LAOCONIO LOCALS

Sunday hours will be observed at the postoffice to-day. Business wouldn't boom yesterday. Cotton was absent from the streets.

Thanksgiving services will be held at St. Peter's Catholic church to-day at half-past 10 o'clock.

Tickets for "Palaces" are going off splendidly, and a favorable evening will fill the opera house to-night.

There are 32 prisoners in the county jail at present, 21 of whom will have a hearing at the present term of the Inferior Court.

W. H. Bailey, Esq., of the Charlotte bar, is in Raleigh this week, attending to legal matters in the Supreme Court.

In the article published yesterday in relation to mines, a mistake occurred in the figures giving the amount of ore on the dump at the Silver Valley mine.

In the item published in yesterday morning's OBSERVER about the failure of the paper to reach certain points on the North road, there was no intention of leading the reader to believe that the fault lay in the postoffice at Charlotte.

Much of the time of the Inferior Court was yesterday taken up in hearing a case of forcible trespass, the plaintiff and defendant to which reside in the city.

Malice seemed to be the cause of all the trouble, as the trespass, even admitted, amounted to nothing, while the costs in the case will be considerable.

The damage resulting from the trespass, according to the evidence of the prosecution, would amount to something like 75 cents.

Inferior Court. This court disposed of the following cases yesterday: State vs. J. A. Hornbarrier, larceny, retailing, mistrial.

State vs. Chas. Torrence, assault and battery, two cases; submitted.

State vs. Chas. Vann, assault and battery; submitted.

State vs. Pink. Parnell, larceny; not pros.

State vs. Ed. McCombs, larceny; guilty.

State vs. Hattie Ellington, larceny; guilty.

Decisions. Last Monday opinions were delivered by the Supreme court in the following cases:

A. H. McDonald, assignee, vs. R. D. Dickson et als., from Richmond; no error; judgment affirmed.

State vs. Thomas A. Lewis, from Stanley; error; judgment arrested.

M. Martin vs. John A. Young et als., from Mecklenburg; no error; judgment affirmed.

By ASHE, J.: State vs. Clarke & Hermon, from Union; error; judgment reversed.

L. B. Christberry vs. C. C. King, from Mecklenburg; no error; judgment affirmed.

To Parties for Atlanta. Prompted by the success in organizing the party which left Charlotte Monday night, and which safely reached Atlanta at the reduced rate of fare, offered by the management of the associated railroads of Virginia and the Carolinas, THE OBSERVER will undertake to organize another party of fifty or more to leave Charlotte on Tuesday night next, 29th inst., at 10:45 o'clock.

We will register the names of all parties desiring to visit the exposition received previous to Saturday night, 26th inst., and then notify the railroad authorities of the number so registered in order to comply with the stipulation which will be required in future that thirty-six hours notice shall be given of the formation of parties.

Persons living at a distance who can reach Charlotte in time can write us the names of parties desiring to visit the Exposition about that time, with the full assurance that the names will be registered and tickets secured in time.

All persons who desire to take advantage of the club rates to the Exposition will do well on arriving in the city to call at THE OBSERVER'S office, register their names at the hotel at which they may be found, which will enable us to go to more readily find others and thus facilitate the organization of parties.

The Bank of Hanesville Case. Several years ago suit was brought by T. M. Hauser, against S. McD. Tate, president of the defunct bank of Statesville, for recovery of money due plaintiff by the bank. The Supreme Court at the present term rendered a decision which makes the defendant liable for debts contracted by the bank. As the public is familiar with the case, and as it is of considerable local as well as general interest we give a digest of the decision:

1. The president of a bank is chargeable with constructive notice of the management of its affairs by the cashier and other subordinate officers; and when such bank is doing business without legal organization, he cannot escape the responsibility resulting from such notice by showing that he supposed himself the president of a legally constituted bank, if he has contributed the influence of his reputation to give credit to the bank as a reputable corporation.

2. Where the charge is a combination to defraud, the declarations of any one of the alleged confederates is evidence against the others, though made in the absence of the others, though made in furtherance of the common design; and slight evidence of concert is sufficient to let in such declarations.

3. The liability of the ostensible president of a bankrupt bank for debts contracted by it is not collateral, but direct and original, and he must respond in damages to the same extent as the bank, if legally constituted would have done.

4. The liability of the ostensible president of a bankrupt bank for debts contracted by it is not collateral, but direct and original, and he must respond in damages to the same extent as the bank, if legally constituted would have done.

5. The liability of the ostensible president of a bankrupt bank for debts contracted by it is not collateral, but direct and original, and he must respond in damages to the same extent as the bank, if legally constituted would have done.

6. The liability of the ostensible president of a bankrupt bank for debts contracted by it is not collateral, but direct and original, and he must respond in damages to the same extent as the bank, if legally constituted would have done.

