The recent murder of Mr. Agostini by a crazy negro at Newbern is a farcical illustration of the folly of letting crazy people run at large, to avoid the expense of caring for them.

At Oscar Wilde's lecture in the opera house at New Haven, Conn., 200 Yale students esthetically gotten up, but Oscar was not right certain whether they were really disciples or only poking fun at him.

The phylloxera is rapidly spreading in France. In 1880 only 92,000 acres of vines were reported as infested, while last year the acreage had increased to 250,000.

The mechanical tools in Alabama foot up $228,500, on farming implements only $77,100, making a total of $305,600, while the guns, pistols and dirks are valued at $254,800, or $40,000 more than is invested in farming implements and mechanical tools combined.

An exchange remarks that "the only man in this country who ever had the honor of being decorated with an order, and at the same time occupying a cell in a penitentiary, is Mr. David Mount, of Philadelphia. He was one of the '300' at Chicago, and is entitled to his medal weighing one pound."

Official returns from Washington relative to the foreign trade of the United States place the aggregate exports (exclusive of specie) in 1881 at $833,514,129, against imports of $670,117,903, comparing with the grand totals for 1880 of, respectively, $889,685,421 and $696,807,176.

This is the way "me too" Platt feels about it: "I would rather be one of the glorious '306' who stood firm at Chicago even after the storm came and the stampede raged, or one of the Spartan band who at Albany last spring and summer for many weeks faced the fury of a crazy press and people, than be a Senator."

Senator Dan Voorhees thus informs the afflicted how he got out of his rheumatic gout: "I have cured myself of rheumatic gout by a simple remedy—taking lemon juice in warm water three or three times per day. Consequently, I am able to do what I have not done for years—walk from my lodging to the Capitol and back, a matter of four miles, every day, and outstrip the young fellows who go with me."

The commissioner of pensions estimates that it will take $1,347,651,593 to pay pensions during the twenty-five years ending in 1906. After that he thinks the charge on the country will decrease. According to Bentley's estimate, about $135,000,000 of that large amount will be paid to frauds unless the go-away way of the pension office is changed.

We clip the following from Randall's Washington letter to the Augusta Chronicle: "There are many persons here who say that stranger things have happened than Judge Davis' attainment of the Presidency, and I know for certain that both parties dread a general break-up and new deal. If that should come to pass, by 1883, I will not be surprised to see David Davis emerge as chief magistrate of the republic. It would be odd if the Democrats should reject him and the Republicans take him up as happened, last spring, in the Senate. Mr. Arthur's ambition for a second term may precipitate just such a crisis and consummation."

GEN. CLINGMAN. Late reports from Washington represent General Clingman as discussing very freely, and indulging in no small amount of criticism as to the management of the Democratic party in this State, and it is asserted that he would not be averse to seeing the party remodeled on the basis of a coalition with outsiders enough to make a party numerically strong enough to place General Clingman at the head of it and in the position of some of the gentlemen whose leadership he criticizes.

The General has undoubtedly a high opinion of his own ability, and takes occasion every now and then to point out the mistakes that are made, the greatest mistake being perhaps a want of recognition by the party of his particular fitness to head it. But while not altogether satisfied with the present status of things it is not likely that he will attempt any revolution, nor advocate any alliances outside of the party. If he had the inclination, which is doubtful, he is not the man the Republican managers are hunting for.

THE LOBBYIST.

The lobbyist, called the third house, are numerous and strong in Washington now. There never before, perhaps, were so many schemes in vogue to draw money out of the treasury for jobs and works of internal improvement, amounting in thousands but in millions.

Mr. Randall, the clever Washington correspondent of the Augusta Chronicle, in a recent letter, speaking on this subject, and alluding to Sam Ward, a noted lobbyist, remarks: "He has gone; but his place is filled by men who have none of his scholarship, but more knowledge of still-hunting. Whether they use cash or condiments, I cannot say; but their existence is surrounded by sumptuous appointments, and to hear some of them talk one would be persuaded that they owned congressmen in fee simple and sold them as corner lots to their employers. My own opinion is that this is mere brag and 'bounce,' and that they would inter-view a royal Bengal tiger sooner than confront the majesty of either House with a venal proposition. Still, they live and thrive and want for none of those things that poorer people long for and sometimes imperil their reputations and souls to procure."

