LETTERS FROM A TRAMP.

NUMBER 4.

All Aboard for the Straits of Magellan--Cape Canso to the Isthmus of Tehuantepec--The Aggressive Anglo Saxon--The Language of the Future--Pinch Gut, Shoe Heel and the Sage of Clear Creek--Chicken Panic at Hornet.

HORNET, P. O., TOWNSHIP OF CLEAR CREEK, August 4th, 1882.

A traveler? by my faith you have great reason to be sad. I fear you have sold your own lands to see other men's, then to have seen eyes, and to have nothing to have rich eyes and poor hands.

As the future somewhat unveils itself to our prophetic vision, and "coming events cast their shadows before," we begin to perceive the first flush of a dawning period when the Tramp, the pioneer of modern civilization, may purchase a sleeping car ticket at Vancouver's Island, and rolling along through British Columbia--through States West of the Rocky Mountains--through Mexico, Central America, along the Isthmus of Panama--through Venezuela, Brazil, Paraguay and the Argentine confederation, down to Patagonia where the cry shall be "all aboard for the Straits of Magellan."

It is not improbable that within this very year of grace, the enterprising tramp may take cars at Cape Canso, (the eastern limit of this continent) and crossing the Victoria Bridge, over the St. Lawrence at Montreal, the Mississippi at St. Louis, and the Rio Grande at Laredo, find himself amidst the ruins of Aztec monuments in Mexico, en route to Oaxaca, Aton de Lizardi and the Isthmus of Tehuantepec.

It requires no prophet, gentle reader, to forecast events, which seem as plain as the handwriting "over against the wall" at the feast of Beshazzar. Before the onslaught of this aggressive Anglo Saxon race, which not so very many centuries ago, "when they first became known to the European navigators, were little superior to the natives of the Sandwich Islands," the Latin races on this continent must decline, and the language of Shakespeare and Milton prevail from Behring's Straits to the Straits of Magellan.

Presto! what a change since the cohorts of Caesar with the famed tent legion with their shields and javelins, their catapults and battering rams, struck terror to the hearts of the British of Britain--armed only as they were with the same kind of weapon as David used, when he slew Goliath--whose descendants to-day, under the shadow of mountains, and bellies erected thirty-five hundred years ago, are thundering at the gates of Egypt--whose "drum-beat is heard around the world," and whose language, laws, literature and religion, have captivated the senses of more than half mankind.

What a change indeed? The descendants of the naked savage, defending his coast in boats made of raw hide, such as the Esquimaux make, with the walls at the present day, are battering the walls of Alexandria in ships of iron and steel, and behold themselves represented all at parts of the world, where the colonies they planted have become "mightier and wealthier than the realm which Cortes and Pizarro added to the dominions of Castile." In Asia their Asiatic adventuring sons have founded an empire not less splendid and more durable than that of Alexander.

If the language of Horace, of Livy and of Sallust could not prevail against the rigorous jargon of the ancient Briton--if it not only maintained itself against the harsh laws of the conqueror, but in the language of the world, the greatest of poets, philosophers and historians--if before the last day all men shall speak the same language as they did before the building of the tower of Babel--it is not unreasonable to conclude that language to be the one in which we write and which we advise all Dutchmen and other foreigners to learn without delay.

If the Tramp, ancient history regarded the distance from Dan to Bersheeba, with feelings akin to horror, your readers may imagine the sensations of a modern Tramp, who with the noonday's sun scorching his rays on his manly form, has tramped from that pleasant summer resort Pinch Gut, to that prominent railroad centre Shoe Heel, in Union county, and among weary stages to the bygone days of the postmaster-general and sage of Clear Creek.

Nevertheless we found consolation in various picturesque scenes in "stones and running water," and in seeing growing crops which promise a rich harvest where "plenty leaps to laughing life with her redundant horn," and "Sometimes a dropping from the sky, we heard the rattle of the white Sometimes all little birds that are, With their sweet songings."

It was late when we saw in the distance the store of C. P. Mungo, like the "dome of Agrippa glittering with bronzes," and "The moving moon went up the sky, and hence the stars fell thick and fast, As they were wont to fall; and the bright day before we halted at the chief hotel in this city, where the dwellings are so far apart that only a few of them are visible to the naked eye.

Our host at this romantic town of Hornet, who to some who resemble Balthazar, Falstaff's lieutenant, and who his master was dying was advised to put his nose "between the sheets and to the office of a warming pan," is truly indeed a whole host in himself. Besides being a Postmaster General a lucrative office which exempts him from working on the roads, he is also custos rotularum, plants cotton and corn, advances the "cray," is a good landlord and neighbor, keeps store, and stands well with the church at Arlington. Early in youth on the principle that "Home staid youth have home staid wit," he has travelled as far as Charlotte, and listened to her siren songs and the midnight chimes of that modern Metropolis.

