"I know no safe depository of the ultimate powers "of society but the people themselves; and if we think "them not enlightened enough to exercise their control "with a wholesome discretion, the remedy is, not to take "it from them, but to inform their discretion by edu "cation."-THOMAS JEFFERSON.

SATURDAY, OCT. 21, 1882.

NO TIME TO SWAP. For twenty-two years the Republican party has held possession of the government of the United States, and for twenty-two years the Democratic party has struggled to oust it from power. Within these twenty-two years of Republican rule there has been more misgovernment, more utter disregard of law, more oppressive laws enacted, more contempt for the will of the people, more grinding despotism on government employees, more malfeasance in office, more plundering of the public funds, more excessive and oppressive taxation, more machine dictation than the whole political history of the country showed for all the years that preceded, under all the administrations of all the parties. This is saying much, but it is the literal truth, nevertheless. Had it not been for the fact that the Republican leaders had appealed at every election to the sectional feeling of the North, and representing that the return to power of the Democratic party meant peril to the government; the overturning of our financial system, the ascendency of what they called the Southern rebels, and a vast amount of other ills which their genius and fancy invoked that party would have been consigned to the rear long ago, and they knew it and hence persisted in keeping up sectional agitation as their only safety from defeat. But the people have been learning much in the past years; have been studying much, and at last saw through the deceit and trickery of the Radical politicians, and above. as they did so did the Democratic party gain in popularity and strength. It became strong enough to elect Tilden President, and had it not been for deception practiced on the tariff question

To the observer of current events it must be evident that the people of this great country are becoming tired of Republican rule, and of the abitrary bossism of the men who dictate the policy of that party. What else means the formidable independent uprising in Pennsylvania, the open rebellion in New York against Folger, the particular friend of Mr Arthur, and the disastrous rout of the party in Ohio, and the dangers that stare it in the face in other Northern and Western States? People do not change in a day, nor without cause, and where there is so much dissatisfaction manifested it means revolution and the annihilation of the party which has worn out popular pa-

when Hancock ran it would have elect-

It has held its lease of life, as we remarked above, by its war upon the South, by poisoning the Northern mind against her, by flaunting the bloody shirt and by never failing to misrepresent and villify her when political necessity demanded it.

How, then, let us ask, can any citizen power this bitter enemy and savage opis represented to be by its worst enemies, it would be preferable then to the Republican party, to which the South owes nothing but the memory of proscriptive legislation and misgovernment that ought to damn forever any party under the sun. Let no Democrat be deceived by the appeals of selfish men who hope to promote their own fortunes by creating disaffection, into lending himself to the perpetuation of the power of a party, that in the past has proved so disastrous to the best interests of the whole is no time to turn now, no time to swap horses, no time to turn from the men who have proved true to our State and section, and replace them with men who when they had the power trampled ruthlessly upon both and allied themselves in word and deed with our bitterest enemies. Victory, the victory for which good men have struggled, hoped and prayed is within our reach, all the signs point to it, and let us not foolishly throw it away by inaction or by listening to the voice of those who have gone over into the camp of the enemy, and invite us to join them in their desertion. Be true to yourselves and your country, and the grand battle will be

Philadelphia Press: It appears that immediately after ex-Senator Spencer took himself away so that he could not be used as a witness in the star route trials Messrs. Merrick, Bliss and Ker, last Democratic Governor for Iowa, counsel for the government, addressed a letter to the President setting forth the facts in the case and suggesting that Mr. Spencer had shown he was unfit to hold the office of government director of the Union Pacific Railroad and ought to be removed. Many weeks have elapsed since then, but nothing has been done by the President, apparently, towards relieving his administration of the odium and discredit which must attach to it if such a man as Spencer is allowed to continue in a position of honor and trust after his unfitness has been made so manifest.

The infamous spy system which has been long fostered and encouraged in more than one of the departments of government at Washington is bearing its legitimate fruits in a new crop of thieves, blackmailers and perjurers. For the honor of the department of justice, Attorney General Brewster should sweep out the whole foul nest of them. It is a disgrace that such harpies should have been permitted to find shelter in the very temple of national justice.

