WEDNESDAY, MAY 31, 1882.

REVOLUTIONARY REPUBLICANS. The action of the Republican majority is a bold and revolutionary step, and is taken in utter defiance of the rules laid down for the government of Congress. It is absurd to suppose that the majority has the right to change the rules so as to deprive of power the the minority which acts under those rules, in a special case as it has done in this case, and that in utter contempt of the rules which prescribe the mode by which the rules shall be changed. The Republicans have resolved by means fair or foul to seat the Republican contestants, and their action in this case shows how desperately in earnest they are. Speaker Keifer who is simply their pliant tool, is in the plot with them and like a jumping jack responds to every move of the wires which they make, and danced to the crack of his keepers' whip when he refused to entertain dilatory motions on a change of rules-a trick of the Republicans to choke off the opposition of the minority. The Democrats fought it with all the resources at their command until Keifer's arbitrary dictum closed their mouths and rendered further opposition impossible.

The Democratic Congressmen afterwards met in caucus and appointed a committee of five to manage the further conduct of the contest, which will require a change of tactics since the revolutionary action of Monday. What these tactics will be must depend, of course, upon the emergencies that may arise. It is evident that the Republicans intend to seat Mackey, and every other Republican contestant, or they would not have resorted to as extreme a measure as this of virtually annulling the rules of the House, under which they had been proceeding up to Monday last. The House yesterday was a perfect pandemonium, entirely beyond the control of the imbecile speaker, whose only qualification seems to be to obey the mandates of his masters and entertain motions or not as they direct. As a Speaker he and his gavel are both held in contempt by both sides.

As matters stand at present the situation in the House is decidedly inter-

THE PRESBYTERIANS FRATER-

Among the most interesting topics of discussion in the Presbyterian Assemblies at Atlanta, Ga., and Springfield, Illinois, was the proposition to fraternize and work together in future. The Springfield Assembly sent greetings to Atlanta, and requested that body to send delegates. The greetings were warmly received and responded to, but the proposition to unite and send delegates resulted in an animated discussion which lasted several days. Finally a committee was appointed to act in conjunction with the committee on foreign relations, to take into consideration the proposition from Springfield. This committee drafted a report which was submitted to the Assembly, counseling union under certain conditions, which was approved with but few dissenting voices, and the conditions telegraphed to Springfield. There they were received in a kindly spirit, and messages returned expressing gratification at the action of the Atlanta Assembly, and an expression of regret for any estrangement that had existed in the past, or unkind expressions that might have been indulged in as reflecting upon the Southern Church, which friendly expressions were accepted in the same spirit by the Assembly at Atlanta and the hand of reconciliation was extended. The breach was closed and a resolution passed to send delegates to the next General Assembly of the United States. There were but three dissenting voices in the Atlanta Synod to the proposition to send delegates.

On the last day of the session, Monday, the matter was again taken up at Atlanta, when some of the delegates manifested a disposition to reconsider the action taken on the ground that the messages from Springfield were either phrased in duplicity or were not fully understood, but it was decided that it was too late to re-open the question and the action taken must stand. A reso-

The convention adjourned Monday evening to meet at Lexington, Ky., the third Thursday in May, 1883, to which Assembly also the following Northern delegates were chosen by the Assembly at Springfield: Rev S J Nickolds, D D. Thomas Hastings, D D, Herrick Johnston, D D, E P Humphrey, D D. S Irenius Prime, D D, Hon S M Moore, Hon Wm Strong, principals. Alternates: Rev Arthur Mitchell, D D, Hon Wm E

The New York Times sent inquiries to a hundred editors in North Carolina. South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and Arkansas, asking about the solid South, the new move, Mr. Arthur's policy, etc., and didn't find a bit of encouragement in the replies, and comes to the conclusion that the South is as solid for the Democracy as ever.

BOTH SIDES ANGRY AND DEFI-ANT.

A Boisterous Day in the House, Following the Change of Rules by the Republicans, Bordering very Closely on a Rough-and-Tamble Set-to.