If the Vicar of Wakefield selected his wife as she was a good wife, good mother, and a good friend, and selected the partner of his joys and sorrows on the same principles, and those who wish to know how to get on in life, his full credit for good judgment and understanding.

There was a scampering among the chickens on one of the farms, when a Methodist Preacher riding the circuit, for when here on a previous tramp several turkeys were peened for our benefit looking to our imagination like the "doomed Senators in the army of Brennus."

The various encomiums we have written so eloquently on the various Sages whose acquaintance we made on our travels in this country, has given us a preemption right to the fattest chicken to be found on their premises, which is one reason why we are so liberal on their panegyrics.

If you have any skin diseases of the hair or scalp, any itching or discolored, sun burn, freckles, rough or dry harsh skin you have in Dr. C. W. Benson's Skin Cure, sure, perfect and elegant remedy. Sold by all druggists.

SENATOR HILL

Languishing in Pain and Expectancy of Death.

Atlanta Herald. The condition of Senator Hill this morning is practically the same as for two weeks past. He is daily weakening in strength and the end of his sufferings comes near every hour. He undergoes almost intolerable agonies, at times, relieved only by opiates, with which his quiet slumbers can alone be induced.

He is now being treated with a preparation of ergot, or barley, husks, discovered by a St. Louis physician, and said to have performed some miraculous cures of seemingly hopeless cases of cancer. Whether the new medicine cures or cures Senator Hill's malignancy is, however, not considered even problematical, and it is being used for whatever good results it may produce.

A WONDERFUL REMEDY.

We learn that the Senator has received nearly five hundred letters from persons throughout the Union who claim to have been cured of cancer by the use of red clover tea and poultices. In addition to these letters and as a timely testimony to the efficacy of the prescription is the following, which we find in one of our State exchanges this morning:

The Lumpkin (Ga.) Independent states that Mrs. Green E. Hurley, of that county, was effectually and permanently cured of a cancer by making a strong tea of the leaves and blossoms of red clover and drinking it in lieu of water. She occasionally made a poultice of the leaves and blossoms and applied it direct to the cancer. Mrs. Hurley was cured by this treatment within four weeks, and three years have passed and no sign of a return.

The Suicidal Mania.

An Englishman named John Wesley, aged 55 or 60, unmarried, resident of Wilmington, Del., for nearly twenty years, deliberately removed his outer coat of red clover tea and poultices, stuck his head out of the window and cut his throat with a razor.

Paul Tollner, a Chicago machinist, who had frequently quarrelled with his young wife, said to her yesterday: "Will you obey me after this?" Receiving an evasive reply, he fired two shots into her breast, killing her instantly. He then put a bullet through his own breast, and three years have passed and no sign of a return.

Yesterday afternoon, at Chicago Newton McMillan, a reporter on the Daily News, shot himself. It is believed that he cannot live. Despondency over the loss of his boarding-house, his costly tastes on a reporter's salary was the cause of the act.

Annie Scott, 15 years of age, of Wilmington, Del., took laudanum on Saturday with suicidal intent, and is in a critical condition. She was crossed in love.

In New York, yesterday, Emile Luthier, aged 40, a German cabinet-maker cut his throat with a razor in a fit of despondency.

A Secret Well Kept.

Some days ago, a report was circulated in this town that J. L. Holmes and J. H. Dodson were married, and to fully satisfy our readers, we examined the Register of deeds books on last Saturday. The record plainly shows that on the 8th of April last, license were issued for J. L. Holmes to marry Miss Lou E. Dodson, and accordingly on the 15th of the same month they were married in Winston by the Rev. Mr. Dodson. For 4 months this marriage has been a private secret, and not even their friends know as Mr. and Mrs. Holmes.

Cotton Seed Oil Mills.

Mr. Geo. Dick, of Baltimore, has been in this city for the past week, talking cotton seed oil mills to some of our merchants. We do not know exactly what success he has had, but trust that some one will take hold of the matter and erect a mill in this city. There is plenty of seed in the country, which would be sent him if there was a good mill to receive it. As yet, we judge from statistics we have seen published, there is a good margin for large profits.

We call attention to the advertisement in another column of Mr. J. L. Holmes, of the manufacturing business for years has been in the city of Baltimore, and is now in a factory, at work, become very skillful and can turn out better goods and more of them when the work is done in this city, than he can in any other place. He is now in the general agricultural business, but for plows, gun drills and fertilizers, claims to be able to compete with any other manufacturer in the land.

I Would Pay Ten Dollars per Bottle
