The grand opening of Mrs. Newcomb's yesterday, was indeed a success.

We call the attention of the members of the Hornet fire company to the advertisement of a meeting of their company this evening.

The buildings in granite row present quite a different appearance since the old single row has been taken off and a new line put on in its stead.

Already we have heard some of our best citizens remark that the clouds were very much like those of last year, which all remember were always high and passed around everybody without raining.

It is a fact, that North Carolina produces more hay per acre than any State along the line of the coast from Maine to Texas, with the single exception of the Empire State.

The arrangements for the new Central Hotel bar are about complete though it will not be formally opened until Monday.

We notice in a South Carolina journal that the ladies in the city of that State propose to open a first class coffee saloon, to see if they cannot induce the men to take coffee instead of whiskey in quenching their thirst.

OUR BELLOWS FACTORY.

Of How to Raise the Wind. Homer, in his description of the forging of the shield of Achilles, speaks of the furnace into which the materials were thrown as being blown by twenty pairs of bellows.

Messrs. Newcombe Bros., of the Charlotte Planing Mills and Bellows Factory, have only been in business here a little over two years; but during that time their business has been steadily growing, and bids fair ere long to become one of the most important and remarkable manufacturing establishments in the South.

Believing that some account of their work and its progress would be of interest to the readers of THE OBSERVER, seeing that these gentlemen have introduced a totally new industry into the South, an OBSERVER representative has made it his business to call upon these gentlemen and ascertain a few particulars concerning their undertaking.

The first department visited was the large room devoted to the making of bellows. Here for the first time we learned something of the anatomy of a pair of bellows—never having, like the historical Irishman, cut a pair open to see where the wind came from.

The bellows made by the Messrs. Newcombe have gained such a reputation, while previous to their advent here all our smiths, mechanics, and others who required these implements in their business must go North to procure them, the case is now reversed, and the Charlotte Bellows Factory ships its productions as far North as Baltimore, as well as to Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, Virginia, and all parts of the two Carolinas.

The business in this department steadily increased during the first year, doubled itself the second year, and this year the firm expect to send out from their establishment about $15,000 worth of bellows, which appears to us to be raising the wind in a very satisfactory manner.

It is satisfactory, too, to know that the whole of the material used in this factory, excepting the nails and paint, are produced in this State.

In addition to their bellows factory Messrs. Newcombe carry on an extensive general carpentry business, including the manufacture of sashes, doors, blinds, &c., aided, where possible, by the most modern steam-driven machinery, for planing, tenoning, sawing, molding, jointing, &c.

We understand further that, encouraged by the progress of the branches of business already in active operation under their management, these enterprising gentlemen have in contemplation the addition of another department (which we are requested not to specify for the present) which will supply a long-felt want in this section, and for which, also, our own State furnishes the materials abundantly.

We wish the Charlotte mills all prosperity, and believe our readers will endorse our good wishes; for it is just such men and such energy that the South needs—to utilize her resources and create industrial enterprise in our midst.

More Hydrophobia, and Bigger Doses. Four dogs, all supposed to be suffering from hydrophobia, were killed within the corporate limits of the city yesterday.

A second was first discovered on Trade street opposite THE OBSERVER office. He created quite an excitement as he went down the street snapping at everything and everybody.

A third, which belonged to W. E. Holt, was killed by Policeman Carter, and a fourth was shot just about dusk in front of Adams' beef market, by Policeman McNinch.

In Jail. The Mecklenburg jail is not a very cheerful residence. Business took an Observer representative there yesterday and he was very thankful when that business was transacted and he saw sunshine again.

Good Friday. To-day is Good Friday, the anniversary of the crucifixion of the Saviour, so-called in allusion to the benefits conferred by his death.

Resolved, That the Secretary be instructed to send a copy of these resolutions to our Senators and members of Congress.

THE SUPPOSED INFANTICIDE—FOUR OF THE PRISONERS RELEASED.

The jury assiduously pursued their inquiries in this case yesterday. In the morning they took the testimony of a number of witnesses at the mayor's court, chiefly respecting the condition and actions of the colored woman Maggie Morehead during the past few weeks.

In the afternoon the coroner and jury proceeded to the jail, where they had before them for examination Anderson Phifer and Alice Morehead, both colored, two of the prisoners (the latter having by some error been previously spoken of as Maggie White).

The close of this examination four of the prisoners were released, viz: Anderson Phifer, brother to Maggie Morehead, on a $50 bond, H. G. Springs security; Eliza White, mother to Maggie Morehead, on a $50 bond, Jno. T. Schenk security; Alice Morehead, daughter of Maggie Morehead, on a $50 bond, Jno. T. Schenk security; and Ella Bell, the girl arrested on Sunday, on her own recognizance of $50.

Maggie Morehead will be brought before Judge Shipps this morning at the mayor's court on the writ of habeas corpus issued on Wednesday.
