LOG ROLLING.

While Wrestling with a Fallen Tree a Lumberman Receives Consequential Damages.

While on a hunting excursion in the great coal and wood region near Carbondale, Pa., the writer met Willfam Coil, a lumberman. Accustemed to life and labor in the forest from early manhood, he was a true Knight of the Axe. Many a tree had fallen before his ringing stokes, and fleets of rafts had borne away to market the sawed products Coll is a character, and if Oscar Wilde is right in saying that all movements in unhindered labor are graceful, our friend William, stripped for his work, and attacking a tree as Richard I, assaulted the heavy doors of Front de Bœut's Castle, must have presented an admirable picture.

"One day, however, - but let him tell the story himself, as he teld it to me: "I was out in the woods, you know, trying to start a log down a hill. Thinking I could get a better a purchase on it from the lower side, I tackled it there with my leg rolling hook and threw my weight on the lever. She started, she did, but as luck would have it, before I could get out of the way, she rolled right over me. If it hadn't been for a lot of small limbs and brush lying in the road, which lifted her up, she'd a crushed me flat As it was I got up without a broken bone, but with some mighty bad bruises."

"Then you were all right," said his auditor. "Not by a blamed sight, stranger. I took cold, rheumatism set, and, if I hadn't heard of BEN-SON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTERS and used 'em, it's my opinion I should never have made another chip fly. But the Capcine took hold quick, and I'm 'bout as good as new. But there's one thing you kin calkilate on: -I shall never wrastle with another log unless I have the advantage of the ground. Fur, as I told you before, if it hadn't been for them brushes I'd been Smashed se, you could 'a sold me for a door mat."

The Capcine is the thing for rheumatism. It doesn't keep yeu waiting. The word CAPCINE is cut in the center of the genuine. Price 25c. SEABURY & JOHNSON. Chemists, New York.

"Twenty-five years."

"Wenty-five years."

"What! a bad cough, with occasional attacks of hemorrhage, for twenty-five years? Why, man, it's a mercy that there's a dozen pounds left of you." Abraham Orner, of Highspire, Dauphin county, Passaram Orner, of Highspire, Dauphin county, Passatuck to his statement, and when the exclamations of wonders ceased, he added:
"Exactly. You're right. It is a mercy. But the greatest mercy of all is that, before I actually coughed myself out of existence, I got hold of Parker's Ginger Tonic, and a few betties of it cured ma."

"Cur d you?" Relieved you, you mean?"
I mean what I say; it cured me," said Mr.
Orner, simply. "I feel like another man." Please take especial notice; Parker's Ginger Please take especial notice; Parker's Ginger Tonic is not a mere essence of ginger; not a mere stomachic. The erdinary preparations of ginger are beneficial for transient schee, but at that point their value ends. Parker's Ginger Tonic covers a lar wider and totally different field. It attacks and dissipates radical and chronic diseases of the Lings, Kidneys, Liver and Nerves. It is as delicious to the palate as it is prompt and effective in operation. Bill Goes to the House, links wife the Hoar's Hobby ... Caroliniana. Washington, Dec. 30.—The events of the week are the passage through the Senate of the civil service and political assessments bills, and the arguments in that body on the measure proposing the reinstatement of Gen. Fits John Porter.

The Pendleton plan will do pretty well as far it goes, but in the present state of public feeling and need, it is inadequate. It provides reform in the future, but does not act immediately on the employes of the Government. The newly virtuous Republicans did not have the heart to apply the screws to the Republican officeholders. The same half-hearted course was pursued in regard to the bill on political assessments or contributions, so-called. The judiciary committee reported a "swinging" bill, affixing heavy penalties for yiolations, and it did look to the careless reader as if all the ills of Jay Hubbellism were to be cured instanter. Not ism were to be cured instanter. Not so, however, the foxy Republican lawyers provided for the punishment of just such parts only of the iniquity as they thought would appease the angry public. The bill was a half-measure so long as it permitted money to be paid out at all for political purposes by clarks and other ampleyes. clerks and other employes. Beck and other Democrats insisted that it should accomplish what it professed to, and not stop conveniently short for the Republicans. But the latter, of course, had their way. These reform measures were referred to the proper committee to-day in the House. There are various opinions as to what the committee will do with the Stock and you will find GOODS and PRICES In keeping with the above is the bobbery which gives occasion for the conundrum, "When is a recess not a recess?" The answer is, "When it is a sneak-holiday — when Congress ad- lived through the winter with their journs over three days at a time for whole body buried in the mud head three successive times." Of all the sneaking, snivelling bodies

