Brewster Cameron, who, according to Foreman Dickson's charge, tried to bribe him on behalf of the government, comes back at that mammoth-mouthed individual and declares that he was "approached" by Dickson, who wanted to know "whether the government would make it all right in case he (Dickson) voted for conviction." Some one who wants to get a contract to build war ships is circulating a pamphlet in the North with the following startling title: "The War of 1886 between Great Britain and the United States," in which he narrates the capture of the seacoast, lake, and Lower Mississippi ports, all round the circumference, by British ironclads: the war contributions levied on the cities; the military, financial, and political strugheld under British guns; the British occupation of the capital; the severe terms of peace; the holding of New York until the war fine was paid; the complete prostration of the country, and then its rise to a new life, a new system, and greater prosperity.

I passed my early years in an atmosphere filled with traditions of the war which secured our national independ. ence and of the struggles which made our constitutional system a government for the people by the people, and I learned to idealize the institutions of my country.—Samuel J. Tilden's Letter of Acceptance in 1876.

MR. HOAR'S OPINION.

When Senator Hoar, of Massachusetts, was chosen chairman of the State Republican convention Tuesday at Worcester, he made a speech, as chairmen usually do. In that speech he devoted much attention to Virginia and congratulated his hearers that the solid "with a wholesome discretion, the remady is not to take South was broken at last by the conversion of the great State of Virginia to Republicanism. He was perhaps a little too previous in his congratulations, for the probabilities are that Mr. Mahone and his allies will be routed "horse, foot and dragoons" in the coming election, and old Virginia will again resume her accustomed place in the Democratic column. The people of that grand old commonwealth have watched the selling out process and rebel against the idea of being traded as political chattels to further the aspirations of Mahone and the cabal that conspired with him in the game of selling them to the Republican party. But we call attention to Senator - Hoar's speech to show that Virginia is claimed as a Republican State, as North Carolina will be in the event that the coalition programme concocted here should succeed. All the coalitions in the different Southern States, whether it be with Readjusters in Virginia, Liberals in North Carolina, Greenbackers in South Carolina, Alabama, Arkansas, or Texas, Independents in Georgia or Mississippi of Florida, debt presentment that he will not live till scalers or non-debt scalers in Tennessee, are directly or indirectly in the interest of the Republican party, which will profit by the victory wherever and George L. Ingram. The Irving Hall delegation took similar action and appointed a committee of 12 including ex-Judge Geo. M. Curtis, C. W. Brooke, ex-Senator Luke Cozens

The State convention was called to order at 12:15 by Daniel Manning, the chairman of the State committee, who presented the name of Rufus W. Peckham for temporary chairman in behalf of the State committee. The convention ratified the choice of the committee without dissent.

On being presented to the convention Mr. Peckham was greeted with much applause and on taking the chair thanked the convention for the honor conferred upon him. He said: What is said by me will not be of much importance. What is done by the convention will be of the greatest importance. Three years ago the Republican party nominated for Governor Alonzo B. Cornell. The Democratic party nominated Lucius Robinson, doing what it thought wisest and best for the party, but owing to unfortunate divisions our candidate was defeated. Cornell is said by many Republicans to have conducted a wise administration, but the Republican party has set aside Gov. Cornell and at the dictation of the Federal administration has nominated Chas. J. Folger. He has not been nominated on account of his personal power but because he is a representative of federal power and federal patronage Within one year from the death of Garfield we find that the federal administration is forcing a candidate upon the Republicans of the States. This is a Democratic opportunity. We want to nominate a man here who will draw in addition to the Democratic vote the vote of the half breed or of the independent Republicans of the State. [Applause] Never has the Republican party wielded civil service power more basely than since C. A. Arthur became President by the bullet of an assassin. We arraign the Republican party for its subserviency to the money power of the country. At the dictation of Jay Gould, that arch conspirator of Wall street, with a surplus of millions in the National treasury, we find that the Republican party has refused to do anything to relieve the tax-payers of the country.

