How Secretary Folger Takes the Verdict --- Attorney-General Brewster's Views--The Unhappy Backers of the River and Harbor Bill -- Winter Residents at the Capital.

Special Dispatch to the Baldbaore zun.

Washington, Nov. 9. - Attorney-General Brewster dal not go home to vote, as he was unwell on election day: besides, he said, his vote was not needed in Pennsylvanta. When asked if he thought the democratic victory in that State would bring about a reconcilliation between the Cameron and Mitchell wings of the republican party before 1884, he replied: "Most assuredly it will. There is over 70,000 republican majority in Pennsylvania with those two factions combined, and at any cost they have got to come together before the next presidential election, and they will." He said further that the recent election had convinced the republican party how necessary it was to work to-gether harmoniously in order to be successful. On the subject of the recent changes in his office, the Attorney-General said the resignations of Messrs. Mulliken, chief clerk, and Judge Gray, pardon clerk, were not for causes which in any way reflected upon them personally. SECRETARY FOLGER AT INS DESK.

Secretary Folger was at his desk in the treasury department bright and early this morning, and transacted the routine business of the department without-displaying the slightest signs of depression over his defeat. He was visited by numerous newspaper correspondents, who requested him to give his views on the present situation. He received them all good naturedly, but declined to make a statement.

KILLED BY THE RIVER AND HARBOR BILL.

The last river and harbor bill proved to be a fatal thing to the re-election of many members to the House. It probably hurt the eastern members most, though the latest information from California shows that it had considerable to do with the defeat of Horace Page, the chairman of the House committee on commerce, the committee that originated the river and harbor bill. It was not, however, that bill which laid Mr. Page out. He was charged with endeavoring to get the influence and votes of the League of Freedom, a kind of an anti-foreign organization, which has considerable strength in California. Page denied several days prior to the election that he had any connection with the League of Freedom, but his denial was not as clear or direct as many wished.

FOR CLERK OF THE HOUSE. Leading democrats have determined clerk of the next House of Representatives, and several prominent democratic Representatives have already sent word here in approval of his candidacy. He is a citizen of New Hampshire, and only a month or two since declined the democratic nomination for Congress in his district because of his unwillingness to neglect the enterprising and chased and is conducting in this city.

---The Transit of Venus in December Next. The relative distances apart of the bodies constituting our solar system are known, but the actual distances are not. It is known, for example, that the distance from the sun to the planet Mercury bears a certain proportion to the distance from Mercury to the earth, but for want of an accurately measured unit applicable to celestial distances the distance apart in miles of the planets cannot be ascertained with precision. The unit actually employed is the distance from the earth to the sun, which is in doubt by several millions of miles. Naturally, astronomers are much concerned to correct the standard unit of the heavens to the last attainable degree of accuracy, and, as observations of the transit of Venus across the sun's face supply a means of ascertaining, within half a million of miles, its true length, they look with much interest to the transit to occur on the 6th of December next, after which date none other will occur till June 8, 2004. Transits of Venus usually occur in Paris, the two transits of a pair being separated by only eight years, but between the nearest transits of consecutive pairs more than a century elapses. As the transit of 2004 is the first of a pair, there will be another June 6, 2012. The there will be another June 6, 2012. The difference of position of Venus on the face of the sun as seen simultaneously by two observers occupying widely separated stations. Observers on opposite immediate object in view in making observations of transits is to determine the solar parallax—that is to say, the sides of the earth would, during a transit, see at the same instant the planet as a dark spot passing across the solar disc, but it would not occupy the same position to both observers. This difference of position is precisely what astronomers wish to measure, and this being known, it will be easy, with the known ratio of the distance between the earth and Venus, and Venus and the sun, to deduce the actual distance from earth to sun. The phenomenon of the parallax, or something analogous to it, is a familiar one within every individual's observation. Let the reader close one eye and look at his finger held up between the eye and any small object across the room. Now closing that eye and opening the other the object before looked at will appear to have shifted its position. The degree to which it appears to have changed its position is the parallax. The solar parallax, as reckoned by Encke is 8.57 seconds. E. J. Stone in 1868 put it at 8.91 seconds. The greater the distance of original model at the Paris exhibition the sun the smaller, of course, it will be found to be. Prof. C. A. Young gives 8.80 seconds, which will indicate a mean distance of the sun from the Fraud to earth of 92,885,000 miles. As the linear value of one second applied to the sun's given by Prof Young, is 450.3 miles, the | under date of Richmond, Nov. 8: difference of position of Venus during a transit, as seen by observers separated a distance equal to half of the diam-State government will have observing stations at Washington, at Fort Thorn, New Mexico; Cedar Keys, Florida; San Antonio, Texas; Santiago de Chili; in New Zealand; at Santa Cruz, Patagonia

Blanca, Argentine Republic, and Punta Arenas, on the Straits of Magellan. Well-equipped observatories through-out Europe will devote themselves to the transit. The English and French governments will have stations abroad at the Cape of Good Hope, in the Ber-mudas, in Florida, the West Indies, in the Argentine Republic, in New Zealand and Australia, not to mention numerous stations occupied by private