THE ATLANTA EXPOSITION.

NORTH CAROLINA'S SPLENDID DISPLAY. The Approached Fallers becomes a Grand Success—People Gathering From all Sections—Men with Eyes on Their Eyes—A Magnificent Showing—What North Carolina is Doing and the Effect Her Exhibit has had in Attracting Attention to Her Mines—A Great Exhibition of Southern Industries Which Every One Ought to See.

Special Correspondence of The Observer. Six weeks ago the writer attended the opening exercises of the Atlanta Cotton exposition. At that time there was beyond the programme arranged for the occasion, naught but promise. The buildings were up to be sure, but the workmen had not left them and their interiors were bare and repulsive.

On a felt chilled and lonely in wandering through the vast shells. There was an irresistible feeling of despondency, that it was too great an undertaking for even the aspiring and indefatigable Atlantians—they had begun to build without counting the cost. This feeling was intensified by the days and weeks of sparse attendance which followed, and although the newspapers North and South spoke only words of commendation and encouragement there was an almost universal forboding in Atlanta and elsewhere that the great event would prove a failure.

Even those who still had faith in a great display despaired of a financial success, and exposition stock fell at one time to ten cents upon the dollar.

But the last few weeks have wrought a great change. The special days and attractions, the reduced railway rates, and the magnificent variety of the exhibits have drawn such crowds that the stock is now sold at 48 cents. The daily attendance averages three thousand and is rapidly increasing, and the city is crowded with visitors from all parts of the Union. Many of them, too, come not from the neighboring towns to spend a day, but from remote cities for protracted stays. The exhibitors assure me that they daily meet numbers of people whose object is business and not pleasure, capitalists, miners, machinists, inventors, all either seeking fields for investment or labor, or desiring space for their own productions.

Maj. McPhail, of the Richmond and Danville exhibit, states that he knows of 150 mining men who have set out after the examination of North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia ores, for personal inspection with views of possible investment in the mines from which they were taken. So it is with all the convertible resources of the South which are displayed. The financial success of the exposition is a matter of trifling importance when it is believed with good reason that it has done more to attract attention to our undeveloped and hitherto obscure wealth than the accumulated labor of the last decade.

To appreciate this somewhat startling claim our must come and see what is shown to the people of the sterile North and the rich but one-crop Northwest.

In the North Carolina exhibit, for instance, one cannot help being struck with the fact that it embraces every staple product with which we clothe ourselves, from silk to hemp, and our food crop from wheat weighing ten pounds extra to the measured bushel, to the Cape Fear rice, superior to any in the world. But not only corn is there but wine, and I seize this opportunity to make favorable mention of the display of native wines by Col. Wharton Green, of the famous Tokay vineyard near Fayetteville. It is far ahead of any similar exhibit. In the other staple luxury, tobacco, the North Carolina exhibit in variety it is most creditable, but in artistic collation and display it is not so. A casual observer would not be impressed. Nor are the proportions of its space, or the size—of size is a strong card in these world-fairs—of its specimens sufficiently obtrusive. The North Carolina contribution to the Richmond and Danville exhibit—and the State really furnishes about three-fourths and decidedly the best part of it—is, however, not subject to this criticism, and one cannot but regret that the two are distinct.

It is unnecessary to speak of any other special exhibits or attractions of the exposition. Your readers have already read much of the exposition, and I can only conscientiously assure all who contemplate a visit here that the Southern city of Atlanta now affords the most interesting show in the world.

D. M. V.

"Edgewood Folks." This play was presented at the opera house last night to a rather slim audience, but one that might be considered fair when the extremely unfavorable weather is taken into account. As Tom Dilloway, the leading character of the play, Russell finds a splendid opportunity to bring out his specialities, and it is his credit it can be said that he never allows an unchance word or suggestion to mar his work. His support is good, and it can be said that the piece as presented gave satisfaction. There are parts of the play that no doubt could be somewhat curtailed without injury to the remainder, but the audience manifested its approval by profuse applause.

Thanksgiving Services. Services will be held in St. Peter's Episcopal church this morning at 11 o'clock. An offertory will be had in behalf of the Oxford Orphan Asylum, and it is hoped that this fact will be remembered. Surely the Christian people of Charlotte should make these little ones a handsome donation, at least once a year.

UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN. The University of Michigan has received from the State of North Carolina a large quantity of books, which will be sold at a low price to the students of the university.

WILSON & BURWELL. The firm of Wilson & Burwell, of Charlotte, N. C., has just received a large quantity of goods, which will be sold at a low price to the public.

CONSUMPTION CURED. An old physician, retiring from active practice, having had in his hands a large number of cases of consumption, has discovered a simple and permanent remedy for the disease, and is now offering it to the public at a low price.