Daniel S. Lamont was made temporary secretary. The credentials of three contesting delegations from New York city and a protest from the Tammany delegation in addition were referred to the credentials committee when appointed. A resolution was adopted that the credentials committee should be composed of one member from each Congressional district, to be appointed by the chair. On nomination delegations from such districts the following resolution was adopted:

Whereas, We recognize with regret the existence of serious differences among the Democracy of the county of New York, and

and How to Counteract It. One of the great scourges of the present year in all parts of America has been malaria. This is a trouble so treacherous in its nature and so dangerous in its results as to justly cause apprehen-sion wherever it has appeared. But there are so many erroneous ideas upon the subject that a few words are in order at a time when people are subject to malarial influences. Malaria, which means simply bad air, is the common name of a class of dileases which arise from spores of decaying vegetable matter, thrown off from stagoant pools or plies of vegetation undergoing decomposition. These spores when inhaled with the breath or taken into the system with water soon enter the blood and germinating there find a foothold, whereby the whole system is poisoned and the various functions disordered. When the germ theory of disease was first advanced it was supposed that these spores were of animal nature, and like the bacteria in diphtheria were propagated in the blood, but they are now conceived to be of vegetable origin, like the fung found on decaying wood or in celiars. The source of this state of the air is generally swamps of stagnant pools, which, partially dried by the hot sun, send forth vapors loaded with this malarial poison, These vapors descend to the earth in the night, cooled by the loss of temperature, and breathed by sleepers are readily inhaled. Hence persons living near stagmant pools or marshes are liable to be afflicted with chills and fever, and such localities are never healthy, though they are more so when the streams flowing into them are pure, and also when the water is high. Again the drainage of houses, slaughter houses, barns, etc., is a fertile source of malaria. One will often notice in coming into the neighporhood of one of these village a most villainous smell caused by the offen the atmosphere, especially on hot days. This absorbed into the system by the lungs or taken in through water, which also absorbs it from the air, poisons the blood and deranges the whole system This poison is also developed in force in wells and sluggish streams that pass through almost every sive refuse which communicates its bad odor to springs when they become low, and the result of dinking these is the same as breathing the poison-ous air. In a time of drought the great quantity of vegetation that dries up in the meadows, stubble fields and pastures, the corn fields and lorest leaves produces the same effluvia. On the prairies when large tracts of prairie ground are turned over, the decaying vegetation is a widespread cause of

The evils which follow malarial poisoning are almost infinite. Disease of a malignant and dangerous nature, accompanied by symptoms the most distressing are certain to manifest them-selves and life is a burden so long as this poison remains in the system. The indications of mala-rial poisoning are loss of appetite, shormess of breath, pains about the heart, wasting of fiesh and strength, despondency, nervousness, chilly sensa-tions, unaccountable lassitude, dull pains in various parts of the body, headaches, dizziness, a coated tongue and dry mouth, night sweats, muscular debility, puffing under the eyes, an unusual cular, odor or sediment about the fluids passed from the system, etc. Any one of the above symp-toms may be an indication of malarial poison in the body which necessitates immediate and careful attention. But if malarial poison could not find a lodgment in the human body, it would just as harmless a the oxygen of the air. The great difficulty is that, after being absorbed into the system, it produces obstructions in the stomach and lungs, clogs the circulation of the blood, affects the kidneys, liver and other organs, and brings on diseases of a most dangerous character. There is only one known way by which these diseases may be avoided or cured after they have once made their ap-pearance, and that is by keeping the great purify-ing organs of the body in perfect health These ing organs of the body in perfect health These organs are the kidneys and liver. No one whose kidneys or liver are in perfect condition was ever afficted by malarial poison. And when these organs are disordered, they not only permit but invite, these diseases to make their inroads into the Resolved, That this convention respectfully and earnestly appeals to each and every one of the various Demokeeps the kidneys and liver in constant health and hence prevents malarial sickness. This remedy is Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. remedy is Warner's Eafe Kidney and Liver Cure, the most popular pedicine before the American people, and sold by every druggist in the land. It fully counteracts the evil effect of malarial poison in fhe system, and not only banishes it, but restores the members which that poison has weakened. How well it does this can be learned from the following:

KANSAS CITY. Mo, June 26th. 1882.—Moving from the State of New York to the western country, I was attacked with maiaria and general debility. I had lost all appetite and was hardly able to move about. I had tried a great many remedles, but nothing bettered my condition until I began but nothing bettered my condition until I began using Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, which seemed to help me right away, and I feel as well as I ever have in my life. It is a blessing to people in this malarious country,

C. F. WILLIAM.

1412 Grand Ave., of William & Co., Hardware.

This great remedy has proven its power in innumerable cases, and is to day more extensively used in malarial districts, whether in cities or in the country, than any or all other remedies for the cure of the same class of disease. No one can afford to triflle with the first symptoms of malaria, but instant care should be taken to check it on the start before its evil influences overshadow the life.
