cold or sore throat may not seem to A cold of sore throat may not seem to amount to much, and if promptly attended to can easily be cured; but neglect is often followed by consumption or diphtheria. No medicine has ever been discovered which acts so quickly and surely in such eases as PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER. The prompt use of this invaluable remedy has saved thousands of lives. PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER IS not an experiment. It has been before the public for forty years, and is most valued

I was suffering severely with bronchitis, and my throat was so inflamed I could scarcely swallow any food. I was advised to try your Pain Killer, and after taking a few doses was completely cured.—T. WILKINSON.

Dr. Walton writes from Coshocton: Your Pain Killer, cures dighther and sore throat, so alarmingly revalent here, and as not been known to fall in a single instance. This fact you should make mown to the world.

Ans. Killer B. Mason writes: My son was taken violently sick with dighther in high feer, and cold chills. So many children, have died here, I was afraid to call a physician; and tried your Pain Killer. He was taken to Sunday, and on Wednesday his throat was clear. It was a wonderful cure, and I wish it could be known to the poor mothers who are losing so many children.

For Chills and Fever Pain Killer has no equal. It cures when everything else fails. Delays are often dangerous. A bottle of Pain Killer in the house is a safeguard that no family should be without.

All druggists sell it at 35c., 50c., and $1.00 per bottle.

A Norfolk Lady Drowns Herself. NORFOLK, VA. OCTOBER 4-Mrs. Wm. M. Hannon, wife of a well known business man of Norfolk, left Baltimore last evening as a passenger on the Bay Line Steamer. When off Point Lookout a lady, her companion in the state room, was aroused by a cool draught of air from a raised window and discovered that Mrs. Hannon was missing. The alarm was given and search made but she could nowhere be found. She had been despondent for some weeks and had gone North for recreation. Temporary aberration of mind it is thought was the cause of suicide. She leaves several young children.

Mr. Reeves of Alleghany Withdraws. A few weeks ago, at the urgent request of many of you, I consented to become a candidate to represent the county of Alleghany in the next Legislature of North Carolina, and announced myself as such candidate. I was then of the opinion that although I was an independent candidate, I the Democratic party, to the interest of which I have in an humble manner devoted all my political life. Since I became a candidate I find that our political opponents are endeavoring to profit by my candidey, and thereby bring confusion into the Democratic ranks. My friends, I am the last man at this hour of our peril to come with lighted torch, and drawn dagger, to stab the party that I have nurtured from my early manhood. After mature reflection with the lights now before me, I am of the opinion that my duty as a Democrat demands my withdrawal from the field, and I take this method of explaining to you the motives that have prompted extend to you my thanks for the kind feelings expressed by you for me. Now, my fellow-citizens, those of you who proposed to follow the Demosey, the nominee of our party. Continue battling for the victory over which our flag will proudly float in November. Judge Folger Accepts. NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Secretary Folger, in his letter accepting the Republi-can nomination, says the methods of the convention were in accordance with ly considering the matter, and weighing the reasons which they presented, he concluded that it was his duty to accept. He says: "As I sought not the nomination, as I was not glad when it came to me, as I could always have seen and could now see it go to another without one twinge of regret, I have no personal reason why I should not refuse it with alacrity. But the matter is not solely or chiefly personal. It has a wider and vastly more important scope. In my judgment, for any one placed as I am at this time, to decline the nomiof the Republican party."

Judge Folger then goes on to show that at this late day it would be impossible to call a new State convention, the Republican party. If it is to be defeated at the coming election, he will go down with the party, serene in the consciousness than no act of his "has wrought the rueful ruin."

The present weight of the structure is about 70,000 tons of 2,240 pounds. The tapering off of the monument is now so rapid that the additional weight to the top will probably not exceed 10,000 tons. Col. Casey, of the United States engineer corps, in charge of the structure, said to-day that he will recommend that Congress at the next session make a sufficient appropriation for the entire completion of he monument. One hundred and sixty feet of the monument have been added since Col. Casey took charge, and in that time the structure has not settled more than an inch, and is not out of plumb by the thickness of a horse hair.

Colonel Hugh Sisson, of Baltimore, the contractor, was here to-day and was congratulated by Col. Casey for the prompt furnishing of the marble required. Col. Casey said he would like to push the work a little faster than the contract called for the deliverance of the marble, and Mr. Sisson said there would be no difficulty about it; that he would furnish it as fast as wanted. The quality of the marble which is going to the monument is very much admired, and experts say that no finer marble can be found in the United States, if in

HELD DOWN TO DIE, An Appaling Incident that Calls to Mind the Story of Tantalus.

