THE CLOSING SCENE

IN THE ASSASSINATION TRIAL. Judge Cox's Charge to the Jury.

Judge Cox then, at 3:15 p.m., proceeded to deliver his charge to the jury.

He remarked that the prisoner had frequently taken occasion to proclaim that public opinion as evidenced by the press and correspondence was his favor.

Those declarations could not have been prevented, except by the process of gagging the prisoner.

Any suggestion that the jury could be influenced by such lawless chattering of the prisoner would have seemed to him absurd, and he should have felt that he was insulting the intelligence of the jury if he had warned them not to regard it.

Counsel for the prosecution had felt it necessary, however, in the final argument to interpose a contradiction to such statements, and an exception had been taken on the part of the accused to the form in which that effort was made.

It would be observed that in this case there was no trouble with any question about the sanity of the accused.

It would be well to say a word to the jury as to the kind of evidence by which courts and juries were guided in such difficult and delicate inquiry.
