> This remedy is not a cheap Benzine or Petroleum product that must be kept away from fire or heat to avoid danger of explosion, nor is it an untried experiment that may do more harm than good. Pain Killer has been in constant use for forty years, and the universal testimony from all parts of the world is, it never fails. It not only effects a permanent cure, but it relieves pain almost instantaneously. Being a purely vegetable remedy, it is safe in the hands of the most inexperienced. The record of cures by the use of PAIN KILLER would fill volumes. The following extracts from letters received show what those who have tried it think:

Edgar Cady, Owatonna, Minn., says:
About a year since my wife became subject to severe suffering from rheumatism. Our resort was to the Pain Killer, which speedily relieved her. relieved her.

Charles Powell writes from the Sailors'

A publication like that in the Press should not be allowed to go into history, as it would be not only a libel on President Davis, whose integrity has never been questioned, but it would cast a serious reflection upon the whole Southern reflection upon the whole Southern people, whose chief head and represent-

For months our people, yea the State, has been on tiptoe with anxiety about W. T. Blackwell & Co's artesian well. The long looked for event—water flowing out the top of the well—happened Monday. But on Monday when the pure water began to gush out of the well they clapped their hands and rejoiced at their success. All are now convinced that man does not know what is contained in the bowels of the earth, and that the opinion of a geologist is not infallible, however learned he may be. The well is now seventeen hundred feet deep, and they are working night and day to complete it by 1889. The vein they struck is not strong enough to cause the water to continue to flow, but sufficient to keep the well filled to the top. As soon as they strike one more vein they will have sufficient water.

The Confederate Treasure---The Amount --- Reply to Statement in the Philadelphia " Press."

The Philadelphia Press represents General Joseph Johnson as making the following statement with regard to the amount of treasure in the possession of the Confederate Government at the close of the war, and which was carried south under the charge of President Davis: "He told me (General Beauregard) that he was convinced that the President had $2,500,000 in specie at Greensboro'." General Johnson is then represented as saying, "I have no doubt but that General Beauregard's estimate was within bounds."

In view of the foregoing publication, I feel it to be a duty that I owe to the late President, as well as to the Southern people generally, to publish the following statement, which I received this day from a well-known and highly-respectable gentleman of this city. He affirms that the money at that time in the Treasury was placed in his possession; that he carried it to the office of the Richmond and Danville Depot, and weighed it, and that there was in silver bullion 1,400 pounds, gold coin 1,000 pounds, and 58 kegs of Mexican dollars containing $5,000 each—the whole aggregating in round numbers something like $550,000. This treasure was carried by him and others in special charge of it to Abbeville, South Carolina, where it was delivered to Gen. Reagan. This gentleman expressed the positive belief that the most of this treasure was paid out to the Confederate soldiers, a large number of whom were in that vicinity. He also states that Mr. Davis was not at any time with the train, and that he had nothing whatever to do with the Confederate funds which it ative he was. Richmond, Va., Dec. 21, 1881.

The Artesian Well,

Afloat Again.

A BIG BONANZA.

Some months since a rich Northern company bought a gold mine in this county from a citizen of Caldwell and went to work to develop it. Although they have made nothing public, it has all along been known that they were satisfied with their purchase. They have employed a considerable number of hands and the result of their work is said to have been remunerative. dandruff. is said to have been remunerative. It is said in the neighborhood that a vein was struck last week, which yielded a half bushel of gold ore to a bushel of diggings. Upon this fird, a man was sent post-haste to the near est telegraph station, and the joyful tidings were wired to the central office of the company in New York. Very soon a preternaturally large nugget was found, and a second telegram was sent. In a short while, a nugget much larger and more valuable than the other was found, and a third telegram was sent to New York. This is the outside report which is no doubt considerably exaggerated; but there is certainly quite a stir in mining circles which indicates a rich find. We hope it may be true.

Guiteau in a Rage.

Poor Scoville has a hard time with Guiteau, and the wonder is that he does not throw up his case in disgust. The following is an extract from the proceedings in the trial last Wednes-

The prisoner (in a rage). You are as stupid, Scoville, as the witness is. You are just compromising my case every time on cross-examination. You are not fit to be on this case at all. If I had some first-class criminal lawyer he would show you how to do this business. I would have got John D. Townsend, of New York, or Judge Magruder, of Maryland, if you had not shoved them off with your confounded vanity and egotism. You are no more fit to manage this case than a ten-year-old mise me with your blunderbuss way. The witness (in answer to the question). I should reply sane to any one of those propositions taken separately, without modifying circumstances.

Witness denied that he received any money for coming into court, and said he had made no contracts for pay-The prisoner broke out into another invective against Mr. Scoville, telling him that he was a consummate fool; that he had better go back to Chicago at once, and that he seemed to be working for the government instead of Mr. Scoville presented to the witness a postal card, which the witness admitted having written, dated Salem, Mass., 24th November, saying:

"Accept my congratulations on the manner in which you have conducted the defense. It may not be popular, but it is right and just." The witness added that he saw no reason to take it back at the time it was written. Again the prisoner broke out against Mr. Scovilie. It is an outrage on justice, he said, for this man to come here. He has had no experience in criminal matters, and he is compromising my case. I here require him publicly to get out of the case. I would rather take my chance, even at this late hour, with Charlie Reed, who is a first-class criminal lawyer, than with this idiot. who is compromising my case all the time. He has no wit, no sense, and between Corkhill and him I have a pretty hard time. [Laughter, which seemed to put the prisoner in better humor and in which he joined.]

Mr. Scoville, who had borne everything heretofore with apparent equanimity, seemed to feel very keenly this last evidence of heartless ingratitude. His voice trembled and for a minute he was unable to go on. Even the pris-oner realized the injustice of his conduct and hastened to apologize, say-

"You are doing very well, Scoville; to the best of your ability." Several times afterwards during the examination of Dr. Worcester Guiteau denounced Mr. Scoville.

At one time Mrs. Scoville reached over to speak to Guiteau, when he snarled at "You keep your mouth shut. You're as big a fool as your husband. You're a crank on this business."

The cross-examination continued for awhile, until finally the prisoner shouted: "Scoville, you should have let the man go two hours ago. If I were indicted for manslaughter and Scoville defended me I would be hanged for for murder. If you had let this this man go two hours ago it would have been better for the defense. [To the Court.] I tell him to get out of the case. He is ruining my case. He is not fit to try it." Mr. Scoville (with an air of patient resignation). No one realizes that more than I do."

The prisoner (in a fury). Then get out of the case, you consummate idiot! You have got no more brains for this kind of work than a fool. You compromise my case in every move you take. If you had let that man go at one o'clock he would have done me no