On the track between South San Leandro and the High street station, Alameda, half a mile on the San Leandro side, is a long trestle bridge over an estuary of the bay. For over a mile the trestle runs over marsh lands, the tide rising on each side of the embankment Ever since the railroad has been built there has been trouble in keeping the railroad bed from sinking. A few weeks ago the track at this point sunk for one hundred and fifty feet, and traffic was suspended for a short time. Last evening as the through freight train from Alameda, drawn by engine No 10, a large and heavy machine, and six cars. arrived at this particular point the track sunk, apparently more on one side than the other. The engine was overturned and the cars piled on top. The fireman, Dan Driscon, died a horrible death. When the engine turned over he was held to the ground by an iron bar across his breast, and one foot was caught by another. He was fully conscious at the time of his death. He was held fast and the tide was rising rapidly. It was evident he would be drowned in short time. Six men were on hand and labored to save him. They wrapped sheets about his body and exerted their combined strength to pull him from his appalling position. He cried piteously that they were killing him. They tried again and again, but with the same result. A levee was built about his head to keep down the rising tide. Buckets were brought and by faithful bailing it was attempted to keep the water from reaching his head He was lying under the cab and a hole

They held his head above the water, which rose slowly above his body. The men found they must make a final effort. Then his head was lowered and they all caught hold and pulled desperately. It was in vain. They could not move him. They raised his head again. The water rose slowly and surely. It reached his chin. A friend held his hand over the drowning man's mouth. The water rose to his nostrils. Nothing more could be done, and he was drowned.

Observations on the Comet.

Cor. Baltimore Sun. WASHINGTON, Cctober 2.-Another satisfactory observation of the great comet was made at the Naval Observatory this morning by Prof. Frisby, who says that the latest observations confirm the truth of the prediction that it was moving very nearly in the track of would not interfere with the interest of | the comets of 1843 and 1880. The first computations were necessarily imperfect from the consideration that three observations must be obtained before there are data enough to determine an orbit, and a considerable amount of time should clapse between the observations, while in this case that condition could not be supplied, as observations had to be taken one day apart. "Now," says Prof. Frisby, "if we also consider that it takes light a considerable time to come from the comet to the earth, and that we do not see these objects in their true position on that account, and also because we are not situated at the centre of the earth, we see that the problem is quite difficult, and my action, and in so doing allow me to especially as all these corrections depend on the distance of the comet from the earth, which is necessarily unknown when the computation is commenced. We need not therefore be surprised if cratic banner while borne by me as the comet should be some distance your candidate, let me appeal to you to | from the computed place, and when we continue to follow that banner, now add to this consideration the fact that, carried by my late opponent, Wm. Hal- for simplicity, the orbit of a comet is assumed to be a curve, which geometers call a parabola, which assumption may be very wide of the truth, it is a remarkable fact that it has been found very occasions you will find me in the thick- near its predicted place from the first computation of its orbit."

There have not yet been observations enough to determine when it will return if it ever does. The difficulty in determining this important element arises from the consideration that comets can usually be seen only when near to their perihelia or nearest points to the sun, and there the arcs of ellipses, parabolas and hyperbolas almost coinreached there was no hesitation in vielding acquiescence in the result.

Prominent persons asked him to decline the nomination, but after any sight error of observation would apparently change the nature of the path. Now all planets and comets move round the sun in curves called conic sections; the particular kind on the path of the observation, the ellipse being the only curve in which a body in motion round the sun can move so as to return. The comet is changing in appearance very slowly. The nucleus appears to have increased in length to about 20 seconds of arc, the tail extending in the direction of the star Hydræ To about two-thirds of its distance it is curved and slightly concave toward the right, terminating quite abruptly; the nucleus is well-defined, but irregular, and seems to be almost destitute of the usual cometary halo; it is of almost uniform nation would produce the utter collapse | brightness and can be seen through a telescope well in the twilight. It will no doubt be a very conspicuous object after the present moonlight is gone. The comet is now moving from the sun and he says somewhat mournfully that be the result what it may, he will not take the responsibility of breaking up so that any fear of a collision with either of these bodies is at present groundless, and the most timid need have no apprehensions or fears.
