UNREST IN EUROPE.

The flery speech of Gen. Skobeleff in Paris, where it seems he had been imbibing pretty freely of French wines, in which he declared that an alliance between France and Russia to check the progress of Prussia to European dominion was a necessity, has drawn the attention of the world to these two nations, Prussia and Russia, as rivals for European supremacy.

Notwithstanding the fact that the Czar is reported to have reproved his general for his hasty and ill considered remarks, the impression prevails that Skobeleff, whether under the influence of quickening French stimulants or not, simply uttered the sentiments of the prevailing powers of his country. Prussia is not entirely satisfied that the soldier was not talking not only his own sentiments but also the sentiments of the Czar, who, though he declines thus far to father them, has not manifested either grief or anger at the utterance.

However the respective governments may view the situation it is evident there is great unrest among the masses, who have come to the conclusion that the clash of contending armies is only a question of time, and may be precipitated at any moment, by even so small a thing as a few minutes after-dinner speech of a boozy officer.

With the immense standing armies of Europe, the proximity of nations jealous of each other, the rival interests to be guarded, and the mutual fear of hostile ascendency, leaves peace always precarious and war always possible. And war between two of the leading powers may at any time become general, for the mightier can force the lesser in and make them parties to the conflict whether willing or not.

It is this feeling which swelled the tide of immigration to this country the past year to the amazing figures of The secretary listened with what seemnearly half a million, and it is thought | ed to Shipherd a great deal more than will nearly double that number for the present year. Aside from the individual liberty which men enjoy in this with care and precision. He suggest-Republic, the dread of war and invading armies does not come to mar the day's enjoyment nor the night's repose, States government to enforce it against nor the dread that the accumulated earnings of years may be destroyed in a day. There the subject belongs to the government and may at any time when fireside, be mustered into the army and has not a particle of interest and in the making of which he had not a word to to rule him.

No wonder the toilers want to get much.' from under the dominion of such governments and make their homes in a land where men have some rights that rulers are bound to respect, and where life and property are reasonably secure, where men are men and children are raised up to be men and women, not the mere chattels of despots who sit upon thrones, declare wars and seldom or never go within reach of the missiles that slaughter by thousands better men than they.

The Independent party of Georgia has constructed its platform and set it up for the public to gaze upon. It is composed of eleven planks. The first ignores the binding authority of king caucus. The second goes for a free ballot and a fair count. The third for an honorable payment of all honest debts. The fourth for gold and silver as the proper money of the people.

The fifth favors a repeal of the internal revenue laws when the reduction of the national debt will permit it.

The sixth advocates a liberal system of internal improvements.

The seventh declares the supremacy of national authority.

The eighth favors popular education. The ninth opposes monopolies.

The tenth objects to the present system of hiring the State convicts.

The eleventh protests against party proscription and sectional prejudice.

This allowance is unusually large and is explained by saying that they had to establish the legality of the State governments by virtue of which they held cerproof of this involved unusual expense. People are getting an idea somehow

THE GUANO INVESTIGATION.

The Senate committee has at last succeeded in getting Mr. Shipherd, of Peruvian Guano Scheme notoriety, Latore. it and have elicited some interesting information. The probabilities are if the full story is told it will be still more interesting. We clip the following from the results of the investigation last Monday, by which it will be seen that Minister Harlbut was to be bribed into non action against the promoters of the scheme, white Secretary Blaine took an interest in it that smacks considerably of business.

After describing an interview with Minister Hurlbut Shipherd continued: "Peru ought to have help at the earliest moment, and I hope you will press your plans as rapidly as possible." Shipherd then made a general statement to the effect that he (Shipherd) never imagined that it would be necessary to buy any man, and never intended to do so. He did, however, feel that it was necessary to prevent Hurlbut from taking any position which might be violently opposed to their company. Shipherd was asked: "Did you think Hurlbut could be purchased?" and replied: "Most emphatically"

The Chairman—"And you proceeded to purchase him?" Answer—"No, sir; simply to prevent him from settling himself viciously and determinedly against us. I recognized the fact that it would be necessary to assure him that it would in the future result advantageously to himself or friends if he did not oppose us." Shipherd was then questioned in regard to his interview with Secretary Blaine, and replied: "The interview took place at Blaine's residence, in this city, on the evening of July 25th. It lasted until a late hour, and was resumed next morning.'

