There were 50,000 voters in Philadelphia who did not vote on election day.

As a result of the Virginia election prominent Republicans are inaugurating a movement to seduce other Southern States with federal patronage.

One of the youthful prisoners recently sent to State prison in Arkansas for train robbing died of shame and homesickness. He had been led astray by reading dime novels.

New York Herald: The Readjuster Congressman elected from Virginia will act with the Republicans. The political status of the Senate is likely to remain unchanged until 1885.

Gen. Sherman's suggestion in his report that soldiers be not required to perform menial service is meeting with general endorsement by the press. The menial and the soldier do not mix

In response to the offered reward of $5,000 for a design for a cattle car that would obviate the suffering of cattle shipped long distances, seven hundred were sent in but none accepted as the thing desired.

The Baltimore American says that the defeat of Daniel in this State goes to show how much more effective organization is than oratory.—Petersburg Index.

About the first move the Mahone legislature will make in Virginia will be to repeal the poll tax law, which requires the payment of poll tax as a requisite to the right to vote, and this will give lots of votes to the Republican party.

The action of the Irish land courts so far does not seem to give much satisfaction to the landlords, who see in the sweeping reductions in rent what they call practical confiscation, and they are

It is reported that Mrs. Scoville, Guiteau's sister, is showing signs of insanity, which report is probably started to help the insanity plea for her brother, but may possibly be true, for many a person has gone crazy with much less cause than she has.

The Philadelphia Times says: Dr. Morwitz, the proprietor of the Philadelphia German Demokrat, is the largest newspaper owner and publisher in the United States, having scores of weeklies on hand, either as owner or publisher, or both.

Carl Schurz said in addressing a Boston audience:

"They talk of raising a monument to General Garfield's memory. A reform-ed public service would be the grandest monument that could be raised to the memory of such a man, with the lesson it teaches.

The Atlanta Constitution says the exhibit of North Carolina woods and minerals at the exposition is "the finest ever made in the world," which is a very large declaration and calculated to make North Carolinians feel somewhat proud.

The Italian Government has at length delivered a blow at the lotteries of the kingdom, which are the procuring causes of limitless crime and wretchedness. The owners of the Naples lottery have all been arrested for swindling with their wheels.

Petersburg Index: The election of last Tuesday in this city refuted the imputation cast upon Petersburg by the use of the military here some years ago. We venture to say that in no city in all the twelve States which held elections last Tuesday was there better order observed than here.

More Cuba cigars are exported annually from Cuba than the island produces tobacce; more champagne from France than is produced in its vineyards for home and foreign consumption; more olive oil from Italy than is manufactured from olive trees. The world is being humbugged more and more, from year to year. A South Carolina man says he has discovered that quinine may be extracted from the pumpkin, and thinks he has struck a bonanza.

SHOWING UP WELL.

We publish to-day from the Charleston News and Courier an article on North Carolina's exhibit at the Atlanta Exposition, and the varied resources of this State. We have published articles of a like nature from other journals, north and south, showing that North Carolina's exhibit has attracted distinguished attention from the visitors from all sections. It is gratifying to North Carolinians to know this, for they glory in the pre-eminence of their State, although their modesty heretofore has prevented them from taking steps to assert it. The fact is, there were not many North Carolinians, even among the well-informed, who were thoroughly familiar with the resources of their own State, for there is not a Republican candidates openly paid $10 | day which is not bringing to light some new developments, and we venture to say that among the agreeably surprised and astonished beholders of her exhibits at Atlanta were many of our own people. There is yet much of her territory unexplored by science, comparatively speaking an unknown land, where, when the hammer of the mineralogist and the pick of the miner go, they will find vast and now unsuspected treasures. This exhibition at Atlanta has done more to make known the resources of this State than individual effort would have done in a number of years, and besides this it has given a stimulus to our people who hereafter will not be backward in works of this kind. Yet her wealth is not simply in her minerals, great and varied as they are, for in her forests (not to speak of her agricultural resources) will be found a source of incalculable wealth in the no distant future. When the iron rail is laid in these forests, so that the timber may be utilized and conveyed to the markets of the world, it will bring millions of money in return for trees that are now standing, and have been looked upon as valueless. We have seen tracts of the finest walnut, hickory, &c., sold as mere farming lands, where no value whatever was set upon the timber, in fact it was regarded more as an incumbrance than anything else, and yet one of these walnut trees cut into lumber would be worth more in market to-day than the price asked for the land per acre. We have known instances also where mineral lands were Just so. Organization with plenty of | sold in the same way, no estimate being eash will get away with oratory every set upon the veins of gold-bearing quartz or deposits of iron, copper or coal beneath, which apparently did not occur to the owners as of any value. These days of primitive innocence are, however, passing away, and our people are beginning to imbibe ideas of the commercial value of things, though many of them have much yet to learn. From all the lights before us, and we try to keep our eyes open, it is our candid opinion that no State in the American Union has to-day a better outlook before her than this good, modest, unpretending old North Carolina, inviting consequently doing a good deal of howl- enterprise and industry from her woodcovered, metal-based mountains to her beautiful, rich, food-yielding valleys. Centrally located, on the great highway from the north to the south and southwest, with proper railroad facilities within easy reach of the great ports and markets of America and the world, she must attract attention and command enterprise with the inducements she has to offer. This development may not come as rapidly as some would wish, for great works require time, but it will come, and that more rapidly than many ever dreamed of. This is an age of progress and of enterprise, where one year brings forth more than a score of years did but a short while ago, and it will be so with us. The building of one railway invites or forces the building of another to act in connection or in competition therewith, and that again invites or forces the building of another, and these branch and connect until eventually the one line originally contemplated becomes the trunk of the tree as it were, from which the many branches spring. One railroad begets a system of railroads, and the State grows richer with every mile that is built. So in time will be built miles of road in this State, some mapped out now, some not till the forest, field and mine are brought closer to the markets of the world, and their products be converted into money to add to the wealth, power and grandeur of our good mother State.

