NOON DISPATCHES.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. The Tariff Commission at Nashville.

NASHVILLE, Sept. 20.—The members of the tariff commission, Hayes, Boteler, Underwood, Oliver and Garland, arrived here to-night from St. Louis. A reception was given them at the residence of Mr. Colyar, where many prominent citizens assembled to greet them. Afterward a formal session was held in the parlors and various opinions on the tariff expressed. W. H. Jackson, a former general in the Confederate army and now engaged extensively in farming and cattle raising, appealed for such a revision of the tariff as would do justice to the agricultural part of this population. He wanted farmers protected. J. B. Killebrew, who is engaged in the iron business wanted the tariff on iron and steel let alone, because if it was raised the large capital that would be invested in the business in Pennsylvania Underwood, Oliver and Garland, ared in the business in Pennsylvania would effectually crush out the business in Tennessee. The commission left for Chattanooga after midnight.

Throwing the Blame on the Khedive and Sultan.

London, Sept. 21.—A Cairo dispatch says Arabi Pasha asserts that all his acts were done at the instigation of the Khedive and the Sultan and he was unable to restrain the Egyptian army from fighting. His war office has been searched and important documents found. Thirty fanatical Sheiks have been placed in custody in the citadel.

Making Wholesale Arrests.

CAIRO, Sept 21.—Under the direction of Sultan Pasha, a series of wholesale arrests of the supporters of the national party is proceeding. All who signed the proclamation authorizing Arabi Pasha to continue the war are being imprisoned. The arrests are being conducted entirely by the Khedive's government.

Reduction of the Public Debt. Washington, Sept. 19.—A statement has been prepared by the Treasury Department which shows that from Nov. , 1881, to Sept. 1, 1882, under the administration of Secretary Folger, the interest bearing debt of the United States has been reduced by $129,035,000, and the annual interest charge by $4,515,756. During the eight months of Secretary Windom's abministration the reduction of the interest bearing debt was $108,206,250, and of the annual interest charge $15,883,692. This large reduction in the interest charge was affected by refunding the fives and sixes into 31/2 per cent. bonds. During Secretary Sherman's four years' term the reduction of the debt was $208,824.730, and of the interest charge $17,557,708. The total reduction since August 31, 1865, when the debt reached its highest point, has been $943,836,544, or 40 per cent. of the whole. The whole debt is

MANY YOTERS. THE LONE STAR STATE.

The Soil, Health, Morals, and Other Things. To the Editor of the Observer.

Having spent several months in the West, I have thought that a brief description of that country might be of some interest to your readers. Had some interest to your readers. Had those who have returned previously seen the country as I have seen it, I should not attempt to rehearse the old story so familiar to all, but having gone there under the most unfavorable auspices, and having remained until the glorious light of friendship and love could be seen breaking through the dark mists that always gather around a youth in a foreign land, I feel prepared to so interweave the objectionable with the commendable as to make a rewith the commendable as to make a report that will harmonize with the real and not subject to contradiction. The country alluded to is that of the Lone Star State. Star State.

As the natural resources of every country proclaim the extent of its future wealth and greatness, the first duty of the explorer of a new country is to examine carefully the disposals of nature, and, as the greatest comforts of mankind come directly or indirectly from the soil, a fertile land bespeaks ease, prosperity, luxury and power. Texas is not noted for its Eldoradoes, but it has a soil than which there is none in the United States more pronone in the United States more productive. There, in the wide-spread timbered bottom, the play-ground of the turkey and the deer; the green, flower-decked prairie, the home of the prairie hen and mule-eared rabbit; or on the level plains where rove the antelope and the buffalo, may be found the fertile soil. Thus men of the most varied tastes might find homes to suit their fancies. Next we find two kinds of land, the sandy and the black. The of land, the sandy and the black. The sandy land presents a smooth, level surface, is easily cultivated, and with moderate seasons will produce from twenty to forty bushels wheat per acre, ifty of corn and a bale of cotton. The only objections are that dry seasons will come occasionally, and when the wind blows the sands fly. The unimproved black land has a rugged, uneven surface, having low and high places, without regularity or uniformity. The inhabitants call it the "hog-waller" land from the resemblance that these

