Queen Victoria has asked Parliament to make suitable provision for Prince Leopold in view of his approaching marriage.

Last evening a canister of powder was dropped into a house on Nelson street, Dublin, where several detectives are living.

Mr. Smyth, (home rule) member of Parliament for Tipperary, writes to the Freeman's Journal announcing his intention to support the closure resolutions.

The Prussian Economic Council Tuesday, by a vote of 33 to 31, rejected the tobacco monopoly bill, and afterward, by a vote of 48 to 14, adopted a resolution in favor of a higher tax on tobacco.

The Quebec Steamship Company, which has been running a line of vessels between New York and Porto Rico and carrying the United States mails, has notified the Postoffice Department that it is about to discontinue the service and withdraw its vessels.

E. B. Cowles, commissioner to take testimony in the Christiany divorce case in New York, Tuesday examined Henry Huss, a restaurant keeper, who testified that Joseph J. Barnum, one of Mrs. Christiany's witnesses, is a man of bad character, and he (the witness) would not believe him on oath.

The findings and sentence of the court-martial in the case of Cadet C. Whitaker, tried on the charge of mutilating his own ears, have been set aside by the President on account of technical informalities and irregularities, but he will nevertheless be dismissed from the military service because he has been found to be deficient in his studies.

The Marquis of Huntley, against whom a warrant was issued at the Mansion House for obtaining a large sum of money under false pretenses some time since, surrendered himself at the Bow Street Police Court Tuesday.

In the Supreme court at Providence, R. I., C. B. Farnsworth, custodian of the Quindick Company's property, and Superintendent Corey, of the Arctic Mills, for contempt of court. It is alleged that Sprague and Corey denied Farnsworth admission to the mill for the purpose of taking an inventory, Sprague threatening to throw Farnsworth into the river.

A Year in New York. During 1881, 38,624 deaths occurred in New York city, and 35,000 births were reported.

A Child Demon. Cincinnati Enquirer.

Ed Hallen, a five-year-old negro boy residing near Woodlawn, Texas, ten miles north of here, went into the house of a neighboring colored woman during her temporary absence, and taking her infant from the cradle carried it off to the railroad depot.

On the mother's return she gave the alarm, and began pursuit. The child was finally found in a fence corner with his eyes puffed out, in a dying condition. The young demon, not old enough for legal punishment, was caught and carried home to his mother, who said the boy had a penchant for putting out eyes; that if he got hold of a chicken's first set was for putting out the eyes. A dog-ging within an inch of his life by his mother is the only punishment the juvenile cut-throat is likely to receive for his murderous deed.

Speaking by the Card. Galveston News.

Several gentlemen were standing on the corner of Galveston avenue when one of the most fashionable ladies of Galveston passed on the sidewalk.

"Oh!" exclaimed one of the gentlemen, "what a complexion! There is nothing to beat it in Galveston. I am proud of that woman, I am."

"Are you her husband?" asked a stranger who was standing by.

"No, sir."

"Her father, then?"

"No, sir, I am no relation to her; but I am proud of her complexion, and the druggist that sold it to her. I make it myself."

Fatal Boiler Explosion. PHILADELPHIA, Pa., March 23.—The tug boat Henry C. Pratt, lying at the pier at the foot of Walnut street exploded her boiler this morning, killing four men.

The Most Beautiful Woman in the World.

Stars Bell. I saw last evening the woman, who, in my critical opinion, is the most beautiful woman in the world.

The shadow of a fault in her face or form it has escaped my discovering eye. I formed this conviction years and years ago, and I have never since seen a frisky burlesquer on the stage as held it against all competition, when, later on, she played semi-tragic roles quite badly; and now that she is doing a comedy part happily in "Divorçons," at the Park Theatre, am fixed in it for life.

She is an ideal Venus—or would be, but for the restrictions of propriety. One of the dresses she wore last night was as near the bounds as possible without going beyond the edges of the arms were bare right up to the top of her shoulders.

Her smoothest of necks was uncovered, and a wedge-shaped strip of her skin was visible half-way down to her throat.

The covering of her upper body were in no hurry to become opaque. She was truly lovely, and I had only one fault to find. She was outrageously white.

