How long did you say you had it? What! a bad cough, with oreasional attacks of hemorrhage, for twen y-five year,? Why, man, it's a mercy that there's a dozen pounds lent of Abraham Orner, of High-pire, Dauphin county, Pa., stuck to his statement, and when the excis-mations of wonders ceased, he add d: Exactly. You're light. It is a mercy. But the greatest mercy of all is that, before I actually coughed myself out of existence, I got hold of Parker's Ginger Tonic, and a few boil es of it ur d you?" Relieved you, you mean?" "I mean what I say; it eared me," said Ms Orner, simply, "I feel like another man." Please take especial notice; Parker's Ginger Fonte is not a mere essence of gin.er; not a mere stomachic. The ordinary preparations of ginger are beneficial for transient aches, but at that point their value ends. Parker's Ginger Fonic covers a ar wider and totally different field. It attacks and disapates radical and chronic diseases of the dings. Kinneys, Liver and Nerves. It is as oe icious to the palate as it is prompt and effective noperation. Ginger is only one among many overful curatives which the Tonic holds in comnation. Test its virtue for that cough of yours f for any of the ills which require an invigorant for the whole system.

And, above all, do not permit yourself to be loisled. Parker's Ginger Tonir stands alone. No hi gelse is "just the same" or "just as good." Prices 5. c and $1 Peonomy in busing the larger Hiscox & CO, New York

MRS. MELVILLE'S DEFENSE.

She Tells Her Story to the Court -- A Painful Narrative.

The Philadelphia papers publish full reports of the hearing at Media, Pa., in Engineer Melville's suit for the custody of his children. Mrs. Melville, wife of Engineer Melville, occupied the witness stand a portion of Thursday, and her testimony is given as follows in the Philadelphia Times:

"She is a plain, delicate little woman, dressed in black, and apparently so feeble from nervous emotion that she had to be helped to the stand. After describing the early years of her mar-ried life, she went on to say that her husband was the first who ever placed a glass of liquor in her father's hand, and at their nome in Philadelphia she saw liquor for the first time placed upon a table. After breaking up housekeeping and taking a room in a boardinghouse her husband gave instructions to a party of young engineers in the adjoining room, and when retiring, sometimes as late as 2 o'clock in the morning, he would bring in a glass of liquor Norfolk to see my husband. On the way the passengers grew more or less intimate with each other, and I told them of my husband's long absence at sea and of the birth of my little child. and how happy I was at the thought of seeing him and how rejoiced he would be to greet me. When we arrived at our destination all eyes were centered on ma, anxious to catch a glimpse of the meeting of husband and wife. As I stepped across the deck of the vessel, instead of hurrying forward to meet me he advanced slowly, with a cigar in his mouth and never removed it, and at that moment I felt more wretched than I have words to describe."

"Placing three Bibles before her on the witness stand, Mrs. Melville proceeded to describe the circumstances of the shooting at Bristol. After care fully explaining their respective positions in the room she continued: "My husband had but shortly returned from a long voyage, and having sent Maud from the room George showed me a little pistol he had in his pocket. He assured me it would not go off if handied properly, and a moment after, as I was half turned around, taking s meplates from a closet, the pistol was fired and I fell to the floor with fright. See ing I was not injured I sprang up, and | as he discovered Mand returning to the house, cried out, 'For God's sake, don't "When Mr. Melville was expected home from the Jeannette expedition his little girls plucked grapes and quinces and put them with other frui in a little basket, on which they placed three cards, marked, 'Maud,' 'Elsa' and 'Meta,' 'They gave the basket to their tather,' said Mrs. Melville. 'He gave only a grunt in acknowledgment. "Speaking of the circumstances sur rounding her busband's return in Sep tember from the Jeannette cruise, Mrs. Meiville said: When he entered the dining-room I said. "Are you not glad to see me, George?" He answered, 'No, I am not.' 'Then, why did you come?' I replied. 'Because the public sent me, was his rejoinder. Then go out to your friends," I said, pointing to the parlor My poor children cried, and I resolved to go out and place myself at my husband's side, in order that the world might not discover our unhappiness. After the company had departed he said if I would show him his room he would go to bed. I did so, and he said, with an oath: 'This is your room.' 'Don't disgrace me,' I cried; 'don't go down stairs'—. 'Disgrace you?' he thundered, with an offensive epithet. He then went down to the parlor, and a few minutes later I heard the door slam. I jumped up, exclaiming: 'My God! has he left me?' The nex! morning I was ill from nervousness occasioned by the scenes of the night before, when Dr. Longstreth called with a gentleman. I finally consented to see them. The gentleman looked at me and inquired if I had eaten anything that day. 'Let me see your tongue. Let me feel your pulse. I will give you a hypodermic injection.' These are the me, and in three minutes the two men had gone, and from that short interview they signed the certificate that committed me to the insane asylum." "Mrs. Melville detailed the manner in which she was carried off to the asylum; how her husband's friends had tried to take from her her little children, and how she gathered them crying into her arms and sheltered them with her body as they lay on the grass . resisting the efforts at separation, and of her experience in the madhouse. This closing recital was given in a voice suppressed with emotion. The court adjourned until Wadnesday, when the argument's will be heard and the chil-