House.-The journal of yesterday having been read Springer, of Illinois, objected to its approval on the ground that it omitted all reference to two very important motions which he had submitted, and to appeals which he had made from the speaker's refusal to

He had an official report on the subject read from the Congressional Record and he then moved to have the journal corrected so as to include these two motions which were to lay on the table the report of the committee on rules, and to recommit the report with instructions together with the speaker's refusing to entertain them; his (Springer's) appeals from such refusal, and the speaker's declining to entertain them. The Speaker directed the clerk to read the rule governing the case to the effect that every motion made to, the House and entertained by the Speaker shall be entered on the journal, and he said that if the clerk had journalized these motions and appeals he would have acted improperly.

Mr. Springer pointed out similar cases in recent proceedings of the House where motions that were not entered were journalized. He argued that the motions were proper ones and should have appeared on the journal, which should show correctly and truthfully what was done, even though the journal might then contain condemnation of the man who sat in the Speaker's chair. (Indignant calls to order on the Republican side, and a declaration by the Speaker that the gentleman was not in order.) "I have a right to speak: if I am not in order let my words be taken down," said Springer. Speaker: "The Chair can very well

Mr. Springer attempted amid the ex citement and confusion to proceed with his remarks but was told peremptorily by the Speaker that the Sergeant-at-Arms would be directed to force him, at least, to desist. The Democratic members gathered around Springer, giving him aid and encouragement, while many Republican members were on their feet protesting angrily against Springer's course.

Springer informed the Speaker de-fiantly that he could not be taken from Humphreys, of Wisconsin: "You can, and will. I can do it myself."

Springer: "It would take a larger pattern than you to do it." [Continued laughter.] Speaker: "The Chair can very well afford to allow the gentleman from Illinois to make improper remarks in so far as they apply to the Chair alone, but it is quite another thing when the gentleman undertakes to destroy the dignity of the House by his own conduct." [Applause by Republicans.] Springer: "That has been already

"If that is so," said Reed, "it was by your side of the House." Speaker; "Any proper motion that the gentleman may wish to make relating to the correction of the journal will be entertained by the Chair and submitted to the House. The journal clerk in omitting the motions that were not entertained proceeded exactly in accordance with the rule. Knott, of Ky., after some further colloquy, made a constitutional argument in support of Springer's position. The command of the constitution was plain and peremptory that each house should keep a journal of its proceedings If that meant anything it meant that every transaction which took place during its session, every motion made and every ruling on it should be reduced to writing. A journal implied complete journal, The fact that a motion was out of order was no reason why that a motion and ruling upon it should not appear on the journal; on the contrary it should be recorded as a precedent for the future. If nothing was to go on the journal except what the Speaker chose to entertain then the will of Speaker and not of the constitution or the rules would be the law of the House. Where was the redress and what would become of the provision of the constitution which required that the proceedings of the House should be faithfully recorded? Had it come to this that the arbitrary will of the speaker, right or wrong, was to supercede and over-ride the constitution? He had as high a respect for the speaker as any other member had, yet he could not say that the speaker was infallible or incapable of making a mistake. When the speaker refused to entertain a motion that was perfectly legitimate, in such a refusal he (Knott) could not say that the speaker was not mistaken. On the contrary he saw that the speaker was mistaken, because the rules give the right of appeal from the decision of the chair.

The speaker admitted the accuracy of the general proposition stated by Knott but repeated that the journal clerk had acted strictly in obedience to the rule.

Haskell, of Kansas, argued that the journal was to contain the proceedings of the House, to be a record of the lution was, however, passed against things done by the House. A motion that was not entertained could certainly form no part of the proceedings of the House.

After further remarks by Kasson, Kelly and Randall, the motion to correct the Journal was rejected. Yeas 89, nays 134.

Miller, of Pa., then started with the opening of his speech in the contested election case of Mackey vs. O'Connor, but had not finished the first sentence when the attention of the Speaker was called by the Democretic members to the fact that the journal had not yet been approved. They demanded the yeas and nays on the question of approval. As the vote proceeded and as Democrats with-held their votes there was a likelihood of a failure of a quorum, but an active hunt after Republican absentees and the fact that Wilson, of W. Va., and Morse, of Mass., who were paired, carried out their promise to vote if necessary to make a quorum, the vote resulted in 146 year and 3 nays, so that the journal of yesterday was approved. Miller, of Pennsylvania, then proceeded with his speech in favor of the report of the election committee in the case of Mackey vs. O'Conner. In the course of his speech Miller caused some amusement by an exhibition of tissue ballots which he called "little jokers" by which Democratic frauds are said to have been committed in South Carolina. He gave an illustration of the use made of them and suggested that in some of the close Northern districts it might be convenient for the Demo-cratic candidates to understand the