Her hair was as white as snow, and necessary behind the glaring foot-lights, but Alice Dunning Lingard (she is the creature that I am raving about) doesn't need to be swabbed all over.

When will actresses learn not to overdo the use of the brush and rag? A second of her costumes was a dark brown satin, so cleverly draped that it was as little a detriment to the superb figure as it is possible for skirts to be.

The tulle corset, the lace-trimmed gowns, and the elbow sleeves and the inside of a high ruff were trimmed with gold lace. She carried an oval fan of silk white feathers, bordered by bright green leaves and tropical birds.

Her reddish golden hair was brushed back and tied low on the neck; then divided into two plaits, while the front hair formed a low ridge over her forehead.

One of the plaited strands encircled the brow as the pictures of Sappho, and the other was arranged in a low knot behind.

This is the newest fashion in hair-dressing, and pearl beads are usually worn in the hair.

As I sat looking at her, in rapt admiration, I suddenly recalled her husband, the sereno-comic William Horace, trotting to and fro behind the footlights and singing, "Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines," and the vision made me sick.

Not that any other fellow ever has or ever will sing and pronounce "Captain Jinks" as funnily as he did, but the idea of a clown marrying a goddess was retched—if you will allow me the first pun I ever put into my letters.

An Appeal in Behalf of the Flood Sufferers, by the Red Cross.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—The following call has been issued to the American people: The President having signed the treaty of the Geneva Conference and the Senate having on the 16th inst. ratified the treaty, the action, the American Association of the Red Cross, organized under provisions of said treaty, proposes at once to send its agents among the sufferers by the recent floods.

The recent floods, a view to ameliorating their condition, no far as can be done by human aid and the means at hand will admit of. Contributions are urgently solicited.

Contributions of wearing apparel, bedding, and provisions should be addressed to "Red Cross Agent" at Memphis, Tenn., also Vicksburg, Miss., and Helena, Arkansas.

Signed: Clara Barton, Bancroft Davis, Frederic Douglass, Alex. Y. Barnet, Mrs. Olan D. Cooper, A. S. Solomon, Mrs. S. A. Martha Canfield, R. D. Mussey.

A Scientific Destroyer. Prof. Meizerhoff, a Russian chemist, recently appeared before a French court in New York and thus stated what he could do:

He had made a study, he said, of war and of instruments. At a cost of $150 he had an English-made iron vessel which had cost $11,000,000, and was coated with an iron armor twenty-two inches in thickness.

He would go into London, Paris, Berlin, Constantinople or St. Petersburg with twenty men, and then, armed with anything more bulky or weighty than an ordinary satchel, and in twenty-four hours would destroy the city. He could not then explain the means he would use, but he speaking, and with an understood and who could tell how effective they were.

He could, for a few thousand dollars, stretch a double line of dynamite torpedoes before every harbor in the world, and make a way through impassable barrier to every English war ship. He could stand in an outskirts of Constantinople, in a space one-fourth the size of the room in which he was speaking, and with a new at his command destroy the entire city.

"Bulls" and "Bears." The terms bull and bear, as applied to stock operators, are probably two centuries old. A correspondent of the Wall Street Daily News finds in the London Tatler of April 28, 1709, the following definition:

"Stock jobbers who contract for a future transfer of stock which they do not possess, are called bear skins; and universally, whoever sells what he does not possess is said, proverbially, to sell the bear skin while the bear runs in the woods. In the language of Exchange Alley bears signify those who buy stock which they cannot receive, or who sell stock which they have not. Those who pay money for what they purchase, or who buy stock which they have, are called bulls."

A New Use for Guano. One of our gardeners has found a new use for guano, and it is worth noting. He was much annoyed by rabbits cutting down her garden peas, and as an experiment had guano sprinkled over them. The experiment was a success, and "cotton tail" has gone in search of more pleasant pastures.

Another Murder in Stokes.

Winston Sentinel. On last Wednesday, near Westfield in Stokes county, Eph. Moore, colored, went to the house of Brice Staples, colored, when he was ordered off by Brice, who had just returned from work when Moore drew a pistol and shot him in the back, killing him instantly.

Although Moore met a magistrate not far from the scene of killing, and told him he had killed Staples, we learn that no warrant was issued until next day, and by that time the murderer had made good his escape.