It is his opinion from the outcropping indications that venal congressmen will have abundant opportunity to make money, but he is charitable or perhaps just enough to believe that there are very few of that kind in Washington now. There is no doubt that the morale of Congress has very much improved in recent years, since the shake up in the Credit Mobilier exposures and the salary back grab demonstrated the fact that the people were not all asleep and that congressional thieves had not unlimited license. These were thunder storms that did much to purify the atmosphere about the legislative chambers, which have never since become as foul as they then were.

But even great events are sometimes forgotten, or thought to be, which is pretty much the same thing, and when we hear of the crowds of lobbyists, representing schemes with millions in the background, it looks as if there was devilment on foot, and as if the lobbyist at least was becoming somewhat oblivious of the occurrences in which he and his victims figured so disreputably in those days. There will be temptations, no doubt, great temptations, and congressmen who are not sure of their strength had better stand firm under and give the gentlemen of the third house a wide berth.

As an illustration of the amount of attention that is sometimes given to bills passed in Congress, we cite the bill introduced yesterday in inference to the qualifications of Territorial delegates. This bill provided that no one having two or more wives (not wives by brevet, but sure enough wives) should be considered competent to a seat in that honorable body. The bill was put, and but few votes cast, none in the negative, when the Speaker announced the bill carried, and the "burst of laughter which followed," we are told by the telegraphic announcement of the passage of the bill, "first apprised many of the members of the nature of the bill that had passed." That's a specimen of attention to business.

Taking advantage of just such indifference and opportunities thousands of dollars have been gotten out of the public treasury in jobs carried by a few votes when the majority of the members were engaged upon something else and giving no attention to the matters before the House. This occurs more or less in all legislative bodies, but there is no excuse for it. Congressmen are sent to do business for those who send them, and in the capacity of agents they are well paid for the services they render, and they have no right to sleep at their desks nor be indifferent to the demands of duty.

But perhaps they looked upon the resolution as a harmless bit of pleasantry, or as foolishness, and as such gave it no attention. And then again by voting for it perhaps some of them thought they might be voting to contract their own particular privileges in the matter referred to, but as it did not apply to sub rosa wives, wives of convenience, not commonly known as wives, but as mistresses—this could hardly have been the case. Probably they thought it foolish, for all the delegates from the territory has do is to marry one woman or not marry her and keep an indefinite number like some of the honorable gentlemen at Washington do, a matter which he can very easily manage with the full understanding of his people, and walk right into Congress as moral a man as the rest of 'em, who have quite as large female experience though not quite as much married as the polygamist delegate. The fact is, Congress would much rather let this question alone.

Under the call of States a resolution was introduced by Springer, of Illinois, calling on the President for information as to the right or authority under which the Republics of North and South America were invited to send a commissioner to the peace Congress to be held in Washington in November, 1882.

By Mills, of Texas, a resolution calling on the Secretary of the Interior for information as to the number of acres of public lands that have been surveyed and through States, what railroads have been subsidized and the number of acres granted to each, also directing him to report to the House the net earnings of the Central Pacific, Kansas Pacific, and Union Pacific, Central Branch of Union Pacific, and the Sioux City and Pacific, from the commencement of operations of each of said companies to the present date. Referred to the committee on public lands.

By Houk, of Tennessee, for the payment of loyal claimants.

By Wise, of Virginia, to complete the monument to the fallen Washington.

By Burrows, of Michigan, moved to suspend the rules and pass a bill defining the qualification of territorial delegates to the House of Representatives.

It provides that no citizen who is eligible to a seat in congress as a delegate from any territory.

The House was in a very inattentive mood and when the Speaker put the question there were few responses. He, however, declared the motion carried and the bill passed.
