Among the deaths yesterday was Paul Crappen, clerk in the custom house. He went to bed at 7 a. m., and died soon after midnight of black vomit. He had claimplained several days. Merchants and city hotels have closed for business until the fever subsides.

The storm last night was the severest ever experienced here; the velocity of the wind at one time being 55 miles per hour. Quarantine boat Governor Bloxham capsized while en route from the quarantine station, and Richard and Jabez Marlow were drowned. British bark Roda was also capsized. The Captain and the capsized of the captain and the capsized of the captain and the capsized of the captain and are really a to her better until tain and crew clung to her bettom until rescued this morning. Several vessels are ashore near the quarantine station, and on Santa Rossa Island. An interior wall of the new opera house was blown down causing $1,500 damage.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 11.—News from the lower coast shows great damage from the high water of Saturday. At quarantine the ground was submerged and the people took refuge in the sec-ond story of the government ware-house. The water from the Gulf was driven entirely over many lower coast rice fields and the crops are entirely de-stroyed, where not gathered. The ex-tent of damage is unknwn.

Fire in Petersburg--One Life Lost. PETERSBURG, VA., Sept. 11.—At an early hour this morning three frame tenements on Halifax street, were destroyed by fire, and Henry Porter, a paralytic, completely roasted alive.
Asa Brown was so injured by inhaling the flames that it is thought he cannot recover. The fire was caused by the explosion of a kerosene lamp. The property was owned by Caroline Hill and was partially insured.

A Deputy Sheriff Shoots an Ex-Deputy. New Orleans, Sept. 11.—Geo. Deno, formerly sergeant of police and exdeputy sheriff, was shot and instantly killed in the parish prison last night by John Dominicks, deputy sheriff.

The Mutilated Remains of an Old Colored Man Found in His Own Yard. Wilmington Star.

Old Primus Young lived on the Hooper plantation, in Cape Fear town-ship, about six miles from this city. Some persons who visited his house yesterday morning were horrified at the spectacle which met their gaze. The house was open, and in the yard close by lay what remained of the body of old Primus Young, mutilated be-yond all possible chance of recognition except by the small portions of clothing which were still attached to the remains. There were indications to show that the body must have been dragged from the room in the house into the yard after death, or after the deceased had been stricken down by the hand of Providence or the blow of an assassin. We understand that nothing was missed from the house though there was no one to tell exactly what the building

There is no conclusion at present by which any one can form the slightest conclusion as to the cause of his death. A colored man named Johnston, who lives about one hundred yards from the house formerly occupied by the deceased, is the only person residing anywhere in the neighborhood, and al-though the old man must have been dead for some little time—perhaps two or three days—before the body was dis-covered, he (Johnston) knew nothing of it, according to his own declarations, until yesterday morning.

Coroner Hewlett was notified of the finding of the remains and will hold an inquest over them.

A Justice Leagued with Criminals. Boston, Sept. 8.—Trial Justice G. F. Willis, of Putnam, Conn., has been arrested in Providence, R. I., on the charge of incendiarism. He is about 60 years of age, and had been a deputy United States marshal and president of an insurance company. A large block of stores in Putnam was burned June 1st. The select men of the town employed detectives, who found that Willis was interested with Chas. Warren, who occupied a fancy goods store in the block. The detectives claim to have tracked Willis to Boston with a gang of bank sneak thieves who had stolen some bonds which they wished him to negotiate, and while Willis was trying to convince the thieves that he was worthy of their confidence, he was overheard in the adjoining apartment by the detectives and H. F. Atwood, assistant secretary of the Rochester German Insurance Company. Later they tracked him to Providence, where, it is said, as a test for the bank sneak thieves, he had gone with them to commit a robbery on the National Bank of Westminster. He remained outside the bank while the men went in and took a package of money believed to be robbery, Willis recounting his exploits as president of the fire insurance company, which he had largely defrauded. At this stage the concealed detectives arrested Willis and will arrest Warren.

The Art of Party Politics. Chicago Times. For partisans of a lofty and beneficial principle, the Greenbackers are not shining this year with pure and serene ray. In fact, they appear to no better advantage than either of the old parties, with whom, as occasion prompts or opportunity invites, they join forces in a hunt for the spoils. In Maine and Michigan they coalesce with the Demo-crats. In Alabama and South Caroli-na they hunt with the Republicans. Nowhere are they numerically strong, and everywhere their eagerness to sell out to any party that thinks it can advance its own purposes by conceding them something is conspicuous and con-temptible. It speaks no better for the sincerity or consistency of the old parties that the Democrats in South Carolina are pointing the finger of scorn at the Republicans for fusing with the Greenbackers, while the Republicans of Michigan are condemning the Demo-crats of that State for a like move. Party politics is the art of office-getting.