When asked who was present at that interview, Shipherd said a United States senator whose name he did not feel at liberty to mention, because he had been informed that in an investigation of this kind it was necessary to be very careful about mentioning the names of members of the house or senators. He said further that this interview was brought about by the kind offices of the before mentioned senator. The chairman suggested that Shipherd give the features of the interview with Blaine, and for the present waive the question of what senator was present.

At this interview Shipherd gave Blaine a full statement of the claims of the Peruvian company on their merit. merely courteous attention, and now and then interjecting questions, showing that he was following every point Peru. After a full discussion, the Secretary asked Shipherd to suggest what was wanted from our government.

To this Shipherd in effect replied: "At present we can ask almost noththe emergency arises be summoned ing. We cannot go into court down from his peaceful avecation and his there until Peru denies the claim, and until this is done we have no right to ask our government to interfere. We can sent out to the field to be shot at by only ask a provisional remedy. The secretary replied: 'That is not asking too

After this matter had been fully and thoroughly discussed and it was made plain to the secreary that the company was not asking the United States government to assert its claims, the conversation took some other turn, and was finally closed with the remark by the secretary: 'Now, what do you want me to do?' Shipherd eplied in substance, as before stated that the government should send notifications of an American title to the guano, and the secretary replied that he would do so at once.

In further reply to questions, Shipherd explained that the employment of the Sentor in question as attorney was not because he was a senator, but because he was known to be a particular friend of Blaine. Shipherd stated that ne had several other interviews with Blaine after the one described at the State department.

East Tennessee is going to solve the immigration problem in a practical way. About 300,000 acres of land have been purchased in East Tennessee, and in the fall twenty families of Germans and Canadians who have had some experience in American farming will be located on the tract. After they have tested the productive capacity of the soil, immigrants will be brought there direct from Europe.

THE NATIONAL SOLONS.

The Senate Postpones the Tariff Discussion, Passes the Consular Appropriation Bill, and Discusses the Life Saving Service Bill, while the House Spends the Day in Grappling with the Chinese Question.

Pinkham, 233 after an announcement by Bayard of Avenue, Lynn, Mass., for pamphlets, the sudden illness of Garland from whom a speech was expected, and the Senate took up the consular and diplomatic appropriation bill. The Senate committee amendments were read and agreed to, and the bill The Senate then took up the House ife-saving service bill which was discussed and amended in respect to the salaries of superintendents. After a long and desultory debate in which Brown contended for a uniform salary of $120 per month, the salaries of superintendents in districts covering the more daugerous lines of coast, and reported in the bill at $2,500 were fixed at $1,800, and those in districts reported at $2,000 were graded to $1,500. Upon an amendment offered by Brown for a slight increase for the Florida coast district, Jones, of Florida, said the losses from wrecks were greater there than upon any other portion

Representative Page, of California, was entrusted as a sub-committee of the committee to audit the expenses attending the illness and death of President Garfield, with the bills and vouchers for the expenses, accidental and incidental, of the funeral train to Cleveland. Mr. Page said to-day that he had collated and aggregated the bills in one lump account, and then had destroyed them all. He considered that was the best thing to do, as he did not think it was the thing to have a scandal over such a matter. Opinions may differ as to Mr. Page's right to take this course, but opinions will concur that it was the worst possible course to take to GRATUITIES TO SENATORS. The Senate passed to-day a resolution to pay Mr. Kellogg, of Louisiana, $9,550, and Mr. Butler, of South Carolina, $3, 500, for expenses incurred in maintaining their rights to the seats they hold. There is no precedent for this action. Contestants have generally been paid their expenses, but sitting members have not. Mr. Butler is a Democrat, and Mr. Kellogg is a Republican, which explains why the two resolutions were made dependent on each other. The practice of the Senate in making lavish donations of the public money for the use and convenience of its members is growing to such an extent that sooner or later it must be put a check to.

This was done and Christmas was released. Whitney was a son of Mrs. Myra Clark witness for Christmas.
