a question that remains to be determined, and depends on whether the judges and grand jurors will do their duty or not, something they have not shown any special alacrity in doing in the past. If a few of the colossal operators were snatched up, convicted and punished, it might have a wholesome effect, but they are not the kind of men that guardians of the law hanker to get their hands on. It is barely possible, however, that they may strike against a judge with old time notions like Judge Jamison, of Chicago, who has sufficient reverence for the law to insist that it be respected and enforced, and sufficient consideration for the people to see that they te not made the victims of these huge combinations of extortionists.

FLOODS IN THE WEST. This has been a year of trial with the Western people, especially those living along the great water courses, the Mississippi and Missouri rivers. In the spring the melting snows raised the streams to flood height, and did immense damage, submerging in some localities vast tracts of country which were covered by the rushing waters which bore along great bodies of floatingice, which did wild destruction to property and life. The summer came but little for his labor and to support him through the coming winter. Fall set in with rains pouring down in torrents, swelling the currents so that they burst over the banks in many places rushing over the bottoms where portions of the crop that the drought spared still stands to be destroyed. In the river towns also much harm has been done, buildings being flooded and goods and other property destroyed or washed away. Take it all in all these people have had a trying year.

An Indignant Bondholder. Wash, Cor. Baltimere Sun.

An old gentleman from an interior town of the State of Ohio made his appearance at the Treasury Department to-day with $17,000 in bonds, which he had purchased in 1861, and which were called in July last. He took a position in the principal room of the redemption bureau, and delivered in a loud tone of voice, and with much emphasis of gesticulation, a severe lecture upon the impropriety and immorality of the propositions which have been made from time to time to pay off the public debt in other than gold coin. He was informed that the efforts in this direction had all come to naught, and that there was no difficulty in paying him off in gold, or its equivalent, but he insisted upon finishing his discourse, and said the government had promised to pay gold. He had paid gold for his bonds and wanted gold, and no equivalent about it. It was represented to him that a draft on the United States Treasury was as good as gold anywhere, and the gold could be obtained for it; that would weigh about sixty pounds to would find it somewhat troublesome to carry it all the way out to Ohio. This staggered him a little, but he said it was the principle of the thing he was contending for, and he must have his gold, and he would take it home himself, as he would not pay the swindling charges imposed by the express companies. He then went across the corridor to the office of the Secretary of the Freasury to impress some wholesome views upon that official, but after waiting two or three hours for an audience he became disgusted and went off, with the remark that he would come back to-morrow and wanted his gold to be ready for him.

Damage by Western Floods. QUINCY, ILL., Oct. 20th.—Despatches from New Canton and Reckport, announce a disastrous break in the levees 2 miles above Scott's Landing. Water is pouring through the crevasse in torrants and a vast area of highly cultivated land is being rapidly inundated. Runners were sent out to warn the peeple, and farmers are using superhuman efforts to save stock and household effects. The disaster occurring at this time is much greater than ever before, as a very large area of winter wheat corner on coal, wood, kerosene-every- has been sowed. Corn and other crops have not been secured and the bottoms are full of cattle, horses and other live stock. Both levees are expected to break if the rise continues 24 hours longer. The water is several inches higher than at the spring rise. At Hannibal the water is across the railroad track and up to the door of the National hotel, The Keokuk and St. Louis railroad track is under water from Keokuk to Hannibal, and the rails at several points below Hannibal and St. Louis will have to be abandoned tohave not been secured and the bottoms Louis will have to be abandoned toand denounced it freely. Sciatica is also a form of neuralgia, and all painful nervous diseases come under that name. Neuralgia means nerve ache, and therefore you can suffer with neuralgia in any part of the body, as the nerves are supplied to every Part.

"I have for many years closely studied the cause of neuralgia, and the nature of the nervous sys-tem, with the many diseases that it is subject to, and have found by actual experience that the true and primary cause of neuralgia is poverty of the nervous fluid—it becomes impoverished and poor, and in some cases starved, not because the pa-tient does not eat, but because what is eaten is not appropriated to the nervous system. There are many causes for this, but Dr. C. W. Benson's Celery and Chamomile Pills have in my hands proved a perfect remedy for this condition and these diseases."