To Prompigate the Truth. The way to get a thing believed by the public at The way to get a single believed by the public at large is to first have a truth to announce without any doubt or suspicion as to its being the truth, and then to keep on telling by speech and pen, by type and figure, in every way repeating it constantly. Thus it was that when the Louisiana State Lottery was incorporated in 1868 at New Orleans, to the was incorporated in 1868 at New Orleans. Lottery was incorporated in 1868 at New Orleans, for charitable and educational purposes, there was a doubt that the managers would act as fairly as they announced, but the fact that Generals G. T. Beauregard, of Louisiana, and Jubal A. Early, of Virginia, have the sole supervision of the drawings removes this suspiden, and it has been proven up to the 150th monthly drawing on Nov. 14th that millions have been distributed to parties applying to M. A. Daupinn. New Orleans, La. in sums ranging as high as $100.000, and so on down. Tickets cost $5, but fifths are sold at $1 each, and the centainty of the event is supplemented by the knowledge that some one will get $75,000, or fractional parts thereof. Who will it be?

Election Expenses in New York.

Before sunri e on Tuesday next 2,664 ticket booths will be set up near the polling places in the 688 election districts in this city, and in these ticket booths 2,064 accredited servants of the political parties will be prepared to offer 48,060,000 ballots to 196,000 electors. These ballots are nearly ready in three printing offices down town for delivery to the magnates of p lities. The printers have been running their presses night and day for a week on the elec-trotype plates for the ballots, and this part of the gigantic work of an election in New York city might have been completed ere this time but for a few tardy nominations. Six hundred girls and twenty folding machines have begun the task of folding and bunching these ballots, eight in a bunch, as they are to be delivered to the electors, and by Saturday evening next large truck loads of ballots in bags, aggregating soo reams of paper, will roll up to the politicians' headquarters, there to be ready for the distribution that is made every year on the Sunday before elec-

The cost of these ballots is best known by the printers and the campaign committees. It is, however, mere bagatelle in the cost of the New York election. Every man of the regiment of candidates expended $1 in the barrooms and elsewhere to get his nomination for every cent that his ballots will cost. The $163,000 awarded the Bureau of Elections covers the cost of polling places, Boards of Registry and election clerks, but this is less money than is required to pay the watchers and the vote peddlers and the ward committees who scrutinize the registry in every election district; and all these fabulous expenditures aggregated will fall far below the worth of the time spent by members of the ward political associations in plotting for party ascendancy. Who will ever know the cost of a New York election?

Gen. Grant Makes a Speech.

Boston, Nov. 8 .- At a dinner given to-night in his honor by the executive committee of the Manufacturers' and Mechanics' Institute, Gen. Grant made a speech in response to a toast to his health and said:

"It is not one of the pleasures of my life to be called upon to say anything, but the mayor of the city has alluded to the conflict through which we have passed and to the institution I have visited to-day. It is, perhaps, proper for me to say I look upon that as one of the steps toward healing the breach caused by the long conflict through which we passed some sixteen or twenty years ago. "I saw at your Institute to-day a very good showing from our Southern States to present Mr. Stilson Hutchins of the Washington Post, for the position of human skill from the North, but showing less perhaps the natural resources of the country. It should go a long way, and will no doubt go a long way. towards cementing that feeling of friendship between the people of the two sections which will make all alike equally good citizens. If the country should ever in the future be called to a conflict of arms, as is possible and is prosperous newspaper which he pur- likely to happen with nations, we may expect to find the people whom we fought against twenty years ago fighting under the same flag with ourselves, and striving to see who can do the most to support that flag."

The Meaning of It.

Would you know the meaning of the political revolution which struck its first blow in Ohio in October, and swept through Pennsylvania, New York, Massachusetts and Colorado on Tuesday last? It means these four things: 1. Reduce the expenses of every branch of the Federal government to a basis of simplicity, economy and hon-2. Abolish the internal revenue abomination!

3. Make the tariff simple and rational, and just sufficient to provide for the wants of an honest and economical administration in time of peace? No subsidies, no jobs, and above all, no stealing, either by the adminis tration and its agents, or by Congress and its employes! This is the meaning and the purpose of this mighty overturn. Is the Democracy wise enough and high-minded enough to execute this peremptory mandate with fidelity and courage? We shall see. The occasion is great. And we are happy to add, the future is hopeful.

A Perpetual Motion Clock. In September last, a new perpetual clock was put up at the Gare du Nord,

Brussels, in such a position as to be fully exposed to the influence of wind and weather; and although it has not since been touched, it has continued to keep good time ever since. The weight is kept constantly wound up by a fan placed in a chimney. As soon as it approaches the extreme height of its course, it actuates a brake, which stops the fan; and the greater the tendency of the fan to revolve, so much the more strongly does the brake act to prevent it. A simple pawl arrangement prevents a down draught from exerting any effect. There is no necessity for a fire, as the natural draught of a chimney or pipe is sufficient; and if the clock is placed out of doors, all that is required is to place above it a pipe, 18 or 20 feet high. The clock is usually made to work for twenty-four hours after being wound up, so as to provide for any temporary stoppage; but by the addition of a wheel or two, it may be made to go for eight days after cessation of winding. The inventor, M Auguste Dardenne, a native of Belgium, showed his of 1878; but has since considerably im-
