To bring health and happiness to the homes of suffering women is a mission before which royal favor sinks into insignificance. What earthly benfaction can compare with one which protects from which gives ease for pain, joy for sorrow, smiles for tears, the rose of health for the pallor of dis-ease, the light, elastic step for dragging weariness-nights of soft repose for heavy hours of tossing restlessness, bounding vigor for languishing dull-ness, the sweet lines or full grown beauty for the sharp and withered form of emaciation, a long life of mental, physical, social and domestic enjoy-ments for a "few sad days" of pain and gloom, ending in an early grave? Such is the mission, such are the results of Dr. J. BRADFIELD'S FE MALE BEGULATOR, which is hence truly and appropriately styled "Woman's Best Friend." "Whites" and all those irreguiarities of the womb so destructive to the health, happiness and beauty of women, disappear like magic before a single bottle of this wonderful compound. All who suffer from any of these diseases are Centuries of English oppression set forth. It de-scribes Ireland's ruin and the people's despera-tion. It shows how the land was confiscated and the industries destroyed. It explains the Land League, the Land Let and the Coercion Bill. Contains 32 engravings and map in colors. Price only $2 per copy. Sales immense Send fifty cent for full outfit and begin work at once. For full matteriars address All who suffer from any of these diseases are most earnessly inwited to give this great remedy a trial. It has cured thousands and will cure you. Don't fail to try it.

"That dire d'sease whose ruthless power Withers beauty's tansient flower?"

The Charlotte Observer. Rev. A. W. Wilson, D. D., elected bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church South Tuesday, is in the prime A BASHFUL MAN'S DILEMMA.

Rushing Into a Roomful of Bridesmaids

Bereft of his Breeches.

Nashville Banner. Senator Sebastian, of Arkansas, was a-native of Hickman county, Tennessee. On one occasion a member of Congress was lamenting his bashfulness and awkwardness.

"Why," said the Senator from Rackensack, "you don't know what bashful-ness is. Let me tell you a story, and when I am through I will stand the bob if you do not agree that you never knew anything about bashfulness and its baneful effects.

I was the most bashful boy west of the Alleghanies; I wouldn't look at a girl, much less speak to one; but for all that, I fell desperately in love with a sweet beautiful neighbor girl. It was a desirable match on both sides, and the old folks saw the drift and fixed it up. I thought I should die just thinking of it. I was a gawky, awkward country lout, about nineteen years old. She was an intelligent, refined and fairly well educated girl in a country and at a time when girls had superior advantages, and were, therefore. superior in culture to the boys. I fixed the day as far off as I could have it put off I lay awake in a cold perspiration as the time drew near and shivered with agony as I thought of the terrible ordeal. The dreadful day came; I went through the programme somehow in a dazed, confused, mechanical sort of way. The guests one by one departed and my hair began to stand on end. Beyond the awful curtain of Isis lay the terrible unknown. My blood grew cold and boiled by turns. I was in a fever and then an ague, pale and flushed by turns. I felt like fleeing to the woods, spending the night in the barn, leaving for the west never to return. I was deeply devoted to Sallie. I loved her harder than a mule could kick; but that dreadful ordeal I could not, dared not stand it. Finally the last guest was gone, the bride retired, the family gone to bed, and I was left alone; horror of horrors, alone with the old man. "John," said he, "you can take that candle; you will find your room just over this. Good night, John, and may the Lord have mercy on your soul," and with a mischievous twinkle of his fine grey eye the old man left the room.

I mentally said "Amen" to his "Heaven help you," and, when 1 heard him close a distant door, staggered to my feet and seized a farthing dip with a nervous grasp.

I stood for several minutes contemplating my terrible fate, and the inevitable and speedy doom about to over- laymen whose leaders they are to bewhelm me. I knew it could not be avoided, and yet I hesitated to meet my fate like a man. I stood so long that three love letters had grown on the wick of the tallow dip and a winding

Rev A G Haygood, D D., of Georgia, is now President of Emory College, in that State, and editor of the Wesleyan Christian Advocate, published at Macon. He is an author of note, his last work, "The Brother in Black," attracting attention throughout the country. Bishop Haygood is a magnetic and eloquent platform speaker, and as a preacher is at times grand, and always sensi-ble and able. He is a man of advanced thought, in the right sense, and has the courage of his convictions. He is about forty-seven.

Rev R K Hargrave, D D, of the Tennessee Conference, is about fifty years of age-a man of high character as a preacher, thoroughly devoted to his Church, and in every way in high re-pute among those who know him most intimately.

Rev Linus Parker, D D, of the Louisiana Conference, now and for years editor of the North Carolina Christian Advocate, is about fifty years of age, infirm health, weighs about 190 pounds. and is a preacher of note in his section. Bishop Parker is a Christian of profound convictions, and as an editor has had no superior as a writer on this line. He may be classed among the old line Methodist preachers.

As a whole, the selections for this high office at this time have been in accord with the history of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Since its organization, in 1784, she has never had an unworthy or impious man to fill the office of bishop. The election of these five able men will give satisfaction to the large body of Christian ministers and come.

sheet was decorating the side of the brass candlestick.

A happy thought struck me. I hastily climbed the stair, marked the position of the landing and the door of the bridal chamber. I would have died before would have disrobed in that holy chamber, where awaited me a trem-bling and beautiful girl-a blushing maiden-"clothed upon" with her own beauty and modesty and her snowy robe de nuit. I would make the usual preparations without, blow out the light, open the door, and friendly night would shield my shrinking modesty and bashfulness, and grateful darkness at least mitigate the horror of the situation. It was soon done. Preparations for retiring were few and simple in their character in Hickman, altogether consisting of disrobing, and, owing to scarcity of cloth, in those days man was somewhere near the Adamic state when he was prepared to woo sweet sleep. The dreadful hour had come; I was ready. I blew out the light, grasped the door knob with a deathly grip and nervous clutch; one moment and it would be over. One moment—and it wasn't over by a d—n sight. I leaped within, and there, around a glowing hickory fire, with candles brightly burning on the mantle and bureau, was the blushing bride, surrounded by the six lovely bridesmaids.

Blaine's Age and Decline.

Wash. Cor. Springfield Republican.

Blaine's power to make men, and good, level-headed men, think as he thinks, and see things with his eyes, has always been remarkable, and it has been so in this case. Men who are clear-headed enough in other matters actually believe that Mr. Blaine conducted himself precisely in the same way that a man who had been Secretary of State ought to conduct himself. If Mr. Blaine should meet a man as wise as Solomon, or as crafty and diplomatic as Count Fosco-which, by the way, he on the foreign affairs committee sat during Blaine's examination like pupils before an imperious tutor. They seemed to fear Blaine as a peasant would the Czar. He knew it. He made use of his knowledge. Belmont, however, with the blood of the Perry's-he is a cousin of Parnell and resembles the Irishman in some respects-and the stubbornness of his father, set out himself to learn something. He was twitmembers are not coached and helped from outside. Blaine shows age in some respects. He talks in private inces-santly about himself, and with a large spects they are out of the same piece of cloth. Blaine shows this more than he did. Age is an enemy he cannot down. People who are brought in contact with him see the cracks in the varnished outer coating, and they are speaking about it, carefully, to one another. Five years ago Mr. Blaine would not have made the mistake he did the other day. He sees it himself now, and the fact that he has made a mistake, rathe than the consequences of it, is some-

and will be totally destroyed. The loss will be one hundred thousand dollars, Fully insured. Three hundred operatives are thrown out of employment. Gleason, of New York, is the owner.