Congress, in view of the sensitiveness of 52,000,000 of Americans, should promptly reject the proposition to but a ten per cent, duty on quinine, which was placed on the free list in 1879. The people will not submit to the dictation of the ring of three quinine manufacturers, who have been impudently lob bying to have the old tax restored. The results of placing quinine on the free list are thus detailed by Mr. J. S Moore whose persistent labors aided so materially the movement of 1879: "The average price of quinine in 1877 was $3.76 per ounce. In 1878 it was $3.54 per ounce. During the last six months of the tax-that is from the 1st of January, 1879, to June, 1879-it was $6.63 per ounce. Since that date we have had free quinine, and the result was that during the first six ing the year 1880 the average price was $3.06 per onnce. In 1881 the average price was 2 471/2 per ounce, and the price in 1882 was, on an average, about $1 90 to $2 Lately the price, was as low as $1.50 per ounce. These figures are far more eloquent pleaders for free quinine that it is in my power to be."

A Youthful Patricide.

New York Tribune. An astonishing trial has just ended in St. Petersburg-the trial of a boy of thirteen for the murder of his fatherand its most astonishing feature was the boy's testimony. He confessed his guilt, but maintained an appearance of complete indifference during the proceedings, and when asked what motives had induced him to commit the crime, simply said: "My father prevented me from continuing my studies, and making for myself a brilliant career. He also would not allow me to read novels, and that is why I resolved to get rid of such a rough, uncultured father." "How was the crime committed?" asked the president. 'One night, when my mother was out of town, I crept out of bed and went to the kitchen for a hatchet. On my way there I said to myself: 'My God! What am I about to do? But then I thought, Is there a God? Who can prove it? So I took the hatchet and went into my father's room. He did not move, but I opened the window to make sure that he was asleep, and then I struck him a blow on the head with the hatchet. He sprang up and cried 'help!' but fell back immediately on the ground. Then I took the hatchet to the kitchen, dressed myself and went out. In the morning when I came back they told me my father was dead. I know I have done wrong, but it can't be helped.'

