This remedy is not a cheap Benzine or Petroleum product that must be kept away from fire or heat to avoid danger of explosion, nor is it an untried experiment that may do more harm than good.

Pain Killer has been in constant use for forty years, and the universal testimony from all parts of the world is, it never fails. It not only effects a permanent cure, but it relieves pain almost instantaneously. Being a purely vegetable remedy, it is safe in the hands of the most inexperienced. The record of cures by the use of PAIN KILLER would fill volumes. The following extracts from letters received show what those who have tried it think:

Edgar Cady, Owatonna, Minn., says: About a year since my wife became subject to severe suffering from rheumatism. Our resort was to the PAIN KILLER, which speedily Charles Powell writes from the Sailors'

Home, London:

I had been afflicted three years with neuralgia and violent spasms of the stemach. The doctors at Westminster Hospital gave up my case in despair. I tried your PAIN KILLER, and it gave me immediate relief. I have regained my strength, and am now able to follow my usual occupation.

the side by the use of your Pain Killer.

E. York says:

I have used your Pain Killer for rheumatism, and have received great benefit.

Barton Seaman says:

Have used Pain Killer for thirty years, and have found it a never-failing remedy for rheumatism and hameness.

Mr. Burditt writes:

It never fails to give relief in cases of rheumatism.

Phil. Gilbert, Somerset, Pa., writes:

From actual use, I know your Pain Killer is the best medicine I can get.

All druggists keep Pain Killer. Its price

lins.

GREENSBORO, N. C., Dec. 11.-Bearing in mind the terrible, startling accounts of the "moonshiners" and their doings in this section, it was with caution that I broached the subject last evening in a country store near this place, where were gathered around a stove, redolent with tobacco juice, a group of loiters. But I soon found it was no secret here, and the profits and losses of "blockading" (that's the true vernacular) were as freely discussed as any other "legitimate" business. "It's no more risky than farming, I reckon," said one; "you ketches the drought thar about as often as the revenue boys gets the blockaders." "But isn't there heavy fines and imprisonment?" "Oh, yes, but"—putting finger in the corner of his eye—"it's all thar. Maybe, if you got money, you're katched, and that goes thar"—slapping his pocket and in-timating by a grimace that it had ref-erence to the revenue man's pocket. "You see if blockading's stopped, the 'revenues' gets nothing; one depends on the other, and both is good about these parts." "How do the revenue men find out where the illicit distilling is carried on?" "Well, thar's lots of old snags laying round with nothing to do, who start off after squerrels, or patridges, may be, and they just runs across the blockaders; then the 'revenues' lets them alone till they makes a little money and gets a start—then they drops on them, but the boys got plenty of time to git out of the way, and the 'revenues' just cut of the still, they used to do it with a hatchet, but now theyse got a a hammer with spikes that cuts fifty holes at a lick." "How do the revenue men make money?" "Well, in the place, they gets five dollars a day and expenses, which may be two dollars and a half more, and they gets fifty dollars for every still they cuts up. When there is a lot o' whisky the government gets it sometimes, I reckon." "Don't they ever arrest the men?" little money and gets a start—then they "Don't they ever arrest the men?"
"Yes, when he's got money. Thar's a man up in Roxbury got ketched with 2,700 gallons this year, but he give bail and is at it again. I reckon, whar there's as nice a little stream of water as he had before the bail aint much account." "If the revenue man cut up the still, how do they get others?" "Go down to Greensboro and thar's a man as makes them." "Do the revenue men know this?" "Of course they do; the maker's a great temperance man. Oh, he's all right." "Would you mind if all that you say was printed in the Baltimore Sun?" "Not a bit; but you bet

G. injure the good name of a people by catching at stories on the fly and publishing as facts the mere drunken twaddle of bar-room loungers, without taking the trouble to inquire as to their truth. In this case the whole tenor of the letter leaves the impression that moonshining and blockade running are the order of the day, and the italicised you at the bottom would imply that the shot-gun plays a deadly part in the business. A more unfounded mass of rubbish was never crowded within the same space, and the Sun does both itself and the section to which it refers gross injustice by pub-

A South Carelinian Hanged in Arkansas,

Little Rock special to New Orleans Howard G. Edmund, who was executed to-day at Warren, the county seat of Bradley county, was guilty of the most inhuman crime kown to the annals of butchery and deviltry in this State. He not only ruined the young, beautiful and accomplished sister of his estimable wife, but in order to preyent detection when her condition became known, he killed her with an axe. There is not one palliating circumstance connected with the horrible affair. The fiend came to Arkansas four years ago, settling in Drew county, near Monticello. He was born in Fairfield District, S. C., and was only 26 years of age. His family connection in that State, as well at this, are all people of education, refinement and wealth. The crime of which he is guilty is the first damning spot on the family record. Soon after making our State his home, he fell in love with his cousin, a fascinating young widow, and a woman of brilliant attainments. After a brief courtship they were married. Everything that love or money could procure was at their command, and they were counted as among the most fortunate and happy people in that sec-tion. Mrs. Edmunds' younger sister, Sallie Watson, was a frequent visitor almost a companion. She was at Edmunds' house a good portion tof the time. Edmunds, from the first, seems to have planned the destruction of Sallie' and so cunningly did he plan his cruel game that his wife's suspicions, if she ever had any, were lulled to sleep in the absolute confidence in which she held the honor of her young husband.

All this time he was guilty of the vilest crimes. The dreadful finale came at last. Toward the close of the month of June last the Edmunds, Watsons and other families got up a party to go on a fishing excursion. Howard Edmunds was a member of the party. While the party was on the trip Ed-munds was abstracted and absent minded to a degree that attracted the notice of his companions. On the return of the party to their homes, they were hor-rified to hear that Sallie Watson was missing. Her parents had supposed she was with the excursionists, and could not be brought to believe that such was not the case. A party was at once or-ganized to hunt for the girl, the alarm became general, and the people turned out en masse and scoured the woods. The party of which Edmunds was a member, found the body. His face turned an ashy hue. His knees smote each other. Guilt was indelibly written on every feature. There, on the ground, before his eyes, lay the girl, the victim of his passions, her clothes in great disorder and her head split in twain. He was at once arrested and lodged in jail at Monticello. Several ineffectual attempts were made to overpower the officers and lynch him. The law-and-order people in a body cried out: "Let him have a trial, and if guilty he shall -C--H--R--O--M--O--Shang." His trial came on, and the case under a change of venue, was taken to made a full confession, and acknowl edged the crime in all its sickening details. The murder was committed June 3d, and the monster executed December 9th. No pen can describe the grief of the family, the sorrow-that this man's crime has caused, and the great excitement produced among the people.