The discussion was continued by Davis of Missouri, against the report and by Paul, of Virginia, in favor of it. Much of Paul's speech was directed to a discussion of the Readjustment policy in Virginia, to the praise of the Readjusters as an honest party and to a criticism of other Southern States in connection with their debts. He in fact declared that Virginia was the only debt-paying State of the late Southern Confederacy. The latter assertion was denied indignantly by Carlisle, of Kentucky, who declared that the State of Kentucky, had never scaled he mablic debt to the amount of one dollar and had never proposed to do so. The assertion of Carlisle was traversed by his colleague, White, who reminded him that certain counties in Kentucky had remaid to pay their debts. If that was not repudiation what was it?

Tillman of South Carolina, also deduced the debt and that it was now account of the state that it was the Republican party here which had repudisted the debt and that it was now account of the state of the state that it was now account of the state of the eratic party. At the conclusion of Paul's speech within fow minutes of 5 o'clock Calkins inquired whether if an evening session were dispensed with and the House now adjourn, the discussion would be resumed to-morrow without any obstruction from the Democratic side. The answer came back resolutely from Morrison, Atkins, Randall and other Democratic members that no agreement whatever would be made. Calkins then gave notice that he would call the previous question on the contested election case at 5 o'clock to-mor-

NEW YORK, May 30 .- A Shreveport, La., special to the Herald says considerable excitement was caused here yesterday by the rapid construction of the New Orleans Pacific Railway track through this city. The city council at a recent meeting gave the company the right to construct their road down Commerce street to Travis street, provided property owners agreed. All the property owners signed the agreement but three—one of them being the mayor of the city. On Saturday Chas. A. Leffingwell, in charge of the construction of the road, learned that certain parties would attempt to get out an injunction to stop work at certain points. Early on Sunday morning he commenced work on the line with a large force and by seven o'cleck in the evening had it completed to the point designated. The mayor attempted to interfere but Leffingwell informed him that his authority was not high enough. The mayor then ordered his arrest, but this was not carried out, and the work was continued to completion.

Memorial Day in the North.

WASHINGTON, May 30.-To-day, Decoration day, has been observed throughout the entire country, wholly or in part, as a holiday. No markets were held, excepting live stock trade. Memorial observances were in keeping with those of former years. President Arthur, who is in New York, participated in the exercises there, as did also ex-President Grant. An elaborate programme was carried out at Gettysburg where ex General, now Senator Hawley, of Connecticut, was the orator of the day, and ex-Secretary Blaine was one of the speakers. The weather has been uniformly favorable.

MRS. JEE PERSON:—

Madam—I commenced using your Remedy two years ago on my son. He was twenty years old, had been smileted with Scrofula eight years, had been treated by several physicians, and spent one season at the Alum Springs in Virginia. Nothing did him much good. He was very much reduced in flesh and looked badly, with poor appetite, and seven frightful running sores on his neck. After using your remedy awhile his strength increased, his appetite, complexion and general health were much improved, but the flow of corruption continued for some time. First the swelling legan to decrease until it nearly reached the sores, then they began to heal, and have not discharged in eighteen months, and are entirely well. As a blood Purifier and Tonic it is the best I ever tried. If has been worth its weight in gold to my son. blood Puriner and Tonic it is the pest I ever tried.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

Rev. Sylvanus Cobb thus writes in the Boston Christian Freeman:—We would by no means recommend any kind of medicine which we did not know to be good—particularly for infants. But of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup we can speak from knowledge; in our own family it has proved a blessing indeed, by giving an infant troubled with colic pains, quiet sleep, and its parents unknown rest at night. Most parents can appreciate these blessings. Here is an article which works to perfection, and which is harmless; for the sleep which it affords the infant is perfectly natural, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." And during the process of teething, its value is incalculable. We have frequently heard mothers say they would not be without it from the birth of the child till it had finished with the teething siege, on any consideration whatever. Sold by all druggists. 25 cents a bottle.