A STALWART ADMINISTRATION.

There is not much doubt now as to the status of President Arthur's administration, for all the recent manifestations show it to be of the stalwart order. The appointments to office have few moments until she was seen going invariably been of this class, and Mr. Arthur's trusted advisers and companions are also of this class, among whom Gen. Grant and Roscoe Conkling loom up conspicuously. There is no good reason why it should not be stalwart. Arthe United States. ed in other Southern States whose electoral vote will be sought in the next Presidential contest. Heretofore, with the solid South on one side Democratic and the almost solid Republican North on the other, the contests hinged on one or two States and made the result doubtful and uncomfortably close. New York with her large proportion of electoral votes was a field of contest and always of doubtful contest. They will countered. try to overcome this by making a break in the South to secure electoral votes

To do this they will consolidate and combine with any and all men who will co-operate with them, irrespective of past political affiliations. What they want is to win, and they will not hesitate at any bargain or combination that promises that result. As far as patronage goes they have the inside track now and can easily command the Southern delegations in the next national convention. They want Southern electoral votes, too, and for these a shrewd and a sharp contest will be waged.

Report of Commissary General and Inspector General of the Army.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.-The annual reports of the Commissary General of subsistence and the Inspector General of the Army have been submitted to the Secretary of War.

The Commissary General says the resources and expenditures of the subsistence of the department for the past year and balance remaining unex-pended on June 30, 1881, are set forth by the Commissary General, and various statistics connected with the monetary transactions of the department are also given by him.

Attention is invited to the clause in the appropriation laws requiring ten per cent. to be charged officers and enlisted men in excess of the original cost price to United States on all subsistence stores sold them, and the legislation is recommended by which sales will hereafter be made to officers and enlisted men at cost prices.

Issues of subsistence by the department to Indians during the past year are as tabulated in their department and legislation is suggested, which will not leave the subsistence bureau of the Wardepartment subject to contribution for maintenance of Indians whenever appropriations for the Indian Bureau become for any reason exhausted.

The outcome of the discussion of the sufficiency of army rations by officers who have given great attention to the subject seems to indicate a sufficiency

The reorganization and increase of the force of civil employees in the office of the Commissary General is recommended, and services of enlisted men in clerical capacities are recommended to be dispensed with.

The Inspector General reports the discipline of the troops good and constantly improving. The troops are all well armed, clothed and equipped. Great improvements have been made during the past year in building and renovating barracks-particularly in the West and South. Amount of work done by troops, not

The orders now in force preventing the sale of liquor on reservations where military posts are located has not worked satisfactorily, as many grog-shops are now located just outside the reser-vations, and soldiers go there and drink to much greater excess than if they pur-chased of the post trader. He recom-mends a modification of the existing law so that soldiers may be employed as servants by officers, to pay the soldier for such service, and the soldier's army pay to revert to the government.

A Very Sad Death.

Greensboro Tribune, Nov. 11. It is our duty as a journalist to publish current events. However the discharge of this duty sometimes is painful. It is with regret that we have to chronicle to-day the suicide of Mrs, Gregory, wife of our esteemed fellow citizen, George H. Gregory, Esq. From statements made to us we are enabled to give the following facts: Mrs. Greg-ory has been in feeble health for a long time, which so disturbed her mind as to cause it to become partially impaired, yet in the intervals between the paroxysms of derangement her mind was lucid and composed. A few days ago she again became despondent and con-sequently her mind became slightly un-hinged, and remained so up to the time of her death. When Mr. Gregory and his household were engaged in family worship this morning about 8 o'clock and during the delivery of prayer, Mrs. Gregory quietly left the room, but when the other members of the family arose from their kneeling posture around the family altar she was missed. It was but a over to Mr. J. R. Bulla's, about two hundred yards distant. She went directly to the well in the rear of Mr. Bulla's residence and made preparations to jump into it; her husband and a negro bey both saw her and giving the alarm, they ran to the well, but before they arrived there she jumped in and was drowned before any assistance could be rendered.

Mrs. Gregory was a kind and affectionate wife and mother, a kind neighbor, a devout christian and was held in several children, and hosts of friends mourn her premature death. The youngest of the children is only

ST. Louis, Nov. 12.—Specials from Kansas City state that the Santa Fee trains have been delayed by a snow storm. CHICAGO Nov. 12.—A Detroit dispatch to the Evening Journal says that the new Seamer Brunswick, owned by Captain Bewick, of Detroit, built last near at Wyandotte and valued at $150,-000 foundered last night on Lake Erie, off Dunkirk, N. Y. The engineer and two cooks were lost. The Brunswick rated A1 with a star and was insured for $75,000, of which $55,000 was held in Chicago. She was commanded by Captain Chamberlaine.