fornias. From Chambers Journal. Recently Captain Burton, the celebrated traveler, has reported that almost illimitable gold can be obtained at the Gold Coast, Africa, a district which has been auriferously prolific for centuries. He says the region is equal to half a dozen Californias, a statement that might be doubted if made by a less capable authority. The testimony of the great traveler is supported by another illustrious discoverer, Commander Cameron, who visited and investigated the Gold Coast along with Captain Burton. Gold is found in the sea-sand, in the dust of the roads and in the model wells of pative buts. in the mud walls of native huts. Sevin the mud walls of native huts. Several mining companies are engaged in gold finding in the district, and they testify to the great possibilities it affords. A subject of such importance has, of course, been widely discussed by experts in England, and by this time large numbers of prospectors are doubtless verifying matters on the spot. There are many difficulties in Africa that did not confront the gold diggers of California and Australia. The climate has its dangers; the inhabitants mate has its dangers; the inhabitants are savages; the rulers suspicious and hostile to strangers. But where abundant gold is to be with ease white men will go, and the capital of civilization will flow thither, bearing 10,000 energies to confront those of nature and barbarism. The want of gold is so great that the world must have it at any risk, and were it guarded by all the savages of Africa united into a single host it would become the possession of commerce. When geologists and spe-cialists have pronounced a favorable opinion, and diggers have proof positive that a great gold deposit remains to be worked, the difficulties with na-tives will soon be solved. Medical science can mitigate the evils of the worst climate. During the thirty years of great gold discovery the art of mining and washing for the metal has ing and washing for the metal has made more progress than in all antecedent time. Everything favors the speedy translation of African gold into the channels of international trade, should it be found in the quantities alleged by Captain Burton. But besides enlarging the possibilities of external civilization African gold would introduce an enduring civilization into the channels with the channels duce an enduring civilization into Africa itself in those equatorial regions that have hitherto remained barbaric. California and Australia have given their auriferous treasures to the world. and in return have received a far greater enrichment in agricultural, pastoral, and mechanical wealth. Metallic deserts have been changed into industrial empires that will enrich man for all coming time. So, in equatorial Africa, when gold has disappeared civilization will remain. Who can say what com-mercial future awaits the inhabitants of the dark continent when once they are affiliated with the rest of the human

Savannah News. Hon. Cassius M. Clay, of Kentucky, recently remarked in substance that the South was in no special need of "Yankee push and Yankee brains." Mr. Clay was right, but the assertion to the contrary has been made so often at the North, and of late years certain Southern journals have so rung the changes on this catching phrase, that the North-ern people are, in a measure, excusable for thinking themselves our superiors, and regarding our people as indolent plodders content to live with but little thought for the future. A brief glance at the record of the South, however, will show that if there is any superiority between the men of the North and South, the advantage is with the Northern capital recently has done much for the South, it is true, but the prosperity our section enjoys is of her own creation, and its accomplishment affords a splendid vindication of South-ern tact and pluck. The South of 1865 and the South of to-day form a contrast such as only a land laid waste by war and a land filled with plenty can present. Great as was the ante bellum past of the South, the years spent in the task of her recuperation are the brightest in her annals. Almost entirely unaided her people rose from poverty to contentment, and now look forward with proud confidence to a splendid future. Wherein, then, lies the North's superiority? If it can be found anywhere, it is in the alleged fact that the average Northern man is better supplied with the world's goods than the average Southerner, and so has possessed the means for developing his section and benefiting himself. Probably in the past this was in the main true, but that it is true to-day may fairly be disputed. Granted that the millionaires of the North outnumber those of the South by long odds, the farmer, the laborer and mechanic of the former section derive but little benefit from the disparity. The Southern planter has the same opportunity to maintain his family from his land as the Northern farmer has, and besides has in his cotton and tobacco surplus crops far more practicable than the latter can possibly produce, while it is a conceded fact that the laborer of the South is much more contented with his lot than his fellowworkman of the North. Wherein then is any superiority of the latter over the former in any respect manifested? From another point of view, too, Northern superiority fails to appear. The Southerner who goes North to improve his fortunes, as a rule, fares as well, and often better, than the Northerner who comes South for a like purpose. The representative men of either section are balanced in intelligence and capabilities, and are only distinguished by traits of ancestry and habits acquired from social sources. If the South can strictly be called poor, it is $50,000. He met them at a hotel in not from lack of natural facilities or Providence and they talked over the the capacity in her people. Her resources are manifest. The ability of her people to develop them has been proved. All she needs is capital, and with the inducements she offers she will not have long to wait for it. Already it is being attracted by the splendid opportunities she offers for investments, and while brains and energy of the North will be welcomed just as the brains ar d energy of the rest of the universe, it will not be because of any alleged superiority of that section.

Neither mentally nor physically, nor in any other respect, then can this vaunted superiority be proven, and its assumption is purely gratuitous, while its recognition by our section is absurdly belittling. The theory that "one Southerner was a match for five Yankees" was exploded long ago, but that the average Southerner need yield in nothing to the average Northerner is a frezen fact,

A Capital Suggestion. Greensboro Patriot.

A Greensboro man, who always carries a level head, suggests to us the organization of a building association in ganization of a building association in Greensboro on a new plan. The idea is to furnish mechanics and industrious working people cheap homes on easy payments. It is proposed to do this by purchasing lots and building cottages upon them, which will be rented to persons who are able to pay from $18 to $20 per month, the rent money to be received in payment for the house and lot. At the expiration of five or six years the renter will have paid for his house and lot in menthly rents, and will own it. The company will retain the right to the property until it is paid for. They will value the property at an amount over and above the cost equal to a fair rate of interest. The plan strikes as being an excellent one.
