Georgia cast 4 votes against it and none for it; Alabama 2 against it and none for it; Virginia 13 against it and 3 for it; Mississippi cast 1 vote against it and none for it. "From the slavery states the bill received just 14 votes, and the same states cast against it 48 votes. There were 70 votes from all the different states not cast at all upon the bill. Georgia had 5 members that did not vote; Kentucky 7, Tennessee 3; Missouri furnished no member to vote on the subject.

"'If by any means the bill should fail, said Mr Morse, 'I shall return to New York without the fraction of a cent of money in my pocket.' It passed the senate only a few minutes before midnight. Just a little while before the bill passed Mr Morse's old preceptor, Washington Allston, died in Boston, and Morse went to the funeral.

"What was the character of the first line of telegraph built with this appropriation?

"The first idea was to put the wires in tubes underground. Ezra Cornell, father of Governor Cornell, invented a machine for that purpose. Two-thirds of the appropriation was expended in that way foolishly. Then they began to stretch the wires on poles along the Baltimore and Ohio railroad track. The whig national convention met in Baltimore on the 1st of May, 1844, and the telegraph announced to Washington the nomination of Henry Clay and Theodore Frelinghuysen. That piece of news made the telegraph a solvent institution, showing that news is the basis of progress in our time."

"Was Morse interested in anything else but the telegraph ?"

"Oh, yes; you have not begun to get his life. He showed the telegraph to Humboldt in Europe in 1845. He tried to get a further congressional appropriation but failed. Then he took Amos Kendall into the company, and the Magnetic telegraph company was formed Congress could have bought the entire invention from Morse for $100,000 in 1845. It is now paying the telegraph companies millions of dollars for its own messages, while about $150,000,000 are invested in American telegraph lines

"Cave Johnson, of Tennessee, Polk's postmaster general, who died in 1866 was the enlightened ass who reported that the operation of the telegraph between Baltimore and Washington had not satisfied him; that under any rates of postage that could be adopted, its revenues could be made to equal its expenditures. He lost to the people free telegraphy; but this fellow really made the fortune of Mr Morse. The telegraph company was first composed of Gale. Vail, F O G Smith aforesaid, Kendall Corcoran, Riggs, Ezra Cornell, and a dozen or twenty others, one of them named Washington. There was $15,000 paid in."

A Frozen Man Hauling the Dead. Territorial Enterprise.

A curious thing occurred last Friday up in the Wood River country. Two Italians who had been badly injured, but who were gradually recovering, were dispatched for Bellevue, where they would obtain better accommodations. The two sick men were laid in the bottom of an ordinary lumber wagon and there covered up. An Italian was then employed to drive the wagon to Bellevue. He faithfully performed this duty. Though almost frozen he drove to Bellevue, not halting until he was in front of the hotel where he was to deliver his charges The hotel people came out to receive. the patients consigned to them and upon uncovering them found both frozen stiff and dead. The driver was himself almost frozen to death.

every one of the men began work the following week with the balance against him." This great increase of drunkenness is attributed to the recent failures of the vintage of light wines, which are as universally the beverage of the population as beer is that of the Germans. In lieu of their heretofore common drink, "manfactured" brandies are used in its stead. The inhabitants, unlike the French, will not take kindly to beer, and the so-called brandy imported into Switzerland, like that imported into other countries, is absolute poison.

which the great engineer astonished his age, is interesting now only as an illustration of the beginning of the invention. There were plasters with holes in them long before BENSON'S CAP-CINE POROUS PLASTER surprised both the public and the phy Iclans; and the triumph of the Capcine is founded upon the partial successes, or the utter failures of its predecessors. Everything of value in the old porous plaster is retained in the Capcine; but a: this point all comparison ends and contrast begins. For example:

The old plasters were s'ow in their action; the Capcine is quick and sure.

The old p'asters lacked the power to do more than to impart sight, temporary relief in cases easy of treatment; the Capcine penetrates the system and permanently cures the troubles for which t is racommended.

The old plasters depended for any good results they might attain upon an accident of their makers and the naked faith of their wearers; the Benson's reaches its ends by means of the scientific combination of the rare medicinal ingredients which it conta ha.

In brief, the old plasters, life Stephenson's dis-Carded engine, are switched off the track, while the Benson's goes on its way winning golden oplaions from all sorts of peop e.

Yes, in this very fact lies the leading danger to the people who buy and use this reliable and scientific remedy. "Hyperisy is the tribute vice" pays to virtue." Imitation is the concession failare makes to success. Benson's Plasters are parodied in name and style.

An oak chair, with leather back and seat, which once belonged to Thomas Jefferson, and was assiduously sat upon by that patriot, is now the property of Mrs Walter C Douglass, of St Louis. One of the arms is a writing desk, with a drawer beneath it for stationery, and Mrs Douglass will be deeply grateful to anybody who will prove that the Declaration of Independence was written thereupon.
