erty. The story of the case is briefly

The late James Baird inherited a large property from his father. James was a widower with children. Both before and after his inheritance of his father's property he courted the lady who is now his widow, became formally "engaged" to her September 23, 1878, and married her on the 12th of November following. A few days before the "engagement," but after he had declared to several friends his intention to marry this lady, he conveyed all his real estate, to the value of about seventy thousand dollars, to certain trustees in trust for himself during life, and then to his children by his first wife.

This trust conveyance appears to have been instigated by the trustees as a friendly act, to prevent him from squandering his inheritance, rather than from any purpose to defraud the aflianced bride of the rights in the property that would accrue to her upon her marriage. Mr. Baird died in about four months after the marriage, and,

Among the important cases now pending in the Supreme court of the nited States are what are termed the original bond cases, from New York and New Hampshire, against the State of Louisiana. These cases are brought against Louisiana to make that State pay bonds she has repudiated as having been illegally issued. These cases are of particular interest to us here in North Carolina, because if the Supreme court of the United States shall decide to give the judgment demanded, we may expect that similar suits will be immediately brought by those States against the State of North Carolina upon those miserable special tax bonds. It will be remembered that the Republicans in 1869 passed bills authorizing the issue of $25,000,000 of special tax bonds, and levied special taxes to the amount of 54 cents on the $100 worth of property to pay interest on these bonds. The sheriffs were directed to collect annually 54 cents taxes to pay the interest on these bonds. If the Supreme court of the United States shall decide that these bonds were properly issued, the sheriffs would be required, by an order from that court, to collect these taxes and pay them in to a receiver, appointed by the court. Now, it is true that the Democratic party has done every-thing it could do to prevent this. We have even submitted to the people an amendment to the constitution, which has been ratified, forbidding any Legislature from paying anything on these bonds without submitting the question first to the popular vote. The Demo cratic party has left no stone unturned to protect the people against the possible consequence of this Republican legislation. To pay these bonds would bankrupt the State; it would break up nearly every family in the State. It would engulf us all in one common ruin. The homestead can be sold for taxes; ten thousand homesteads would be sold for these taxes. Now in view of the fact that those bonds were issued by the Republicans and the taxes were levied by the Republican party, while the Democrats have sought to protect the people against them; and in view of the danger which threatens the people from this source, which party should be given control in North Carolina? We are aware that Dr. Mott's revenue men pretend to meet this question by calling attention to the constitusional amendment adopted by the Democrats, forbidding the Legislature from recogniz ing or paying any interest on these bonds without a popular vote. That amendment was not intended to protect the people against a judgment by the Supreme court of the United States requiring the sheriffs of the counties to collect the special taxes levied by the Republican Legislature of 1869 "and to be annually thereafter collected."

The purpose of the amendment was to prevent any Legislature from recognizing or paying this debt. It cannot control the action of the Supreme court of the United States. This is a danger which has still to be met. Who shall meet it, the party that issued twenty-five millions of bonds and levied the special taxes, or the party which has always sought to protect the people against them ?