What the Senate Tariff Bill Promises,

The Senate tariff bill, which is based on the tariff commissioner's report, becomes, under the commendation of Senator Morrill, a much more interesting document than could well be expected from the committee of which he is chan man. It promises a total reduction of taxes of $74,718,837. The internal revenue tax is to be nuited to spirits, beer and tobacco, including shuff and cigars. The taxes removed are as tollows: From friction matches, $3,-272.258; patent medicines, perfumery, & ..., $1,978 395; bank checks, $2318 455; bank deposits, $4,007,701; savings bank deposits, $88,400; bank capitol, $1,138,-340; savings bank capital, $14,729; from national bank capital, $5,521,927; national bank deposits, $437,774-total, $18,777,983. Add the amount derived words, only words, which he said to from special taxes, $3,007,905; cigars and eigarettes, St.746 0c0; tobacco, St,-257,435; total of internal revenue taxes removed, $34,790,324. The amount of decrease of revenue expected from the reductions of tariff taxes proposed by the Senate bill runs as follows: From cottons estimated at 30 per cent. $3, 681 000; iron and steel, $5,200,000; silks, $3,487,000; wool and woolens, $4,845,000; mland transportation, 212 per cent. commissions and other charges hitherto regarded in making valuations and creafter not to be so regarded, $5 400, ю; sugar, $15,500,000; molasses, $6,500,-000; other items, $6.286,000; total of taiff tax removed, $45,049,000. This sum added to the sum due to internal revenue taxes to be abated makes a grand total of $74,749,837, as said above an amount which, in Mr Morrill's view, may exceed the surplus of the year Senator Merrill thinks the reductions on sugar, from, steel, cottons, silks and to him, with his peculiar views on tariff matters, it may really seem so, but to Senator Beck it appears otherwise. Mr Beck declared that "the report of the tariff commission, while plausibly professing to reduce duties, really increased hem upon many important articles. The commission had simply let the men who were to make money out of the business fix up the schedules for themselves, and had handed that in as their own work, when in fact, in his judgment, they had done no intelligent work at all. It would therefore be the duty of Senators who really desired a reduction of existing duties to examine this bill very carefully to see that it did not really increase them by means of cunning changes of schedules, transmonths of free quining-from July 1 positions, and provisions devised by to December 31, 1879—the average price | men who would profit by the increase, of quinine fell to $3.29 per ounce. Dur | and who, perhaps, in many instances. deceived even the members of the commission themselves"

The editor of the Cincinnati News Mr. di, M. D. ok, who was formerly e iter f the Nishvil Basiner and w acquainted with tolerer Marsh 1 Polk, be defining measurer of Tranesser, draws the following pen picture

"He was a genial companion, with a remarkably bright vem of sporkling wit. He had been once exceedingly dissipated, but for twenty years he t practiced abs bute abstanence. He was a man without vices, but not the orainativelase leading or psein sing ag de faulter. He was a social, jeviar non with the boys, but spent money in d ately, and joined in none but the more innocent pleasures, no matter what others did He was in no way extr vagant, and ye he fell His cas is as sad one as was ever recorded. We do not believe he ever did a dishones: o a dishonorable thing in his bie het re. That does not lessen the crime, but suddens it, and warms him who vaunteth himself to beware. Temp'ation has many guises, and no one knows he is safe until the death-rattle advises him that his account is closed. When the war ended, leaving Polk out of service and poor, he went to work, and partly in a country newspaper and partly on a farm, made a meager but decent living. four years ago he was elected Treasurer of the State.

Chronic Diarrhœa, Jaundice, Impurity of the Blood, Fever and REGULATOR and all Diseases Es caused by Derangement of Liver, Bowels and Kidneys.

For Dyspepsia,

SYMPTOMS OF A DISEASED LIVER. Bad Breath; Pain in the Side, sometimes the Rheumatism: general laws of appetite; Bowels generally costive, sometimes alternating with lax; the head is troubled with pain, is dull and heavy, with considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of leaving undone something which ought to have been done; a slight, dry cough and flushed face is sometimes an attendant, often mistaken for consumption; the patient complains of weariness and debility; nervous easily startled; feet cold or burning, sometimes a prickly sensation of the skin exists; spirits are low and despondent, and, although satisfied that exercise would be beneficial, yet one can hardly summon up fortitude to try it—in fact, distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred when but few of them existed, yet examination after death has shown the Liver to have been extensionly deranged.

It should be used by all persons, old and young, whenever any of the above symptoms rapear.

Persons Traveling or Living in Unhealthy Localities, by taking a dose occasionally to keep the Liver in healthy action, will avoid all Malaria, Bilious attacks, Dizziness, Nau-sea, Drowsiness, Depression of Spirits, etc. It will invigorate like a glass of wine, but is no intoxicating beverage. If You have eaten anything hard of digestion, or feel heavy after meals, or sleep-less at night, take a dose and you will be relieved. Time and Doctors' Bills will be saved by always keeping the Regulator
