LOG ROLLING.

While Wrestling with a Fallen Tree a Lumberman Receives Consequential Demages.

While on a hunting excursion in 'the great coal and word region near Carbondale, Pa , the writer met William Coll, a lumberman. Accustomed to if and labor in the fore t from early manhood, he was a true Kulght of the Axe Man/a tree had fallen before his rigging stokes, and fleets of rafts had ne away to market the sawed products Coll is a racter, and if O car Wilde is right in saying that all mo ements in unhindered labor are graceful, our friend William, stripped for his work, and attacking a tree a. Richard I. assault-d the heavy doors of Front de Bœui's Castle, must h we presented an admirable picture.

One dar, however, but let him tell the story kimself, as he told it to me:

'I was out in the woods, you know, trying to start a log down a hill Thinking I could get a better a purchase on it from the lower side, I tackled it there with my log rolling book and threw my weight on the lever. She started, she did, but as luck would have it, before I could get out of the way, she rolled right over ma. If it had i't een or a ot of small bs and brush lying in the road, which lifted her up, she'd a crushed me fit As it was I got up without a broken bone, but with some mighty bad bruises.' "Then you were all right," said his auditor.

"Not by a blamed sight, stranger. I took cold, rheumatism set, and, if I hadn't heard of BEN-SON'S CAPCINE POROU : PLASTERS and used 'em, it's my opinion I should never have made another chip fly. But the Capcine took hold quick, and I'm 'bout as good as new. But there's one thirg you kin calkilate on: I shall never wrastle with another log unless I have the advantage of the ground. Fur, as I told you before, if it hadn't been for them brushes I'd been s nashed so, you could 'a sold me for a door mat."

The Capcine is the thing for rheumatism. It doesn't keep you waiting. The word CAPCINE is cut is the center of the genuine. Price 25c.

"Twenty-five years."
"What! a bad cough, with occasional attacks of hemorrhage, for twen y-five years? Why, man, it's a mercy that there's a dozen pounds left of you."

Abraham Orner, of Highspire, Dauphin county, Pa., stuck to his statement, and when the exclamations of wonders ceased, he added:

Exactly, You're right, It is a mercy. But the greatest mercy of all is that, before I actually coughed myself out of existence, I got hold of Parker's Ginger Tonic, and a few bott es of it cured ma."

Piease take especial notice; Parker's Ginger Tonic is not a mere essence of ginger; not a mere stomachic. The ordinary preparations of ginger are beneficial for transtent aches, but at that point their value ends. Parker's Ginger Tonic covers a far wider and totally different field. It attacks and dissipates radical and chronic diseases of the Lungs, Kidneys, Liver and Nerves. It is as delicious to the palate as it is prompt and effective in operation. Ginger is only one among many powerful curatives which the Tonic holds in combination. Test its virtue for that cough of yours of the whole system.

And, above all. do not permit yourself to be blased. Parker's Ginger Tonir stands alone. Nothing else is "just the same" or "just as good." Pricas 5 c and $1 Fronomy in buying the larger lan!

reform and the abolition of internal revenue, give us the abolition of internal revenue. The first internal revenue system known in the United States was what is known as that introduced by Mr. Hamilton in 1792. It lasted eleven years and created a rebellion which cost about $1,500,000 to suppress. Its overthrow contributed more to liberty in the Republic than any event of the Republic's history. President Jefferson's inaugural was generally received as a statement of perfect theories and principles of government, and it became at once, and remains to this day, a very scripture of Democratic faith. The richest gem of thought in that inaugural is his assault upon the internal revenue system. He said: The present population, combined with other cir-cumstances, justifies the repeal of all internal revenue taxes. War, indeed, and untoward events may change the prespect of things and call for expenses which the imports cannot meet, but sound principles will not justify our taxing the industry of our fellow citizens to accumulate treasure for wars to happen, we know not when, and which might not happen, but from the temptations offered by the treasure. This system was then overthrown and Jefferson is the only apostle of liberty, recognized as such in the history of the Vance investigation committee recognizes this fact. I rely very greatly upon the testimony of a judge. The constant prosecution of legal inquiries elevates them, and makes them all light and no heat. The recognition of this fact by an eminent judge of the State in whom our people have unlimited confidence alone makes it of peculiar importance and Senators should well consider it. dividuals, but vengrance only remains for injuries to one's country. Yet more young men change opinions now on our Senators and Representatives in Congress to arm themselves against this kind of moral palsy."

Freezing Sensation.