to the natural cause of this unevenness, for his appearance. The black land soil is from one to twelve feet deep, produces from forty to eighty bushels of corn per acre, and when well cultivated averages, one year with another, eighteen hundred pounds of seed cotton. This land does not require more than half the labor spent on the lands here; and the chiggers (minute red bugs) and black mud are not so objectionable after all. It is estimated (and I think very correctly) that every bushel of black dirt contains a bushel and a half of "chiggers," but when a man is besmeared from the crown of his head to the soul of his feet with axel grease, they stand aloof and "cease from troubling." Then when it becomes so muddy that a saddle blanket would mire down and the mud is knee deep in the dwelling houses. you will hear some lady say, "Oh my! this is perfectly horrible!!" When a young man walks out in the moonlight with all his brightest hopes hanging on his arm and his shoes yield to the tena-cious grasp of the mud, he staggers around in his white hose, and while she thinks they are a little less than two bales of cotton, he says, "Excuse me," and breaths out some sayings he did no! learn in Sabbath school. But to say nothing of the sand, "chiggers" and mud, which are not so objectionable after any one has become accustomed to them, its farming facilities are surpassed by no other State. Land is cheap, productive and easily improved, and the State so well supplied with railroads that the farmer, the merchant and the manufacturer may enjoy advantages equal to those of older States. Its facilities for stock raising are well-known the world over. But the great objection brought against Texas s that it is an unhealthy country. This charge exists only in the minds of those who have never been there. It is true that Texas, like every other State, has some sickly localities, but in proportion to its area it is as healthy as any of the Southern States. Moreover, the most beautiful feature is that its sanitary condition is growing better as the country is being settled. Chills and fever are less frequent than they were ten years ago. This will be obvious when we remember that ten years ago farms were few and far between; that the prairies were then covered with a luxurious growth of vegetation; and this, in a state of decomposition, produced a malaria which generated sickness. Much of this vegetation has been obliterated by the farmer, and many prairies have intermingled with the grass the towering Texas sunflower, which scientists declare has become a great agent in purifying the atmosphere. There is also a constant breeze, and this already in some localities is so pure that a fresh quarter of beef when exposed to the wind will be preserved for an indefinite time, and when taken in will be found delicious and already salted by the atmosphere. It is generally believed that Texans are selfish, indolent, illiterate and immoral. Thus they may appear to the New Yorker or Bostonian, but no considerate Tar Heel would ever dare to make such an assertion. I must say, however, that no stranger could be very favorably impressed with the average Texan on first acquaintance, simply for the reason that they have been too often swindled by those who have gone there to evade the laws of other States; but when you have proved a man of principle there is no one too exalted to be your friend-no favor too great to be conferred upon you. Go to the cities and there you find not only the enterprising, energetic, go-ahead citizens. but men of excellent business capacities. Visit the farms, and you find scientific operation and farming reduced to such a "fine point" as to make it a luxury instead of a drudgery. Go to the churches about nine on Sabbath morning, and whether in the city or country, you will see people of all sizes and ages assembled together. This means business. The people have established Sabbath schools and keep them in a flourishing condition, not by sending, but by taking out their children. While the morals are being im proved the intellect is not neglected. Schools receive much encouragement, and all seem to be inspired with an invincible determination to advance. But, while Texas must soon become the Empire State, the "Old North State" must not be forgotten. She is old, but never have her facilities for enjoyment, prosperity and luxury been doubted. Her cooling springs, her crystal streams, her rich mountain scenery and her genial clime are not met with elsewhere. Let not, then, her brave sons desert her to seek homes in the West, for the men who would flourish most there are the men the Old North State needs to de-visitors there. DOLPHUS. $1500 per year can be easily made at home working for E. G. Rideout & Co., 10 Barclay street New York, Send for their catalogue and full par ticulars.
