Drafts, Due Bills, &c.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 10.—A box has come to light left by Treasurer Polk, before he decamped, with the former treasurer, Dr. Aril Morrow, which box and contents he had instructed his attorney, John W. Childress, of this city, to take charge of.

The box contains various papers, mostly receipts, drafts and due bills from different persons for amounts varying from three dollars to $28,000, and aggregating about $125,000. They date back as far as the spring of 1879. Among them are due bills of Charles N. Gibbs, former Secretary of State, for $10,000, about the same amount in the name of Rufus K. Polk, and small amounts from various members of the legislature were also found. There are sight drafts on Thomas O'Connor for about $15,000, also one for $2,000 drawn by a member of the legislature on O'Connor. There are vouchers showing that Polk invested some $28,000 in a lumber enterprise of D. B. Cooper & Co., also receipt of D. B. Cooper & Co., also receipt of D. B. Cooper for five thousand dollars, borrowed money. Other papers in the box give evidence that Polk invested $33,000 in a silver mine in Mexico, $9,000 in a Nashville gate company. There is one receipt for $8,000 paid to Thomas O'Connor for stock in the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company; notes of Wm Morrow, State treasurer, respectively for $250 and $306, and Morrow's check for $750, together with numerous other small amounts against various persons. These papers were left in the attorney's hands by Polk for collection for the These papers were left in the attorney's hands by Polk for collection for the benefit of certain of his named bonds-

A DEATH-TRAP BURNED.

Frightful Scenes and Terrible Loss

MILWAUKEE, WIS, Jan 10.- The Newhall House, a six story brick building on the corner of Michigan street and Broadway, was burned to the ground this morning. The fire was discovered at 4 a m, and in less than half an hour the whole building, long designated as a death-trap, was enveloped in flames. Scenes of the utmost terror prevailed. The inmates of the doomed building jumped by the dozens from the upper stories, covering the stone side walks with their lifeless bodies. The shricks of the unfortunates filled the air in a heartrending manner. The people below were unable to render any aid. Quite a number of terrified guests and employees of the hotel appeared at the windows, and seeing the distance to the ground, fell back to perish in the flames. The employees of the hotel, which accommodated 800 guests, numbered 86, mostly lodged in the sixth story. Exit by way of the roof was cut off by the fire ladders not being available. For ns from the up fire ladders not being available. For the same reason very few were saved by jumping on the canvass.

The Whiskey Ring.

The present whiskey ring differs materially in its organization from that which flourished under General Grant, but its purposes and aims are essentially the same. John Sherman stands forward in the Senate as the peculiar champion of this ring, his brother-in-law being one of its principal attorneys, and his friends in Cincinnati being among the large holders of its paper.

Now Mr Sherman brings in a bill to give two years more of free warehousive two years more of free warehousing, and accompanies it with a piteous appeal that if this be not granted there will be wide spread ruin among the holders of whisky, that it is to say, the speculators that bonded it for a rise.

At the end of the proposed two years this interest will again knock at the doors of Congress for more legislation. The present experience will be repeated, and John Sherman will be in the Senate to recite the woes of the whisky ring, with perhaps its hundred millions of unpaid taxes, but this is the day of civil service reform, and these things are to be expected. Watch the votes of the reformers.

Rather Dubious. An Ohio farmer who in some way got hold of $500 stock of the "Ohio River Improvement Company," made a journey to Cincinnatti and consulted a bank as to the face value of the stock.

"Well," replied the banker, as he looked the musty papers over, "I used to be president of that company myself, and I can tell you all about it."

"Then I've struck the right man. Go let."

"We organized on a capital of ten millions, and paid in about a hundred dollars. We wanted the stock one-half on that, paid $25 for circulars, as much more for desk room, and I used $20 geing to Louisville on business. The remainder of the money, was embezzled by our treasurer, who afterwards died in South America."

"Then these bonds ain't worth nothing?"

"Well, I'd hold on to 'em. In case you ever go to South America and find that our treasurer left anything you might catch on, you know. And it is not impossible that the Ohio River Improvement Company may some day he resurrected under the name of the National Grindstone organization, and you'd at least be entitled to a hole in a grind-atone."

This is not to hop or jump up and down, but simply to

TREASURER POLE.