James Humphrey, a Canadian, who nearly freze to death in a recent storm while driving home from a distance, gives an interesting account of the sensations experienced. When he felt no longer able to hold the reins with any grip, he determined to seek shelter in the first house until well warmed. His tongue became stiff, then his arms. sharp chills ran through his back, and finally it seemed as though his whole body was being congealed, causing an almost total cessation of the heart's action. This condition of extreme suffering and despondency speedily gave place to a feeling of grateful warmth suffusing the system, and causing an exhilirating glow. By this time he had reached a house, but he drove on, think ing that nothing was to be feared. The sleigh, instead of crawling along at a snail's pace, appeared to glide through the air with great swiftness, and the horses fairly flew like pigeons. A sense of exultation filled the farmer's breast as he urged the horses to a greater speed, and the woods on each side were passing so quickly that they became undistinguishable black lines. Then the sleigh bells sounded fainter and fainter, until the chimes disappeared in the distance, and the farmer fell gradually into a delicious slumber, which came near being the sleep that knows no waking, and he knew no more until brought to life under a vigorous treat:

Incubators for Infants. The success of hatching chickens by steam is an assured fact, as the peeping myriads of motherless nestlings will testify. But the part that the machine known as the artificial incubator was destined to play in the development of foundlings who were in the hospital.

They were from twelve hours to eleven months old and their average weight was sixteen pounds. At the end of six months, when they wer removed from the incubator, their average weight was twenty-four pounds, and not one of them would have been supposed to be less than three years of age. Within a week they began to walk, and since then have learned to talk. Dr Tavernier bears an unblemished reputation, and has made a formal report of his success

through a committee to the French Government. It is thought that his method of artificial child incubation will be adopted not only in every child's hospital in France, but in every private family throughout the civilized world.

Such a result ought to satisfy the aspirations of the most ambitious. No more whining, pining, puling infants; no more soothing syrups and squills; no more necturnal promenades enforced upon paterfamilias; no more thraldom of nurse-maids; no more fears of colic, whooping-cough and measles while haby is in the "incubator." The millenium seems close at hand. Hail, Dr Tavernier, the greatest benefactor of his kind! His name must become a household word which will go thundering the human family was probably never imagined by the projector in his most sanguine moments. The successful application of his theory to the egg of the domestic fowl was glory enough for him, and the further development of the product of his genius has fallen to that it is claimed by a newspaper, the Morning Star, that a great scientist in political economy, David A. Wells, 'says that the internal revenue laws should not be repealed,' and that it is claimed at the capitol that not more another. According to the Glasgow Mail, this other is a Dr Tavernier, a learned and ingenious physician, attached to one of the hospitals for foundlings in France. He was annoyed at the large number of foundlings who died within the first six months of their died within the first six months of their life, and being attracted to the success which attended the artificial incubator of chickens, resolved to test its merits when applied to in ants. To resolve was to do. The de tor constructed a child incubator months after the ordinary chicken incubator. It was a box covered with a glass ide, furnished with a seft wealen bed, and by means of het a soft woolen bed, and by means of hot water kept at a temperature of eighty-six degrees Fahrenheit. He selected as the subject of his first experiment a miserably made infant, one that had come into the world at an injudiciously early period. This infant was placed in the inempeter provided with a pure in the incubator, provided with a nursing bottle and kept in a dark room. To the surprise of the doctor it ceased to cry on the second day after it was placed in the incubator, and, although it had previously been a preternaturally sleepless child, it sunk into a deep and quiet sleep. The child remained in the incu-bator for about eight weeks, during which time it never once cried, and never remained awake except when aking nourishment. It grew rapidly, and when, at the expiration of sixty days, it was removed from the incubator it presented the appearance of a healthy infant of at least a year old. Delighted with the success of the experiment, other infants were placed in the incubator with like results. Dr Tavernier, satisfied of the vast advantages of artificial child incubation, proceeded, with the permission of the hospital authorities, to construct an incunator of the capacity of 480 infants, and in this he placed every one of the 360

Meeting of the National Republican Executive Committee --- Dorsey Re-

WASHINGTON, Jan 17 .- The Republican National Committee met at the Arlington House this morning. All the States, Territories and the District of Columbia were represented. Marsha Jewell presided. He submitted the res ignation of Dorsey, as secretary, and it was accepted. John A Martin, of Kansas, was unanimously elected secretary. On motion of Senator Logan, the thanks of the committee were unanimously tendered to Geo W Hooker, assistant secretary, for the able and effi cient manner in which he had discharge ed the duties of that office. The chairman called for the report of the special committee, appointed a year ago, to present a plan for the choice of delegates to the next National Republican convention. Mr Chandler, chairman of the special committee, stated the action of the sub committee at the meeting held last night and discussed the questions submitted.
