government. The shipment of Western beef to the New York and other eastern cities has reduced the price so that people with less wealth than Vanderbilt and Jay Gould can afford to eat it occasionally.

Some of the stalwarts, smarting under the defeats in the recent elections, exclaim "shoot the deserters." If the deserters were shot the executioners would have a busy time burying the Ex-Gov. Long. Republican, elected to Congress in Massachusetts, declares himself opposed to the entire internal revenue system, as a war measure which is not justifiable in time of peace.

Deacon Smith says that if it hadn't been for the prohibition question bringing out the Republican vote in Ohio in the October election, the Democaats would have carried the State by 50,000.

There is a rumor that Justice Bradley, Aliunde Joe, of the electoral commission, intends to retire from the Supreme Court bench, and will be succeeded by defeated candidate Folger Don't believe it.

The price of beef is falling in the northern cities so that people of moderate fortunes can afford to eat it. Is this one of the results of Democratic success and depreciation of values that Secretary Forger talked about?

The only hope that the Republican rivals of Houk, Republican Congressman from the Knoxville, Tenn, district have of getting rid of him is that he will kill himself drinking Washington whisker before his term expires.

Chester S. Cole, Captain of the port of New York, is entitled to rank with J Cresar and other inditers of laconic dis-patches. He telegraphed an Elmira-stalwart organ on the night of the 7th: "We have beaten the Prohibitionists and Greenbackers out of sight, and are only 200,000 behind the Democrats."

It is settled at last. Hyde county gives Bennet one hundred and twentyeight, which makes his majority in the State three hundred and forty-seven. A victory for which we may be thankful, but for the smallness of which the Democrats who failed to do their duty ought to be ashamed.

State Senator McDonald, of Georgia, is opposed to Sunday railroad excursions and has offered a bill which places a fine on the railroads of $20,000, and makes it a misdemeanor for the county officials of each county through which the train runs, and a misdemeanor for the engine-driver, the conductor and train hands running the excursion.

FORESTALLING THE DEMOCRATS. There is not much doubt but that a move will be made, when Congress meets in December, by the Republicans, to institute certain reforms that are demanded, and for which the people spoke in such thunder tones on the 7th inst. They may not expect to be able to pass the measures they contemplate in the short session that will be held. but they do expect to get the credit of making the move, and thus stealing Democratic thunder. Mr Kelly, of Pennsylvania, who has for some time been in favor of abolishing the internal revenue system, and of a reduction of taxation, will undoubtedly move in that direction, and will have no small Republican following, not that they care whether it be abolished or not, but because they regard its abolition as popular, and hence a good move politically. Already some of the leading journals of the Republican party are beginning to discuss the subject, and urge prompt action, conspicuous among them the Philadelphia Press, a very able and influential paper, which discourses thus: "The first and most imperative duty which will confront Congress on its reassembling in December is that of tax reduction. We are collecting every quarter many millions more than even an extravagant rate of expenditure can exhaust. The receipts are increasing rather than diminishing. For the first quarter of the present fiscal year the receipts were $10,384,000 greater than for the same period last year, and they were $57,540,000 in excess of the expenditures. The surplus could not be allowed to accumulate in the treasury, and has been expended in paying off the debt within call. This would be no great hardship if all the debt were available for payment, but of the debt within reach less than $415,000,000 now remains unpaid, and if the present rate of payment of $180,000,000 a year is maintained the whole $415,000,000 of three and a half and three per cent bonds will be canceled by March, 1885.

and there are none others within reach until September, 1891. Obviously, then, it is the part of wisdom to diminish this great volume of receipts before it begins to embarrass us. The needed reduction cannot and should not be made in the tariff. A slight reduction by increasing importations increases rather than diminishes the revenue, and a large reduction would be highly prejudicial to the industries of the country. It is within the power of Congress and it should be within the will of Congress to wipe out the greater portion if not all of our internal tax spstem at the coming short surplus revenue last year very nearly balanced. The receipts from customs and miscellaneous sources are amply sufficient to cover the ordinary expenditures of the government with anything like reasonable economy in the appropriations. The excessive revenue now pouring in not only points to serious difficulty in the future if allowed to go on, but it is the moving cause of the extravagant appropriations of the last session. It will continue to stimulate surplus and internal revenue system disappear together. A new bill on the subject of tax reduction would stand little chance of being acted on in the coming short session. There is, however, no occasion for starting so low down. There are two bills pending on this subject, in a more or less forward state, which can be amended so as to sweep away all the internal taxes, if Congress can be persuaded to take this step. One is the ways and means committee bill, abolishing all the internal taxes, except on spirits and tobacco, which passed the House last session, but was blocked in the Senate by the Democrats. Another is Judge Kelley's bill, repealing all the internal taxes upon tobacco. Let the Senate pass the bill pending there without amendment, and get that out of the road, and leave the way clear for the fight on the spirits and tobacco tax.

Congress to lavish prodigality until the

Judge Kelly's bill can readily be amended so as to include them both, and should name a day for the repeals going into effect so far in the future as to permit all interests to adjust themselves gradually to the change. The adoption of such a measure following the passage of the bill now in the Senate will sweep away the internal taxes, the expensive and irritating machinery inci-dent to the system and the demoralizing and undesirable surplus which it It is evident from all the signs of the times that the tax question is going to receive a thorough overhauling, and that the internal revenue system as now constituted is now doomed to be wiped out, and the Republicans, knowing this, have determined to move for it, and thus, if they can, deprive the Democrats of the credit and glory of its accomplishment.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

While the election of Hon RT Bennett as Congressman-at-large, after the long uncertainty and numerous conflicting reports, is a victory under the circumstances, for the Democracy it is a victory over which there is not much cause for boasting nor for burning tar and 9 children were burned to death. barrels. Instead of a few deminutive hundreds, his majority should have been at least ten thousand, and it would have been that if the Democrats of the State had done half their duty. We know there are causes for this reduced majority, and we understand them, but the main, the telling cause above all others was the failure of Democrats who class themselves as Democrats, to the polls and cast their ballots as they Miss Fannie R. Coleman, said to be a should have done. Usually at our State prepossessing and wealthy young lady elections there are in round figures 50,000 white men, who, if they voted at all, would vote the Democratic ticket. who do not go to the polls. This year there was even a greater number, and, strange to say, a very large proportion of that number were from the eastern counties which had so much at stake in the result. In some respects it has been a peculiar election, peculiar in the forces that arrayed themselves in contest, and peculiar in the issues sprung, which were not in truth political questions. For the first time since the organization of parties since the war we certificate begiven to him, which it will faw a large number of men who here-undoubtedly, unless the figures have tofore acted with the Democracy, parting from it, and arraying themselves against it, combining with the elements alleged irregularities in several counties, but when the irregularities on the other side are ciphered out and throw, and upon issues, as we remarkMr. Lockery friends are asked to account for the very large increase of and in the presence of these facts perhaps they will have more irregulari- who though not in sympathy with the perhaps they will have more irregulari-ties than they can well attend to. never before experienced in a State campaign, a light vote, a partial defeat and a lean majority on the total vote of the State, when the majority should have been overwhelming. Let us hope that from this check will come wisdom. and that it will inspire the Democratic marses with a livelier interest in public affairs, and also with a resolve to do the rfull duty when called upon to do it. Let the party be put under better discipline, and let the voter who is not an aspirant for office feel that he is as much a part of the party as any one, and that responsibilities rest upon him not only as a good Democrat but as a good citizen, to labor for the ascendency of those principles upon which he believes the peace, happiness and prosperity of the State depend.