It is computed that $500,000,000 have been paid out of the United States Treasury in revenues since 1865, but that is a very small sum in comparison with what must be paid at the rate at which the pension list is being in-

MR. ARTHUR ENDORSED.

The Republican convention which assembled in Raleigh to ratify the work of the coalition manipulators passed the following resolution:

"That we unreservedly and cordially endorse the administration of President Chester A. Arthur, and realizing the difficulties originally besetting its plan and course of duties, we recognize in its policy-combining wisdom with consistency, justice and moderation. suavity in manner with firmness of execution-the policy of the American

And yet the men who call themselves men who passed this resolution have the hardihood to say that they are not acting in concert with the Republican party, and are not under the influence of its managers. It is absurd, and all their utterances on the stump or in the columns of such papers as speak for them show its absurdity. Never are they heard to utter one word of disapproval of the policy of that party, nor one word of denunciation of all the abuses perpetrated in the past two decades of its rule by its representatives and minions. All their censure and all their abuse is reserved for the Democratic party with which they formerly acted, and whose cause against this same Republican party they cham- patches, the seventh, Ike Chepman, pioned as patriotically and as loudly as | having been respited by Gov. They do not deceive themselves and they cannot deceive anyone else of ordinary intelligence. It is too thin, the motive that actuates too apparent, their protestations too silly to convince any one not devoid of sense from seeing through the game which they are attempting to play. They are as much in accord with Mr. Arthur's administration as their Republican allies who passed the resolution of endorsement which we quote

TRYING TO SCARE REPUBLICANS. Mr. Folger having been nominated as the Administration machine candidate Republicans in that State had resolved To stop this tide and save himself if possible from defeat he stoops to the game of falsehood to alarm the Repubthem back into the party lines.

At a Republican meeting in New York city Thursday night a letter from him was read, in which he referred to his Democratic competitor thus:

"It is faint praise to say of the person who is that candidate, that as a man in his private capacity that he is as good as I am, he lives as pure a life as I do, he loves his neighbor as well as I do, he does his duty as a citizen-according to his judgment—as well as I do, as a public officer he has acted as conscientiously. Yet there is one difference that goes to the root of the matter when we are brought to view as public men and put forward to act for the public in its affairs. He is a Democrat."

Mr. Cleaveland may be personally, as the nominee of the Democratic party he must be beaten, for the return of the Democracy to power would have a of the South, who bears any love for, disastrous effect upon the business inor entertains a wish for her welfare do | terests of the country as is "shown by aught directly or indirectly to keep in | the fact that the Ohio election was followed on the next day by the shrinkage pressor of his section and his people? of forty million dollars in the value of Were the Democratic party all that it the great property of the country." Here we find in the concluding lines Mr. Folger, the machine candidate, resorting to the old dodge of deception, which has been played at every important election since the war. This is the first intimation the country has had that the "values of property in the country has fallen forty millions of | weather, generally thought the most dollars" or forty millions of cents since the Democratic victory in Ohio, and the country would not have known it now if Candidate Folger had not imparted the information. It is disgraceful enough to be running as the machine country, of the South in particular. It | candidate, spurned by the better element of his party, but when he resorts to such old and oft repeated tricks as this stereotyped falsehood he caps the climax of political baseness.

At a negro camp-meeting the marshal and deputy arrested a criminal who attempted to escape, whereupon he was shot and killed by the officers. The killing of this negro so enraged the others that they determined to wreak vengence on the officers. While attempting to carry out this purpose they murdered a young man from a Democrats, who are affiliating with the | neighboring town, who had nothing to do with the killing of the negro, mistaking him for one of the officers. The killing of the young man was brutal in the extreme, the negroes having beaten him to death with fence palings For the time there was a scene of wild confusion and demoniac outrage, the whites arming in order to protect their lives. On the train returning to Macon the riot was continued, and would have resulted in several murders were it not for the courage and coolness of the officers of the train. These are, in brief, the facts as we recollect them. A large number of arrests were made, and upon trial, eighteen were convicted of murder, eleven sentenced to imprisonment for life and seven, including one woman, to be hung next Friday. Six of the seven were hanged yesterday, as mentioned in our press dis-
