"FUTURES" IN CONGRESS.

Speculation in "futures" is now attracting some of the attention of the United States Senate, in the shape of an amendment by Senator Morgan, of Alabama, to the bankrupt act now under discussion, which provides that dealing in futures, that is in the sale of any stocks, cotton, grains, flour, meat, &c., not in actual possession of the seller, either as owner, authorized agent, or trustee, shall constitute an act for which the offender may be thrown into bankruptcy. This amendment seems to have met the approval of the Senate as it was agreed to without discussion. Senator Morgan in expressing his views upon it said he gathered his ideas from the statutes of the State of Massachusetts, which prohibited such speculation, and remarked that if such a law prevailed in his State, the people of one town alone would have saved $600,000 lost on cotton futures last year. Laws of this kind are in existence in several States, and within the past year there have been legal decisions in Illinois, Iowa, Tennessee, and we think other States, declaring such transactions null and void in law. The trouble is that where the laws are in existence they have not been enforced, and by an apparent common consent have fallen into disuse. We say an apparent common consent for no one undertook to enforce them, and until recently the courts and grand juries closed their eyes, while at times whole communities day it was stocks, then grain, oil, cotton, pork, anything and everything that could be manipulated on the markets and at which simpletons would bite, and on which they would put up their margins. Thousands of the families have been made bankrupt, the insane asylums have received a full quota, and thousands of men, supposed to be honest, have been made thieves by engaging in this exciting, and demoralizing business. It is said that at times the exchanges where this kind of business is carried on are like perfect pandemoniums, and resemble more insane asylums where the inmates have broken loose than a place where people gather for commercial transactions; old and young, rich and poor, the man of hundreds and the man of millions all seem equally wild, and all apparently crazy. The only cool heads are those which are not seen, which remain behind the curtain, manipulate the subject of specu lation and rake in the plunder drawn from unsuspecting and deluded victims. But there is another phase of this monstrous evil in which the public is interested, and which is of vital importance, and that is that through the manipulations of these gamblers in futures all the necessaries of life are advanced when they see fit to do so to starvation prices. They control the food that supports the life of the people, the garments that cover their bodies the fuel that warms them in winter. almost everything that is used, eaten or drunk, save the water which heaven supplies and which they cannot monopolize. This is not in the interest of the producer of any of these articles, for they receive no benefit from it and are as much at the mercy of the "cornerer" as the poor toiler who out of his scanty daily earnings buys the meagre supply with which he feeds his poorly cared for wife and children, but in the interest alone of the heartless sharks whose fortunes are made out of the distress of others. We commend Senator Morgan's ac tion, and trust now that the subject hasbeen broached in the national legislature, it will not be permitted to drop until something has been done to abate this great and monstrous evil.

THE RAILROAD WAR.

Some days ago we published a bill in relation to the railroad war now being waged in South Carolina before the State Legislature. The Charleston News and Courier of yesterday says the bill has passed the upper house, and it announces that fact under the following significant head lines:

"Trying the Georgia Plan-The Railroad Bill Passes the Senate Triumthe Railroad Champions were Met and in each district. The President submitted a communication from the Secretary of War, transmitting in compliance with a resolution adopted on the motion of Mr. Jonas, the estimates of the Mississippi river commission for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1884. The discussion of the question of the reference of this communication to the commerce committee, or the Mississippi river committee, brought on a renewal of the debate on the river and harbor bill of the last session, the point of attack being the use of public money to construct and repair the Mississippi levees.

Pending the discussion, at the close of the morning hour, Beck called up his resolution for an investigation of political assessments.

Vorhees addressed the Senate congratulating the country upon the wonderful change of heart on the subject among the Republicans since the discussion last summer. In the course of the discussion Hale read a circular calling a meeting of the liquor dealers of Dayton, Ohio, to aid in defeating "The fanatics and prohibitionists," and said he wished an investigating committee to summon Edward Cooper and ask how much money the Democratic com-mittee in New York collected from the liquor dealers there?

At 2 o'clock without acting on Beck's resolution the Senate resumed the consideration of the unfinished business, the bankruptcy bill.

Hoar continued his speech in advo-cacy of the "Lowell bill," and when he concluded Brown said he had listened to the speeches of Ingalls and Hoar and each had succeeded in convincing him that the bill of the other was wrong. He thought before devoting more time to the discussion of the details it would be well to ascertain whether the Senate was of the opinion that any bankruptcy law was required. He therefore moved to indefinitely postpone the subject.

After some discussion it was agreed to dispose of the bill Monday.

Hawley introduced a bill to prevent officers of the United States from collecting subscriptions or assessments from each other. Referred to the Civil Service Reform committee.

The bill is a complete omnibus bill in its enumeration of the parties em-braced in the prohibition and of the methods of assessment and collection which is prohibited. No person of high or low degree, receiving compensation from the public treasury for any service whatever, is permitted, under this bill, to pay to or receive from another public servant, money for political purposes, and an infraction of this law is made a misdemeanor, punishable by a maximum fine of five thousand dollars, or a maximum imprisonment of three years, or both, at the discretion of the court. After a brief executive session the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE .- Page, of California, chairman of the committee on commerce reported a resolution calling on the Secretary of War for information as to whether any moneys appropriated by the last river and harbor bill were aspropriated for on works or object that are not in interest and do not benefit commerce and navigation, and if so the names of such works and objects and the respective amounts so appro-priated, whether any of the money has been used on works not in the interest of commerce and navigation, and if so phantly-A Hard Fight Yesterday, but names of such works, whether the expenditures of any money authorized by that act have been withheld or stopped, and if so how much and for what cause. the amount likely to be on hand at the close of the current fiscal year, and how much of such balance comprises the money which has been carried over from year to year from non-compliance with the conditions of the law making such appropriations and to furnish estimates of the engineer department for the year 1884, which have not been transmitted by the Secretary of the Treasury in conformity with section 3,669 of the Revised Statutes. This resolution plunged the House into a heated and exciting debate upon the River and Harbor bill, which was an exaggerated counterpart of the debate progressing in the Senate at the same time. McLane, of Maryland, and Robeson, of New Jersey, made strong speeches in favor of that bill, Robeson attributing the opposition to it from metropolitan newspapers as being in the interest of the aggregated capital em-ployed in the railroads. Cox, of New York, and Kasson renewed their opposition to the bill and the members of the House surrounded the speakers and several times interrupted them with laughter and applause The House finally adopted the reso-lution and after the introduction and reference of bills to promote telegraphic communication with Europe and appropriating $1,250,000 for the purchase of real estate in New York city for customs purposes, at 1:40 p m, proceeded to the consideration of the consular appropriation bill, which was passed, and the House adjourned.

THE OLD MEN'S HOME. One of the most beneficent charities in existence is that which provides a resting place for weary and worn out old men. They have many infirmi-ties and diseases, one of the most common of which is rheumatism. Just here comes in the ad-vantage of Perry Davis's Pain Killer, which has relieved the sufferings of many an old man by driving away the most severe rheumatis pains.

Judge Filley, of Pittefield, Mass., was cured of rheumatism by St. Jacobs Oil.