Senate is not quite so bad as the other - the female spawns upon growing vege-House, as it only takes five days in all tables and the males lash these growing. Before the Senate adjourned for its plants with their tails throwing second installment of sneak-recess, it re opened the discussion on Fitz John Porter, and took up the Presidential succession measure. Logan filled the galleries, and spoke with his usual earnestness. When interrupted he retorted with that rough shrewdness for which he is distinguished. He made a strong partisan presentation of the case against Porter. Mr Hoar has support on the Democratic side for his very radical proposition, for on yesterday Mr Garland declared himself in favor of the bill to provide for a Presidential vacancy by putting the members of the Cabinet in the line of succession. Mr Edmunds, who is by far the ablest lawyer who has been in the Senate since the war, pointed out the difficulties of the measure. He did not indicate clearly that he would oppose it. Morgan was more emphatic. The bill continues the old Cabinet for the purpose of succession. The Secretary of the Interior, although one of the four leading members, is postponed to the last, and just before him the Secretary of the Navy. The chief objection to the proposition, which is not brand new, is that it fills the vacancy for the whole term by a person or persons who were never elected. Not only is this true, but the new president will be a dead Cid, without the dread fame of that conquerer to give him prestige. placed at the head of our civil and miltary power. The bill would reach down into the freshly made grave of an administration and bring up up a ittle finger, or it may be a thumb, to execute the laws and appoint to office during the term, which the bill by this singular provision would prevent from expiring until four years from its be-ginning had elapsed. What the Massachusetts Senator says about the desirab lity of continuing the policy of an administration is well enough, in itself. But the answer to the question, "What is an administration?" defeats the Senater's proposition. An administration of the government by the elected officers of the people is quite different from an administration by an adviser of one who had been the elected officer of the people. Americans have a clear notion of the word, and they will not confuse it with foggy ideas and strained interpretations. NORTH CAROLINA NOTES. Washington, N. C., has been made a presidential postoffice. A two-column account of the duel between Hons. Thomas L. Clingman and William L. Yancey, appears in this afternoon's Star, from the pen of Col. C. L. Jones.

The Tariff Reform.

Wash Cor Baltimore Sun. Mr. Hayes, the president of the tariff the opinion that the tariff will be revised at this session of Congress, and practically in accordance with the recommendations of the tariff commission. But Mr. Hayes is not much versed in the ways of legislation and the delays incident thereto. Very few members of either house have now much hope of securing final action of any character on the tariff prior to the 4th of March. Experienced members of the ways and means committee express amendments which have been defeated in committee will be again brought forward, with numerous additional amendments from individual members outside of the committee. It will be very difficult to limit debate on the tariff, so that no calculation can be made as to the time when the House will send the bill to the Senate. If the Senate should undertake to pass a tariff bill of its own in advance of the recep-tion of a bill from the House, it is doubtful whether it can be done; but should a bill be passed and sent to the House, that body will most assuredly decline to consider it, on the ground that the Senate has no right to originate revenue measures. So it is quite easy to see that the chances of any extended tariff revision before the meeting of the next Congress are slim. If both houses will address themselves resolutely to the purpose, the much-needed reduction in internal taxation can be accomplished at this session. and there will be no valid excuse if it is not done. The responsibility, of course, is all on the Republican majority.

The bottom should be mud if possible, and if the pond is in a ravine with precipitous sides it should be filled up to prevent deep water. The dam should be so constructed as to enable the owner to draw off the water from the bottom, and all water escaping from the pond should go through a grate at the bottom of the dam, so as to let off the cold water, there being at least twenty degrees of heat difference between the first and the fifth foot of water in a pond five feet deep. There should be no shade trees near the pond, and every encouragement given to the growth of all kinds of mud or water grasses. There should be a planked vat about two fort deep and ten feet square just inside the dam in the deepest portion of the pond, so that when the water was drawn off to catch the fish they would all seek that vat, and could be dipped from it in a basket or net.