How the Money was Spent Which He Took from the Tennessee Treasury. Representative Milliken, of the investigating committee, says the deficit in the treasurer's accounts is over $400,000, including fifty United States $1,000 bonds that have been on hand a year, but cannot be found. The defalcation began five years ago, and increased rapidly after the passage of the hundred and three funding bill. The testimony shows many speculations in New York; also shows that Representative Duncan Cooper's orders on the treasury were always paid, the Clerk being instructed by Polk to pay them. The orders were all in an envelope directed to Polk until a few days ago, and the supposition is that Polk took them with him. The testimony also shows that the late Maj O'Connor, killed at Knoxville last November, owed Polk $60,000, and gave is due bill, which Polk took with him. Polk paid the State's money for exis due bill, which Polk took with him. Polk paid the State's money for exchange at San Francisco with which to pay for his silver mine in Mexico. The checks were found in a safe, with no evidence that they had passed the hands of the comptroller. The books show that the Mechanics' Bank of Knoxville owes the State $25,000, but the bank claims to have paid the money to O'Connor for Polk. The missing United States bonds were seven-thirties, and were the last of the school fund, and Polk was interested with O'Connor in the Gadsden ore banks, but the stock was in O'Connor's name, though $10,000 of it was paid out of the State treasury. Thousands of dollars of the checks show that they were drawn by M T Polk, treasurer, and payable to M T Polk, not countersigned by the comp-

Before the decision of the hundred and three bill, O'Connor told Polk the Supreme Court would not dare to decide it unconstitutional, and he induced Polk to buy bonds heavily while he sold. The general opinion is that the deficit was first caused by loaning money to friends caused by loaning money to friends and then by heavy speculation trying to regain amounts so lost.

Information from a reliable source puts the defalcation of State Treasurer Polk at $500,000. Polk's bond was only for $160,000. The Chattanooga Times openly charged defalcation when the treasurer refused to pay the January interest, and much indignation was occasioned at the time in consequence of the publication. The Times of Sunday the publication. The Times of Sunday denounces the spirit of repudiation abroad in the State as largely responsible for the leoseness of laws, their non-enfercement, and carelessness of official obligations. It says there is no question but the habit of a large section of our press and many of our public men of treating lightly, scornfully and flippantly the claims of the State's creditors has had a most damaging effect on ors has had a most damaging effect on the public morals in general, and has lowered especially the tone of official morals and sense of obligations. Col Polk was, without doubt, a victim both of the wretched looseness of the laws and the administration of executive business at Nashvile, but he was also a victim of the prevailing low tone of public honer, fostered by the spirit of repudiation, by the wanton and wicked attempt to readjust an almost generous and honorable settlement. This de-nouement leaves Tennessee the very lowest in the list of defaulting States. A resolution was introduced into the House on Saturday offering a reward of $20,000 for the apprehension of Polk.

A member remarked that that would only be $20,000 more lest, even should Polk be found, and the resolution went Mesars. Editors:—I seldom appear publicly in print, but the facts connected with my experience which follow are so straking, and hear so closely upon the experience of otners, that I venture to reproduce them entire:

In the mouth of September, 1879, I was practicing medicine in New Oricans. The summer had been excessively hot and everybody was complaining of being exhausted and feeling tired. It was not an unfrequent occurrence to have eastents ask for semething to relieve this weary sensation, and that I should also partake of the same universal hastitude at weakness, did not alarm me. I supposed that overwork and exposure had preduced a temporary physical pros ration; therefore I made a timp to st. Paul, Minn., thinking that a rest of a few weeks in a cooler climate would soon reinvigorate me. Little did I dream, however, what was in store for me. After getting settled in my new quarters I took a short walk every day, and patiently awaited a return of strength, but in splic of all my eff-ris I seemed to be losing strength; and even any sight exercise became laborious and lires me. During this time I had Irequent dull seeing pains in my head, st.d through my back and hips, occasional shoeting pains in various parts of the body, with soreness, shortness of breath, and papitation of the heart. My reet and hands would be like ee one day, and burn with heat the next. I had no desire for fc od, and what I did eat distressed me; my si-ep became disturbed with the frequent deaire to urinate. The quantity of fluid passed would at one time be small and at another quite profuse. Then for days I would be perfectly free from this desire and nothing seemed to be the matter; nevertheless my debility gradually increased. My syell ds were puffed eut, my D weis were alternately torpid and too active, the urine would be clear some days, on others limited and the profuse and hones were horrible in the extreme. The postal receipts for the 6 months ended December 31, indicate an increase over the corresponding period of last year of 11 or 12 per cent. If this ratio of gain is kept up the reduction of letter postage to two cents would create a deficiency of $2,000,000, instead of $3,000,000, as heretofore estimated, and it is probable that the increase in business caused by the proposed reduction would bring the actual deficiency considerably below $2,000,000.
