Brought Into Competition with the World, the Best Carries off the Honors.

At the great Centennial Exhibition of 1876, the leading products of all the branches of the World's Industry were assembled at Philadelphia. To carry off a prize in the face of that tremendous competition was a task of no ordinary difficul y. Inventions and preparations for the alleviation of pain and the cure of disease were present in the greatest possible variety, representing the skill and he profoundest study of the age, and it may be of vital importance to you, personally, to know that the highest and meda given to rubber Porous plasters, was awarded to the manufactur els of BENSON'S CAP INE P ROUS PLASTER, by the following jury:

Di. WM. ROTH, Surgeon-General, Prussian Army. J. H. THOMPSON, A. M., M D., Washington, 1). C.

C. B. WHITE, M. D., New Orleans.

ERNEST FLEGGE, M. D. austria The decision was afterwards confirmed by the medical jury at the last Paris Exposition. Know ing the value of such high and unbiased testimony, the medical profession, both in the United States and Europe, quickly threw aside the old. s'ow-actin plasters they had been using and ado, ted Benson's in their regular practice. That physicians and surgeons of the broades rejutation did this, distinctly proves the intr nsic merit

It is no more than just to add that the average physician of to-day is not dominated by the prejudices which retarted the progress and modified the success of his predecessors of not more than twenty five years ago. He accepts bints from all quarters and endorses and adopts demonstrated healing agents wherever he finds them.

The right of Benson's capsine Porous Plaster to stand at the head of all external applications whatsoever, for the mitigation or cure of disease. is no longer questioned. Let the purchaser, however, be on his guard against imitation. The genuine has the word

FOR THE HAPPINESS OF HOME

From a Clergyman's Home Comes a Message Containing the Wisdom of Experience.

Yet homes does not usually approach in practice its own ideals. The mother is overtaxed with household duties and the rearing and training of their children, while the father fights the outside battle to win the wherewithal to meet expenses. Sooner or later care and toil leave their marks. It is true enough, as Kingsley sings in the "Three Fishers," that "Men must work, and women must weep," but too much working and weeping brush all the bloom from life's fruit. Mental anxiety and tack of rest and pleasure in-duce physical disease of many kinds; Whence the need of a trustwor by tonic to give help and strength in times of need Among the good women of the land who have found such a sure anchor is Mrs. A. C. George, wife of Rev. A C. George, D. D., pastor of the Centenary M. E. Church, of Chi-cago, whose words we have the permission to

I use Parker's Ginger Tonic in my family, and can say that we are highly pleased with it as a tonic. From my experience of its value, I recommend it as a reliable family medicine. These gentlemen did not receive a quorum vote in the House, the vote standing 57, four short of a quorum, though I understand Gov. Jarvis, who is accounted headquarters authority as a Parliamentarian, says that in election of officers a quorum vote is not neces-AN EXCITING SCENE IN THE HOUSE.

Last night a bill that had passed the Senate was before the House providing a State Geologist to the Board of Agriculture, and if the five thousand dollars towards the survey, and his own salary and the salary of his clerk, was not found sufficient for the mineral explorations of his State, then leaving it with the commissioners to increase the sum at their discretion. There was a strong feeling of prejudice against the office with a few of the Democrats and many of the Republicans. Mr. Ed. Powers, of Cumberland, the Republican colleague of Speaker Rose, had asked the ayes and noes on the third reading of the bill, and they were ordered. The call began, and Mr. Powers left his seat and went to the lobby, and when his name was called he did not respond. There were yet five names necessary to make a quorum, and the Speaker said:

"The gentleman from Cumberland must come from the lobby and vote. The clerk will call the name of the gentleman from Cumberland." "Mr. Powers!" cried the clerk, but there was no response. "Mr Speaker," said Mr Powers, speaking from the lobby, "you have he right to make me vote when I am in the lobby; and besides, if you had the right, there is not a quorum of the House to order it."

The Speaker-The chair has had an experience of eight years on this floor, and it informs the gentleman from Cumberland that a member at any point within the hall of the House can be required to vote. "But the lobby's not the hall of the House, and there's no quorum," insisted

Mr Powers stubbornly, standing in the The Speaker—The chair will say to the gentleman that the House has the right to order a member from the lobbies to the floor to vote, and as to a quorum that fifteen members of the House have the right, if they see proper, to expel a member. Different members of both sides were now on their feet, some for conciliatory measures, and others for enforcing the

Mr Ray, of Macon, Democrat, doubted the right of ordering a man to vote from the lobby, and didn't see why it should be done now, when hundreds of such instances had occurred during the

Mr Thompson, of Onslow, Democrat, and against the bill, was even more pronounced against the ruling, declaring there was no quorum, and that he saw no right or justice in trying to force a man to vote from the lobby.

Mr Overman, of Rowan, said the gen-tleman from Cumberland was seeking to bring the House into contempt, and he moved he be expelled. Mr Strudwick, of Orange, said he moved that the Sergeant-at-Arms be instructed to bring the gentleman before the bar of the House to receive its censure, and then, if he refused to come, that he be expelled. Mr Forbis, of Guilford, made the same

Mr McLoud, Democrat, of Buncombe, made a conciliatory talk, referring to the good feeling existing all the session, and suggesting as it was near the hour of adjournment that the morning would be the best time to settle it, and that the House had best adjourn. Mr Strudwick and Mr Forbis insisted on their motion to bring the gentleman from Cumberland before the House. Mr Thompson moved to lay that motion on the table. There was a pretty decided expression of ayes and noes on each side. The Speaker said the noes had it. Norcom, the assistant door keeper, went to the lobby and he and Mr Powers-he did not touch him-came to the floor. Mr Powers, walking down the side aisle, made an earnest talk, stating that he meant no disrespect to the House, but he was not to be bulldozed, and had not the gentleman from Rowan withdrawn his motion to expel him, that he would never have come to the floor, that he was not afraid of ten, twenty or thirty of the men who were for trying to sit down on him, he de-nounced the bill, how unpopular the office was with his people, and still insisted that the chair was wrong in or-dering him from the lobby to vote, and that he would not fear to try the question before the courts, &c.
